Cotton— Friendship— Advertising—

A large part of the cotton business is done through personal friendship—the same sort of mutual faith which is necessary to every business.

BUT—did you ever stop to think of the large part played by consistent publicity in developing the initial introduction?

An advertisement in the "Chronicle" will help you form new friendships among the people constituting the "backbone" of the World's Cotton Industry.

Existing fees of real estate now held by United Cigar Stores Company will be immediately acquired by United Stores Realty Corporation. United Cigar Stores Company of America was incorporated in 1912, the business having been established in 1901. Through over 2,400 stores and agencies located in more than 1,000 cities of the United States, extending from Coast to Coast, it is engaged in the sale of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and smokers' articles, being the largest enterprise of its kind in the world. In the course of its business, it has acquired extensive realty holdings, both in fee and through long term leases, in the cities in which it operates.

Earnings: The consolidated net earnings of the Cigar Stores Company and subsidiaries since 1917 (after interest but before taxes) have been as follows:

The sinking fund will be sufficient to retire 50% of the whole issue by maturity.

UNION TRUST COMPANY OF SAN FRANCISCO, Trustee

Authorized by the Railroad Commission of California

The following information is summarized from a letter of Otto E. Osthoff, Vice-President, Byllesby Engineering and Management Corporation, which manages Western States Gas and Electric Company:

Business—Western States Gas and Electric Company, or its predecessors, has been successfully engaged in business in California for thirty-four years. It owns and operates electric and gas properties in central and northern California, supplying 30 communities, including the cities of Stockton, Richmond and Eureka, having a present population estimated in excess of 107,000.

The Company's present electric business exceeds the output of its water power and steam generating electric capacity to an extent that necessitates the purchase of a large amount of power from outside sources. In order to replace this power purchased from other companies, as well as to provide for immediate and future power demands, the Company is engaged in the construction of a hydro-electric plant with an initial capacity of 20,000 KW., on the south fork of the American River, which it is estimated will be in operation in the latter part of 1923. The Company has recently sold $5,000,000 of its First and Unified Mortgage bonds, the proceeds from which are being used in the construction of this hydro-electric plant.

Purpose—The proceeds from the present issue of these Notes will provide funds for extensions and additions to the properties, and for the redemption of $2,668,000 Ten-Year 6% Gold Notes and $1,199,000 Five-Year 6½% Collateral Trust Notes, which latter notes constitute in effect a mortgage lien, inasmuch as they are secured by $1,724,000 First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Bonds, which will be released and pledged under the mortgage securing the First and Unified Mortgage bonds.

Earnings—Net earnings for the year 1922 (with three months estimated) are approximately 1.94 times the annual interest requirements on the outstanding First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Bonds and on this issue of Fifteen-Year Gold Notes, 6% Series "A." The interest on $5,000,000 First and Unified Mortgage bonds is being included, during the period of construction of the new hydro-electric development, in construction cost. Average annual net earnings during the last four-year period (with three months of 1922 estimated) have been in excess of the total annual interest requirements on all bonds now outstanding and the present issue of Fifteen-Year Gold Notes, without allowance for the estimated increase of $400,000 in annual net earnings to result from the substitution of power that will be generated in the new hydro-electric plant for ower now purchased.

Security—The Trust Agreement under which the Notes will be issued will permit the issuance of additional Notes in series, bearing interest at such rate and redeemable at such price as may be determined by the directors of the Company. Such additional Notes may be issued only when net earnings, as defined in the Trust Agreement, shall for twelve consecutive months ending not more than sixty days prior to application for the issuance of Notes, have been equal to at least 1½ times the annual interest charges on all bonds of the Company then outstanding and on all these Notes then outstanding, including those about to be issued, or for the purpose of retiring notes of other series.

The Trust Agreement will provide that no additional mortgage (except purchase-money mortgages) shall be placed upon the property of the Company unless these Notes shall be secured equally and ratably with the other obligations secured by such mortgage.

Notes are offered when, as, and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of Messrs. Chickering and Gregory, of San Francisco, California, for the Bankers, and Messrs. Cummins, Roemer & Flynn of Chicago, Illinois, for the Company.

Price 96 and interest to yield about 6.40%

Delivery will be made in the form of interim receipts, exchangeable for Definitive Notes when, as and if issued and received.

Principal payable in New York. Interest payable April 1 and October 1 in New York and New Orleans. The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee. The company agrees to make application for listing these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

The following information is summarized from a letter to us by A. L. Kempster, Vice President and General Manager of New Orleans Public Service Inc.:

New Orleans Public Service Inc. has been organized to acquire the entire assets of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company and to operate all its properties and the properties of all of its subsidiary companies. These properties include all the plants now generating electric energy for commercial power and light in the City of New Orleans, the entire gas manufacturing and distributing properties and the street railway system of 223 miles.

The First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds will be secured by direct mortgage lien or through pledge of collateral, subject only to $11,133,000 underlying bonds, on properties which will have a value, after giving effect to the present financing, of $51,000,000, as determined in accordance with a rate settlement with the City of New Orleans. This settlement provides that rates may be established to enable the Company to earn 7½% on this valuation and the additions thereto, after taxes and reserve for renewals and replacements.

These $12,000,000 bonds will be secured, at issue, by direct first mortgage lien upon properties having a value under the settlement ordinance in excess of $5,000,000 and by direct lien upon additional properties valued in excess of $15,000,000, subject to $4,836,500 divisional bonds. They will be further secured through pledge of over 99% of stock on the gas property valued in excess of $9,000,000, which is without funded debt, and through pledge of 98% of stock, on the remaining properties valued in excess of $22,000,000, subject only to $6,296,500 underlying bonds. The First and Refunding Mortgage will provide that none of the companies whose stock is pledged shall create any bonds or funded debt unless pledged under the mortgage and that Underlying bond issues cannot be increased in amount and must be paid by maturity and not extended.

Gross and net revenues, after operating expenses and taxes, available for interest and renewals and replacements, have been as follows during the last six years ended August 31:

	Gross Revenues	Net Revenues

These net revenues for 1922 were more than 4 times, and for the six-year period net revenues averaged more than 2¾ times, the annual interest totalling $1,162,965 on all underlying bonds now outstanding and the $12,000,000 First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Bonds. The 1922 net revenues as above were more than 2½ times total annual fixed charges now accruing, including the interest on the 4½% General Lien Bonds junior to the First and Refunding Bonds.

Net operating revenues, after taxes, from either the electric and gas or the street railway departments are in excess of the interest on the First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds now being issued and the prior divisional bonds.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The sharp decline in the stock market the present week has come as a decided surprise. With the coal miners' strike, as well as the railroad shopmen's strike, a matter of the past, and things gradually getting back to the normal, it might have been supposed that the stock market would now be distinguished for strength instead of for weakness. Foreign affairs, too, are wearing a more assuring look. The complications in the Near East growing out of the Turkish military operations and the defeat inflicted on the Greeks, have been smoothed over and apparently there is no longer any threat to the peace of the world from that quarter. The accession of a new Ministry to control in Great Britain under the Premiership of Bonar Law, in succession to Lloyd George, is not an occasion for anxiety, inasmuch as whatever alteration of policy may result therefrom, it promises to be a step in the direction of greater conservatism, since Mr. Lloyd George has always been tinged more or less with radicalism—more so perhaps than any man in British public life with the exception of the Laborites. The German reparations troubles we have always with us, but the differences between France and Great Britain seem to be gradually becoming less formidable. At home the tremendous success attending the offering of the $500,000,000 4¼% U. S. Treasury bonds of 1947-52 should inspire new confidence in the strength of Government finances and the country's investment capacity alike.

To be sure, bond prices have latterly been tending downward, and Government issues have suffered along with the rest, the Liberty Loan issues again sinking below par and even the new Government bonds having on small transactions dipped slightly below par. As one example of the general decline, the Fourth Liberty Loan 4¼s this week sold as low as 98.06, as against 101 last month. But there is nothing strange or illogical in that—nothing to provoke anxiety. Business is steadily reviving and there is an augmented demand for money for business purposes. As the money can be more profitably employed in that way, the banks and private owners are selling their security holdings and putting the proceeds into business channels. The banks of course could get accommodation at the Federal Reserve banks, but their experience in 1919 and 1920 has taught them a lesson, and they are now pursuing a sounder and more conservative course. The bill holdings of the twelve Federal Reserve banks which had increased from $591,836,000 to $771,406,000 between Sept. 13 and Oct. 11, have declined sharply the last two weeks, and are down again to $727,090,000, at which figure comparison is with no less than $1,371,965,000 at the corresponding date last year.

As it happens, too, railroad shares have been especially weak the present week, sharp declines having occurred in the semi-speculative issues. For some time the railroad stocks have been more or less in disfavor, being the last to go up when the general market was rising and the first to go down when it was declining. New occasion for selling them down has been found in the poor returns of earnings which have come to hand the present week for the month of September. But the causes responsible for these poor returns are now a matter of the past. As is explained in the Baltimore & Ohio statement, which we publish on a subsequent page (page 1938), the coal strike and the railroad strike worked havoc with the railroads—so much so that the B. & O. fell $1,712,473 short of meeting its bare operating expenses in September. But the carriers did well the first six months of 1922, and they are going to do well the last three months of the year.

What the future has in store for the roads is to be judged not by the poor income statements for August and September, but by the action of the Pennsylvania Railroad the present week in restoring its stock to a 6% dividend basis, after the reduction to 4% last year, and the course of the Norfolk & Western in declaring 1% extra in addition to the 7% per annum previously paid. Whatever may be the day-to-day fluctuations in the stock market, the future cannot be regarded as otherwise than cheering for the railroads and for general business alike.

This has been another eventful week in Europe. England has a new Cabinet, with Andrew Bonar Law at its head. Comment on his selections of associates and his policy, as outlined in a speech in Glasgow on Thursday, and in a manifesto issued in London the same day, has been favorable in the main. While wide differences are claimed, it was pointed out in London cable advices that they are to be found more in the personality of the former and present Premiers than in their actual aims and purposes and methods of accomplishing them. The British Parliament has been dissolved, a general election called for Nov. 15 and the new Parliament ordered to convene on Nov. 20. The Facta Cabinet in Italy resigned Thursday evening. The statement was made in an Associated Press dispatch from Rome last evening that "Premier Facta has telegraphed Benito Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti, at Milan, asking him to come to Rome to discuss the possibility of an agreement between the Government and the Fascisti." Mussolini was expected to arrive yesterday afternoon. The further decline in the German mark has resulted in a still more active discussion of the finances of that country. Several members of the Allied Reparations Commission are scheduled to leave Paris for Berlin to-morrow in the hope of evolving some sort of relief measures.

Naturally, there was keen interest over the week-end in the probable outcome of Andrew Bonar Law's efforts to form a new Ministry to succeed to that of Lloyd George. A great amount of speculation was indulged in. Practically the only definite fact that was known was that on Monday last there was to be a meeting of the Unionist Party in London. It was expected that at that time Mr. Bonar Law would be formally elected its leader. This was done by a unanimous vote. The meeting was held in Hotel Cecil. The Associated Press correspondent cabled that it was "attended by 439 members of the party, including 152 peers." He also noted that "those attending the meeting included Viscount Cave, Lord Serby, Lord Carson, Viscount Peel, the Duke of Devonshire, Earl Grey, Marquis Curzon, Sir Samuel Hoare, Admiral Sueter, and William Ormsby-Gore." The correspondent called attention to the further fact that "Mr. Bonar Law's election enabled him to accept the task of forming a Cabinet, thereby giving England her first Conservative Prime Minister since 1905." It was also pointed out that he is "the first Canadian to attain the Premiership, the first colonial-born to be a political leader in England, and the first man not college-bred to be elevated to the Premiership in modern times." The new Premier was "born in New Brunswick, 63 years ago, the son of a clergyman. He was educated at a grammar school in Hamilton and a high school in Glasgow, Scotland. He became an iron merchant in Glasgow, and has been Secretary for the Colonies [1915], Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House of Commons [1916], and Lord of the Privy Seal [1920]."

The London cable dispatches received here Monday afternoon stated that it was understood there that already the new Cabinet had been completed. This did not prove to be true. Through cablegrams filed later it became known that "the Cabinet is not yet complete, some difficulty having arisen with regard to some of the principal appointments, especially those of the law officers. It will be finished in the next day or two, and will then be announced." Immediately after his selection as head of the Conservative Party the new Premier "went to Buckingham Palace, where he had an audience with the King and informed him that he would be successful in forming a Ministry." Announcement was made also that, with his acceptance that afternoon "of the King's mandate to form a new Administration, Andrew Bonar Law thereupon became Premier, taking over control of the Government." The New York "Times" correspondent said that "in his speech accepting the leadership of the Conservatives this afternoon Mr. Bonar Law merely touched on the policy for which he stood, preferring to leave its exposition in full for the speech he will deliver Thursday in Glasgow, his own constituency. He spoke of the need of tranquillity, freedom from adventures and from commitments at home and abroad. He pledged himself to stand by the Irish treaty as long as the Irish continue to try honestly to carry it out, but he said he could free himself from all feeling of responsibility for what was now going on in Ireland. Moreover, he added a word as to his personal health. As is known, Mr. Bonar Law resigned eighteen months ago because he was in a dangerous condition due to increased blood pressure. He informed his hearers to-day that an eminent specialist had expressed the opinion he could now resume political work with a fair amount of safety, so he warned them that the experiment might be a failure and that he might once more have to retire from active life."

The further announcement was made that "dissolution [of Parliament] will take place Thursday, and nominations will be made Saturday, Nov. 4. Polling will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 15, the results in the urban constituencies being announced that night and in the county areas on the following day. The new Parliament is likely to be called together on Monday, Nov. 20." It became known also that "some feeling has been aroused by the choice of Wednesday for the polling day. Labor has for some time maintained that with so large a portion of the electorate belonging to the working classes the election should be held on a Saturday, which is a half holiday. The Conservatives reply that Saturday is an awkward day for the small shop-keepers, on whom the Conservatives reply for many votes, as they are obliged to keep their shops open to a late hour, and that with the workmen now only working eight hours a day and the polls staying open to 8 o'clock there is no reason why they should not cast their votes after they have got home. They add that as Wednesday is an early closing day for shops in the majority of country towns and districts, it is quite the best selection that can be made."

Tuesday forenoon the new Prime Minister had a conference "with William T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Provisional Government, with regard to Irish affairs. A statement was issued by the Colonial Office which said that "in view of the change in the Government, arrangements were made at the beginning of the week for a meeting between Mr. Bonar Law and Mr. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Government. The meeting took place this morning. Mr.

Cosgrave was accompanied by K. O'Higgins, Secretary of Home Affairs, and Hugh Kennedy, Law Officer." Calling attention specially to the speech that Andrew Bonar Law was scheduled to make in Glasgow on Thursday, the London representative of the Associated Press said: "Glasgow will be a centre of political interest this week. The new Prime Minister, Andrew Bonar Law, on Thursday will announce the details of his policy there, and 48 hours later former Premier Lloyd George will address a meeting, being accompanied to Scotland by Sir Robert Horne, who was his Chancellor of the Exchequer."

Reginald McKenna, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, and long a staunch Liberal, delivered an address before the City Conservative Association, by which he was said to have "created something of a sensation." He came out in support of Mr. Bonar Law's policy, and said in part: "The policy of the new Government is to be one to meet the economic conditions in which we now find ourselves. It is the only policy which can give us any hope to restore our economic life. The name of Stanley Baldwin as Chancellor of the Exchequer will be welcomed in the city. With industry in a deplorable condition the national expenditure has been maintained on a reckless scale and is a positive danger to our economic stability. We must seek a remedy for the evils which afflict us. We need a period of real peace, of strict economy in administration, and we need the maintenance of cordial international relations. I highly esteem the courage and conviction of Mr. Bonar Law. It seems to me his Government offers us the only prospect of stability. We shall have not only peace and retrenchment, but capable and faithful administration." Mr. McKenna said that "the alternative was the 'return of a Government led by a dominant personality.'" Continuing he said: "I do not believe that there is any danger of Bolshevism in England, but we have to look at the official policy declared by the leaders of the Labor Party. They have announced a program of a levy on capital and war on private enterprise. A levy on capital would be a wholly impracticable, wasteful and destructive method of raising money for the services of the State. In Russsia a war on private enterprise has been waged to its logical conclusion, and it has ended in civil tyranny and almost national destruction. After this experience, we could not regard the formation of a Labor Government on their declared policy with equanimity."

Andrew Bonar Law announced the principal members of his Cabinet Tuesday evening. The following morning they went to Buckingham Palace and received from the King the seals of office, thereby being formally installed. The retiring Ministers visited the King a few minutes before to relinquish their offices. In the new Cabinet Bonar Law will hold the portfolio of First Lord of the Treasury, as well as that of Premier. The personnel of the Ministry had been pretty accurately forecast, and, therefore, did not cause great surprise. Special attention was directed in the London cable dispatches Wednesday morning to the fact that "perhaps the most interesting part of the appointments is their omissions. The die-hards have come out poorly, Lord Salisbury, their leader, being the only one included in the present list. As Lord President of the Council he has a post of dignity, but without any department duties; there is, however, plenty of opportunity to reward his followers in minor posts." The promotion of Stanley Baldwin from the Presidency of the Board of Trade to the Chancellorship of the Exchequer "came in for a high compliment from Reginald McKenna as representative of big banking interests. He was President of the Board of Trade in the last Ministry and stood out for his fight in the Cabinet for rigorous application of the Safeguarding of Industries Act."

In an address on Thursday before the West Scotland Unionist Association in Glasgow, the Prime Minister outlined his policy in part by saying, "my strong belief is that this nation needs above everything else rest and tranquillity, and my policy will be a negative one in this sense." The Premier caused to be issued in London Thursday afternoon a manifesto in which he declared that one of the tasks of the Unionist Party if returned to power, "will be to make good the Anglo-Irish Treaty, both in letter and spirit, and to co-operate with the Irish Government." The manifesto also declares that it will be Government's earnest aim, if returned, "to give wholehearted and practical support to the League of Nations, to fulfill the obligations Great Britain has undertaken abroad, not to extend her commitments, but preferably to curtail them, and to maintain friendship and good understanding with the United States. If the Dominions approve, a trade conference will be called." The Glasgow correspondent of the New York "Times" said yesterday morning that "Mr. Bonar Law advocated practically nothing to which Mr. Lloyd George could not heartily subscribe, and the difference between the new and the old administration seems likely to lie in the essential difference between the characters, personalities and methods of the two leaders. As for Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Bonar Law freely admitted that he was the greatest personality of the day in British politics."

King George, on Thursday morning, signed a proclamation dissolving Parliament and ordering the assembling of the new Parliament on Nov. 20. It became known also that "thirteen hundred candidates have up to now entered the campaign for membership in the House of Commons. Of these about 425 are Conservatives. In round numbers Labor has 400 candidates in the field, the Asquithian or Free Liberals 300, and the Lloyd Georgian or National Liberals, 200. The former Prime Minister is vigorously striving to increase the number of candidates under his banner." The Associated Press correspondent in London pointed out that "to obtain an outright majority in the new Parliament any one party would have to elect 315 candidates. It will be seen, therefore, that the Conservatives and Laborites are the only two with enough candidates in the field to obtain an independent majority. Their organizations have been put into far better shape than those of the other parties."

Former Premier Lloyd George is likely to make speeches at frequent intervals during the coming weeks. At any rate, he made one in Leeds a week ago to-day in which he intimated that such was his intention. In Leeds he appeared before the Coalition Liberals. He asserted that "party or country is now the issue." This assertion followed a reference to the meeting of leaders of the Conservative Party at the Carlton Club in London, whose vote to withdraw from the Coalition precipitated the downfall of his Ministry. At the very outset he vigorously declared that the Coalition "has been brought to an end not because it has ceased to serve the nation, that was not the case. It has been brought to an end because the [Conservative] party was not getting enough out of it, and it is for the people of this country to decide whether the party comes first—or the nation first. I stand for the people."

Outlining the policies which he was confident the new Government must adopt if it is to succeed, the head of the retiring Coalition Cabinet said: "I stand where I was. I stand for sane, sound progress. I have now for a good many years been steeped in the great events, the greatest events this world has witnessed for many centuries. I have been intimately associated with their direction. I have become closely acquainted with the real character of this great people. I know what they are capable of achieving, what they are capable of enduring, what they are capable of sacrificing for a great cause. And after that experience I promise you, the people of this country, who for six years have given me their trust, I promise you that whatever the future brings forth I will do nothing mean, nothing paltry. I promise you that I will play no part which is unworthy of the confidence placed in me by the people of this country at the greatest period in the history of the Empire."

Before leaving London for the Leeds address he made his "final official appearance as Prime Minister of England at the reception given by the city of London in Guildhall to the Prince of Wales on his return from India." The New York "Times" correspondent said that "it was an interesting moment. Here was a statesman who had just fallen from power coming to bear his part as the head of the Government in paying honor to the heir to the throne. To many, if not the majority of the gathering, his resignation was welcome, but he had rendered in his time conspicuous service to the State, and partisanship was entirely out of place on such an occasion." At the luncheon that followed the retiring Prime Minister was called upon to propose the toast to the Crown Prince. The former was received with great applause. In fact, the "Times" representative said that "it was some minutes before Mr. Lloyd George could begin, and he seemed almost taken aback by the warmth of his welcome."

Mr. Lloyd George made another speech on Wednesday. The occasion was a meeting of the Coalition Liberal members of Parliament. Referring to the Coalition Government, of which he was the head, the former Premier said: "We have stood for national unity—for unity of the men of all creeds, parties and sections. Our object first was the winning of the Great War, and afterwards extricating the country out of its after-war difficulties. It was our policy then, and it is our policy now." Speaking of the present political need in Great Britain and the possibility of a Conservative victory at the forthcoming election, he said: "The country's interest is the thing that matters, at the beginning, at the end, and all the time. The peril is not over. Alone the Conservative Party cannot defend the great interests which are our common concern. The Conservatives may win the next victory. I doubt that, but supposing they do, that is not the end of the war between the two great conflicting ideas of the organization of society. Our business is to see that this blunder shall not do harm to our country. You must have a sufficiently strong group in the Commons not to embarrass, not to harass, but to help—a sufficiently strong group to make it impossible for any Government to plunge the country into the extremes of either Left or Right, a party that will keep the middle course of safety and security until Britain gets through."

Again stating his own position, Lloyd George asserted: "I will support any party and any Government that pursues a policy of peace, economy and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary, and does it efficiently." Turning to America, he asserted that "Great Britain must pay America all her debts." He urged "unity in action between Great Britain and the United States." With respect to German reparations, he said that "we should not attempt to impose upon Germany any payment which is beyond her capacity. What is within her capacity she ought to pay." He added that "I am strongly in favor of the renewal of a pact with Russia."

In an address Thursday evening at the anniversary of Whitfields' Tabernacle in London, he said to the crowd outside that could not get in: "I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the wonderful welcome you have given me. I like people who stand by their friends. I have stood by people for 30 years, and I intend to do so as long as I live, and I know they will stand by me." He left London yesterday for Glasgow to make a political speech.

With the breaking up of the Coalition Government in England all of the political parties and factions have come forward with statements of their respective positions. However the political situation in that country may shape up a few months hence, it is certain that the Labor Party will be more aggressive than ever, and may play a still more important part even than heretofore. An outline of its position, therefore, is particularly interesting and important. In a manifesto issued on Wednesday in London the party advocates "removal of the burden of the national debt through the creation of a war debt redemption fund by a special graduated levy on fortunes exceeding £5,000. The taxation of land values is advocated. It further declares for revision of the peace treaty and German reparations, for an international conference to arrange the fredom of the Straits, for independence in Egypt, and self-government in India. The manifesto says labor will not penalize thrift, but will require some restitution from the profiteers out of the huge fortunes made in the war. The party declares itself against revolution and says 'Labor's program is the best bulwark against violent upheaval and class wars.' A democratic Government can be made effective in this country without bloodshed or violence. The Labor policy is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the nation's wealth by constitutional means. This is neither Bolshevism nor communism, but common sense and justice. This is Labor's alternative to reaction and revolution."

The further decline in the German mark has given rise to a great number of rumors and reports as to the financial policy that might be adopted by the Government. In a cablegram Tuesday morning the Berlin correspondent of the New York "Times" said that "Chancellor Wirth this [Monday] morning startled political circles by submitting for discussion at a Cabinet Council the question whether, in view of the utter collapse of the mark, Germany ought not to declare general reparation bankruptcy and default in payment in kind as well as in cash. There is undeniably plenty of Teuton sentiment against further reparations, whether in cash, kind, services or any other form. Late this evening Dr. Wirth was still conferring with party leaders as to advisability of such a dramatic move. It is held to be of peculiar significance that before his meeting with the party leaders the Chancellor had a long conference with Hugo Stinnes on whether Germany could or should attempt to continue material payment under present conditions." In a subsequent dispatch from the German capital it was stated that "Stinnes is understood to have advised against such a course and to have recommended that Germany faithfully fulfill the financial agreement which he, on the part of Germany, negotiated with Lubersac on the part of France." The correspondent added that "Stinnes admitted to the Chancellor that the agreement had not as yet worked out as well as he expected, and admitted, also, the decline of the mark. But he pointed out that unforeseen difficulties had been placed in the way of the agreement, and concluded that he and the French were as anxious as ever that it be fulfilled. He strongly opposed the policy of declaring Germany bankrupt."

Word came from Paris Wednesday morning that "after three days' discussion of M. Barthou's counter-proposals to Sir John Bradbury's plan for a two-year moratorium for Germany, the Reparations Commission to-day decided to go to Berlin on Sunday [to-morrow] to discuss with the German Government in a friendly spirit the means whereby in the Commission's opinion Germany might be helped to balance her budget and stabilize the mark. The Commission's decision is in many ways a compromise between the British and French points of view." The correspondent added that "it is recognized by the French Government that the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and the communications made by the German delegates during the Peace Conference on the nature, duties and status of the Reparations Commission do not permit such a degree of control of German finance as M. Barthou proposed. The consent of the German Government must, therefore, be obtained to any such measures, and this is what will be sought. The French, too, have come to realize the urgency of the situation. M. Barthou, who is in close touch with Poincare, is understood to be prepared to acquiesce with the Bradbury proposal that a two-year moratorium be granted, in fact, if not in name. It is probable that in order to cover these two years a system of payments by bonds which was adopted for the last four months of this year will be again resorted to and further extended."

Coupled with this news came the statement from Berlin, through an Associated Press dispatch that "it is semi-officially announced that the German Government will invite a number of prominent financial experts to come to Berlin and discuss measures for the stabilization of the mark. Among the experts to be invited are Prof. John Maynard Keynes, the British financial expert; Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, of Cornell and New York universities; Prof. Cassell of Sweden, recently reported to have accepted the post of financial adviser to the Soviet Government, and Dr. J. Ter-Meulen, author of the Ter-Meulen scheme of paying indemnities. A leading official of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York will be invited. The full list of experts will not be made public until their acceptances have been received."

From Berlin came the definite announcement also that "the Reichstag to-day [Tuesday] prolonged President Ebert's tenure of office by adopting by 310 to 77 votes the amendment to the Constitution declaring the Provisional President elected by the National Assembly to be the legal first President of the German Republic till June 30 1925." The dispatch added that the President had accepted.

Commenting upon the intention of members of the Reparations Commission to go to Berlin to take up the financial situation in Germany again, the Paris correspondent of the New York "Times" observed that "while it has been announced that the mission of the Reparations Commission which leaves here Sunday for Berlin is 'to study means of stabilizing the mark,' its real purpose is to ascertain how much Allied control of German finances the Berlin Government will accept without raising a row. It is true that under the Versailles Treaty the Allies have no power to interfere in interior German administration. It is also true that under the Versailles Treaty the Allies have power to do a large number of things in case Germany does not pay. It may be put up to Germany as a proposition of choosing the lesser of two evils. Germany may be forced to chose between having strong Allied control of her Governmental expenditures and taxation on the one hand or occupation of the Ruhr and imposition of Allied taxes in the Rhineland on the other. The French go along with the British in saying that a suspension for some time to come must be granted to Germany. But where the French and British split is as to what shall be demanded in return from Germany to ensure she will some day resume payments. And here it is a question of degree of difference which hinges on whether or not one is to place confidence in the Germans." The Associated Press correspondnt in Berlin cabled that "the financial critics profess to see in to-day's improvement of the mark over New York's closing rate of Tuesday, an indication that the arrival here next week of M. Barthou, Sir John Bradbury and other members of the Reparations Commission presages something more concrete than informal discussions with the heads of the German Government. In short, the Berlin optimists believe that the forthcoming pourparlers will inaugurate a decisive realignment of the Entente's reparations policies, hastened through the precipitate collapse of the mark. The Government learned of the decision of the Reparations Commission to visit Berlin during Tuesday's session of the Reichstag, and the unexpected news prompted Chancellor Wirth to abandon his plan to discuss reparations and the stabilization of the mark before the Reichstag." In a Paris dispatch yesterday morning William C. Potter, President of the Guaranty Trust Co., was quoted as saying that "he had not received any invitation from the German Government requesting him to come to Berlin to advise means for the stabilization of the mark. Mr. Potter said that he was sailing for New York on Nov. 1 and that it would be difficult for him to change his plans if the invitation is received later."

The further severe decline in the French franc has directed attention afresh to financial conditions in that country. It was refreshing to read yesterday morning in Paris cable dispatches that "M. De Lasteyrie, Minister of Finance, took part in the budget debate to-night [Thursday] and his remarks were applauded by every section of the House with the exception of the Extremists. He sought to establish that France's ordinary budget would be normally equilibrated in two or three years, thanks to increased revenue from present taxation and by the return of the liberated regions into the taxpaying category. Recoverable expenses, 'in which France had advanced ninety-six billions to Germany,' he declared constituted a political, not a financial, problem, which ought to receive solution at the Brussels conference, as to the early calling of which M. De Lasteyrie did not seem to entertain the slightest doubt. The Minister laid the Government's financial policy before the Chamber, pointing out that since 1913 all the budgets of the world had shown deficits. Even the United States, Switzerland and Holland were behind between 20 and 30%. France's allies had abruptly broken off financial solidarity, and in consequence exchanges had mounted and the greatest economic crisis had developed in their countries." This would seem to indicate that France is beginning to approach her problems from the right viewpoint.

Largely by reason of the increased activities of the Fascisti Party, a distinctly disturbing political situation has developed in Italy. Prof. Benito Mussolini, leader of that party, just before leaving Naples, following the adjournment of the party's congress in that city, was quoted as saying, "I take a solemn oath that either the Government of the country must be given peacefully to the Fascisti or we will take it by force." Michele Bianchi, Secretary of the Fascisti, was reported to have asserted that the party now has 500,000 members, "all of whom were determined to bring about the regeneration of Italy." He was quoted also as declaring that "the present Chamber no longer represents the country, and any Cabinet formed by it would be illegal, and it will be the duty of the Fascisti to restore its legality by themselves seizing the Government."

Word came from the Italian capital yesterday morning that "Premier Facta and his entire Ministry resigned this [Thursday] evening, following the hostile attitude of the Fascisti against it and the ordering by the Fascisti of a general mobilization of their forces throughout the country if the Cabinet declined to give up power. Benito Mussolini, head of the Fascisti, has called together all the military leaders of that organization and simultaneously has ordered all the military sections of the Fascisti to keep in readiness the 800,000 workers who have joined the Fascisti organization, and have been ordered to cooperate at an opportune moment with the military sections. This is interpreted here as preparation for the assumption of power by the Fascisti." Premier Facta has summoned Signor Mussolini to Rome "to discuss the possibility of an agreement between the Government and the Fascisti."

Comparatively little regarding the Near East situation has appeared in the European cable advices this week. Former Premier Lloyd George and other statesmen in England have referred to it in their political speeches. Preparation is being made for the peace conference provided for in the armistice agreement recently signed by representatives of the Allies and Mustapha Kemal Pasha. In a cablegram from Paris yesterday morning, the Paris correspondent of the New York "Times" said that "it was announced at the Quai d'Orsay this [Thursday] afternoon that invitations had been issued to-day to the Near Eastern peace conference. The United States is invited both to the Turkish conference proper and the auxiliary conference which is to establish a regime for control of the Straits. It has been proposed that the Powers in the League of Nations be entrusted with the guardianship of the Dardanelles. The invitations are issued by England, France and Italy, and the countries invited to the main conference are, besides these three and the United States, Greece, Rumania, Jugoslavia, Japan and Turkey (both Constantinople and Angora Governments). At the same time a radio message has been sent to Moscow inviting the Russian Government to send delegates to discuss the Straits regime. Bulgaria is also invited for this purpose. The date of the conference remains set, Nov. 13, at Lauzanne." In a Washington dispatch to the New York "Tribune" yesterday morning, the statement was made that "the United States Government will have an unofficial observer at the proposed Near East peace conference in Italy, but the American representative will not have plenipotentiary powers, nor will he be authorized to commit this Government to any agreement that may be worked out at the conclave."

Announcement was made in a dispatch from Budapest Thursday morning, Oct. 26, that the Hungarian Bank rate had been advanced to 8%. Otherwise, no change has been noted in official discount rates at leading European centres from 8% in Berlin; 5½% in Madrid; 5% in France, Denmark and Norway; 4½% in Belgium and Sweden; 4% in Holland; 3½% in Switzerland, and 3% in London. Cablegrams from London yesterday reported that the Imperial Bank of India had raised its rate of discount from 4% to 5%. Open market discount rates in London were only slightly changed, being quoted at 2¼@2⅜% for short bills, against 2 5-16, last week, and 2⅜@2 7-16% for three months, unchanged from last week. Call money was a shade firmer, and advanced to 1¾%, but receded to 1⅝% yesterday, as against 1½% last week. At Paris the open market discount rate continues at 4½%, and ½@¾% in Switzerland, unchanged.

The Bank of England statement for the week ending Oct. 26 reported a small loss, £2,920, in gold holdings, which brought the stock of gold to £127,-432,534, as against £128,413,527 last year. In 1920 the total was £123,199,140. Moreover, circulation increased £197,000, so that total reserve was reduced £200,000, and the proportion of reserve to liability fell to 19.14%, as against 19.93% last week. It is noted with considerable satisfaction, however, that the reserve ratio is now being maintained at nearly double what it was in 1920, namely 10.26%. At this time a year ago it was 13.11%. Substantial increases were noted in all of the deposit accounts, public deposits having expanded £2,983,000 and "other" deposits £1,013,000. The Bank increased its temporary loans to the Government by £1,596,000, while loans on other securities expanded £2,599,000. Total reserve now stands at £23,995,000, which compares with £22,947,697 in 1921 and £14,060,580 a year earlier. Loans aggregate £71,436,000, in comparison with £82,203,184 and £76,061,224, one and two years ago, respectively. Circulation is £121,887,000. Last year the total was £123,915,830 and in 1920 £127,588,560. Clearings through the London banks for the week were £683,813,000, against £715,447,000 a week ago and £685,431,000 last year. At the regular weekly meeting of the Bank governors the minimum discount rate was left unchanged at 3%. We append a statement of comparisons of the principal items of the Bank of England's returns for a series of years:

The Bank of France in its weekly statement shows a further small gain of 209,250 francs in its gold item this week. The Bank's gold holdings, therefore, now aggregate 5,533,159,925 francs, comparing with 5,523,865,962 francs on the corresponding date last year and with 5,485,728,846 francs the year previous; of the foregoing amounts 1,897,967,050 francs were held abroad in 1922 and 1,948,367,056 francs in both 1921 and 1920. During the week silver gained 188,000 francs, Treasury deposits rose 17,469,000 francs and general deposits were augmented by 127,254,000 francs. On the other hand, bills discounted fell off 41,467,000 francs, while advances were reduced 17,750,000 francs. A further contraction of 435,171,000 francs occurred in note circulation, bringing the total outstanding down to 36,696,634,000 francs. This contrasts with 37,154,458,915 francs at this time last year and with 39,084,405,885 francs the year previous. In 1914, just prior to the outbreak of war, the amount was only 6,683,184,785 francs. Comparisons of the various items in this week's return with the statement of last week and corresponding dates in both 1921 and 1920 are as follows:

In its statement, issued as of Oct. 23, the Imperial Bank of Germany revealed further striking changes. Increases and declines running into the billions of marks have now become almost a matter of course, and probably the only feature which attracted attention was a further expansion in note circulation of 35,466,969,000 marks—the largest single increase as yet recorded. Treasury and loan association notes were increased 7,918,009,000 marks, bills of exchange and checks 12,832,617,000 marks and discount and Treasury bills 16,099,168,000 marks. There was also a heavy expansion in "other liabilities," namely, 3,951,755,000 marks, while deposits fell off 3,951,407,000 marks. Smaller changes included a gain in total coin and bullion of 8,520,000 marks, an increase in notes of other banks of 1,986,000 marks, in advances 217,845,000 marks and in investments 5,646,000 marks. A decline of 1,616,474,000 marks was shown in other assets. Gold holdings were unchanged, and are the same as a week ago, viz., 1,004,854,000 marks, against 1,023,632,000 marks in 1921 and 1,091,569,000 marks a year earlier. As a result of the enormous addition to note circulation the volume outstanding has reached the collossal total of 409,973,270,000 marks, which compares with 88,144,195,000 marks last year, 62,066,107,000 marks in 1920 and 35,698,360,000 marks in December 1919.

The most noteworthy feature of the Federal Reserve Bank statement, issued on Thursday afternoon, was a substantial decline in bill holdings. For the system as a whole the amount decreased $40,800,000, bringing the total down to $727,090,000, as against $1,371,065,000 a year ago. In the New York bank, bill purchases in the open market and rediscounts of "all other" showed declines, but there was an increase in rediscounting of Government secured paper, leaving a net reduction in bill holdings of $23,000,000, to $164,596,000, in comparison with $261,441,000 last year. In keeping with this the member banks reserve account was also reduced, locally about $96,000,000, to $685,869,000, and for the combined system $121,000,000, to $1,799,931,000. Earning assets also fell off, for the combined banks, about $79,000,000. Federal Reserve notes in circulation showed shrinkage in both statements, approximately $17,000,000 nationally, and $10,000,000 at the local institution. Gold reserves were only slightly changed for the system, but at the New York bank there was a loss of $19,000,000 in transactions with interior banks. As a result of the week's operations, there was a gain in the ratio of reserves, both in the local bank and for the system. The former reported a ratio of 83.4%, up 4.6%, and the latter 77.6%, an advance of 2.4%. The statement came as somewhat of a surprise to bankers who had anticipated a further expansion in the demand for credit, instead of the material contraction actually revealed.

Preparations for payment of the Government's new bond offering were responsible for quite important changes in the New York Clearing House statement of last Saturday, which included an expansion in loans of $126,765,000 and substantial gains in surplus reserves. Net demand deposits increased $54,376,000, to $3,945,772,000, a total that is exclusive of Government deposits to the amount of $110,802,000. This latter represents an increase of no less than $84,969,000 for the week. Net time deposits showed a gain of $13,781,000, to $433,804,000. Cash in own vaults of members of the Federal Reserve Bank was reduced $1,488,000, to $58,094,000 (not counted as reserve). Reserves in own vaults of trust companies and State banks increased $46,000, while the reserves kept in other depositories by State banks and trust companies expanded $401,000. Member banks added to their reserve credits at the Reserve Bank $33,377,000, and this was in the main instrumental in bringing about a further gain in reserves above legal requirements of $26,286,000, which, after eliminating last week's deficit, left a total of excess reserve of $23,953,720. The above figures for surplus are on the basis of reserves above legal requirements of 13% for member banks of the Federal Reserve System, but not including cash in vaults to the amount of $58,094,000 held by these banks on Saturday last.

The local money market did not attract much attention or cause much comment until Thursday. Earlier in the week the passing observation was made that the tone was decidedly easy. This applied to time money as well as call money. On Wednesday the former was in increased supply at 5% and no bids above 4¾% were reported. The same day call money was freely offered at 4¼@4½%. The former was the renewal rate the next morning. Naturally considerable surprise was expressed in speculative circles when loans began to be called and the rate on day-to-day accommodations on Thursday advanced rapidly to 6%. The abruptness and extent of the change within less than twenty-four hours were what attracted most attention. It is true that the first of the month is only a few days off. The usual preparation must be made for interest and dividend disbursements at that time. Ordinarily they are not as large as on Oct. 1 or Dec. 1. It must be borne in mind by Wall Street borrowers that the demand for money from other sources is steadily increasing, and that those demands are supposed to be given the preference. Some ordinarily good judges of the money market are still disposed to doubt that money will be materially higher during the rest of this year. A firmer tendency would not be illogical. The tone of both call and time money was easier yesterday. With the greatly disturbed political situation in England and Italy and the further uneasiness over the position of Germany's currency and finances there is no reason to look for large offerings of European securities in this market in the near future. Reports of negotiations with respect to various South American loans continue to come to hand. So far they have not been particularly definite. In all probability a loan for perhaps $50,000,000 to Cuba will be floated here in due time. But apparently even this is not imminent. Government withdrawals of funds from local institutions were somewhat above the average this week. Financial institutions generally have been reported as sellers of standard bonds for two weeks for more. It is claimed that this step was taken quite largely in preparation to meet an increased commercial demand for money. The opinion is quite general that if high grade bonds go much lower a renewed buying demand will develop. The final returns relative to the offering of $500,000,000 4¼% Government bonds were gratifying.

Dealing with specific rates for money, call loans this week have ranged between 4@6%, as against 4½@6% last week. Monday a flat rate of 4½% was quoted all day, this being the high, the low and the ruling figure. On Tuesday there was a decline to 4%, although renewals were again negotiated at 4½%, which was the high. Increased ease developed on Wednesday, so that call funds renewed at 4¼%; the highest was 4½% and the low 4¼%. Thursday 4¼% was still the basis for renewals, but just before the close a high quotation of 6% was named; the minimum figure was 4¼%. Friday's range was 5@5½% and 5½% for renewals. The closing flurry was due mainly to Government financing. Figures here given apply to both mixed collateral and all-industrial loans alike. For fixed-date maturities very little change was noted and trading continued dull and featureless. Time money was freely offered, but the demand was light; hence the volume of business transacted was small. Quotations were not changed from 4¾% for sixty days and 4¾@5% for ninety days and four, five and six months' money the same as last week.

Mercantile paper rates have not been changed from 4¼@4½% for sixty and ninety days' endorsed bills receivable and six months' names of choice character, while names less well known continue to require 4½@4¾%. A fairly active inquiry was noted, with dealings more diversified than for quite some time. Offerings, however, were limited, so that the market was called quiet.

Banks' and bankers' acceptances were firm with a further advance of about ¼ of 1%. As a result only a moderate volume of business was transacted. The supply of prime names was not large and the demand restricted. Brokers are again looking for a broader market next month, but this will depend largely upon conditions in the call loan market. Many of the larger institutions, both local and out of town, have for the time being withdrawn from the market. For call loans against bankers' acceptances the posted rate is 4%, against 4½% last week. The Acceptance Council makes the discount rates on prime bankers' acceptances eligible for purchase by the Federal Reserve banks 4⅛% bid and 4% asked for bills running 30, 60 and 90 days; 4¼% bid and 4% asked for bills running for 120 days, and 4½% bid and 4¼% asked for 150 days. Open market quotations are as follows:

Sterling exchange this week was in neglect, attention having apparently been transferred for the moment to the rates on the Continental countries. The result was that while British rates shared to a certain extent in the general downward movement, the recession was far less pronounced than in the case of francs and lire. Demand bills after opening at 4 46⅝, declined to 4 43½, then recovered some of the loss and finished at 4 45 15-16. Offerings of commercial bills continue unusually small for this time of the year, and as speculative interests were not particularly active, trading was of negligible proportions. Changes in British politics, including the passing of the Lloyd George Ministry and the appointment of Andrew Bonar Law as Premier, had little more than a sentimental effect on exchange rates. The market, it is true, is in a waiting mood, but operators appear chiefly concerned with reparations settlements, debt funding and other financial problems of a similar character, likely to influence the future of foreign trade. The recently enacted tariff law also continues to be a subject of active discussion.

Bankers, interviewed on the subject, are a good deal mixed in their views on the exchange situation, especially in view of the recent advance in sterling at a time when all indications seemed to point to a sharp break. In the natural course of events, offerings of bills against commodity shipments should show a material increase during the next few weeks; monetary conditions are rather tighter, both here and abroad; London quotations in the absence of favorable developments, may continue to work lower, while selling for the purpose of accumulating dollars is a factor likely to be reckoned with at intervals for a good while to come. All these are influences calculated to depress values. On the other hand, gold continues to arrive in substantial volume, underlying economic and financial conditions in Great Britain are steadily improving, while the fact that another installment of interest on British indebtedness to this country is expected in due course, will undoubtedly make for increased stability and higher price levels.

As to the day-to-day rates, sterling exchange on Saturday last was irregular and demand declined to 4 45⅝@4 46⅝, cable transfers to 4 45⅞@4 46⅞ and sixty days to 4 44⅛@4 45⅛; trading, however, was dull and listless. On Monday a reactionary trend was again evident and rates further declined, losing about 1 cent to 4 44⅜@4 45⅝ for demand, 4 44⅝@4 45⅞ for cable transfers and 4 42⅞@4 44⅛ for sixty days; this was due to foreign selling accompanied by lower London cable rates. Unsettling European news brought about still lower levels on Tuesday and demand sold down to 4 43½@4 44¾, cable transfers to 4 43¾@4 45 and sixty days to 4 42@4 43¼. Wednesday's market was irregular with a declining tendency, so that the day's range was 4 43⅞@4 44¼ for demand, 4 44⅛@4 44½ for cable transfers and 4 42⅜@4 42¾ for sixty days. Rather more activity was noted on Thursday with a fractional advance due mainly to short covering and demand rose to 4 43⅞@4 44⅝, cable transfers to 4 44⅛@4 44⅞ and sixty days to 4 42⅜@4 43⅛. On Friday the undertone was steady and prices advanced on slightly more active trading; the range was 4 44⅝@4 46⅜ for demand, 4 44⅞@4 46⅝ for cable transfers and 4 43⅛@4 44⅞ for sixty days. Closing quotations were 4 44 7-16 for sixty days, 4 45 15-16 for demand and 4 46 3-16 for cable transfers. Commercial sight bills finished at 4 44⅛, sixty days at 4 42⅝, ninety days at 4 41½, documents for payment (sixty days) at 4 42⅞ and seven-day grain bills at 4 43⅝. Cotton and grain for payment closed at 4 44⅛.

Gold arrivals this week included: $1,000,000 on the Majestic and two boxes of gold ingots on the Baltic, both from England, and six cases of gold bars on the Drottningholm from Sweden valued at $300,000. Smaller arrivals from South America and elsewhere were as follows:

Six boxes and 18 bars of gold on the Bridgetown from Cartagena; 4 cases of gold ingots and 2 cases of silver on the Santa Luisa from Valparaiso; 1 box of gold coins on the Toloa from Cristobal, 8 cases of gold and gold bars on the Alvarado from Tumaco, 39 bars of gold and small shipments of gold and platinum and a few small consignments of gold on the Mayaro from Trinidad. Gold to the amount of $1,000,000 is said to be on its way on board the steamers Oropesa and Caronia.

Movements in the Continental exchanges were attended by nervousness and hesitancy and the trend was again downward. Uneasiness over the European political situation and more especially the latest developments in the reparations wrangle, were the predominant factor in the week's operations, and the market proved unusually susceptible to unfavorable news. The result was a further sharp slump in rates on nearly all of the leading European exchanges. Francs, marks and lire alike established new low records, quotations being forced down sensationally under the pressure of heavy and persistent foreign selling. Trading in our market was generally dull and lifeless and fluctuations were largely a reflex of movements at important foreign centres. Early in the week sentiment was adversely affected by the proposal of the German Chancellor that Germany go into bankruptcy as far as reparations payments are concerned. The immediate result was a break in the price of marks to 0.02⅛. Concurrently with this, French exchange fell 28 points, to 7.06 for checks, while later there was an additional loss to 6.80. Belgian francs were similarly affected and the quotation dropped nearly 55 points, to 6.30. Lire, which have been comparatively steady of late, suffered in common with the rest and fell off to 3.83, which is 35 points under last week's closing figure. Greek exchange remained at or near 1.95. Exchange on the Central European countries was also lower, and Polish marks touched a new low of 0.00076. The weakness was in sympathy with the break in reichsmarks. Czechoslovakian crowns lost about 13 points, to 3.23, but Rumanian and Finnish currencies were not materially changed.

The decline in francs and lire constituted the feature of the week, and was attributed, in the case of the former, at least, to selling in Paris, also by London bankers, for the purpose of accumulating sterling and dollars. Some of this is said to be incidental to heavy purchases of Argentine wheat and other commodities, but a large proportion of the selling was of speculative origin, induced by adverse political developments. As pointed out a week ago, operators take a somewhat unfavorable view of the future of French exchange. The opinion, however, is gaining ground that this is being somewhat overdone, as recent returns on French foreign trade show distinct improvement, while reports received from the French centre show an improving tendency in financial affairs. Much will depend upon France's ability to formulate some satisfactory plan for collecting reparations payments. The pressure upon lire arose from entirely different causes, since the indemnity issue does not figure largely in Italian affairs. Heavy buying of copper and other commodities, together with a decline in the demand for tourist remittances; also political unsettlement due to the movements of the Fascisti were held to be chiefly responsible. In the later dealings some recovery was noted, particularly in marks, which was ascribed to a prospective issue of German gold mark treasury bills.

Bankers here, however, regard the movement with considerable disfavor. The German Government is reported as endeavoring to stop the headlong downward movement, but thus far with indifferent success. Offerings of commercial bills against shipments of cotton and grain figured quite prominently in the Continental exchanges this week. At the extreme close the usual rush to cover after an extended decline, brought a rallying tendency and some of the losses were recovered.

The London check rate in Paris finished at 63.75, against 60.18 last week. In New York sight bills on the French centre closed at 7.06¼, against 7.36; cable transfers at 7.07¼, against 7.37; commercial sight bills at 7.04¼, against 7.34, and commercial sixty days at 7.01¼, against 7.31 last week. Antwerp francs closed at 6.56 for checks and 6.57 for cable transfers, against 6.81½ and 6.82½ the previous week. Closing rates for Berlin marks were 0.02 9-16 for both checks and cable remittances, as compared with 0.02¾ a week earlier. Austrian kronen, which have been maintained, finished at 0.0013½ (one rate), against 0.0014 a week ago. For lire the close was 4.04 for bankers' sight bills and 4.05 for cable transfers, in comparison with 4.18 and 4.19 in the week preceding. Exchange on Czechoslovakia finished at 3.15, against 3.30; Bucharest at 0.65, against 0.63; Poland at 0.00076, against 0.00095, and Finland at 2.40, against 2.39 last week. Greek exchange closed at 2.05 for checks and 2.10 for cable transfers, against 2.05 and 2.10 on Friday of last week.

As to rates on the former neutral exchanges, there is very little new to report and the same general tendencies were noted. Guilders continue strong, though losing fractionally at the close. Swiss francs also lost ground in the final dealings, receding about 22 points. Scandinavian exchange is steady without appreciable change. Spanish pesetas were easier, declining to 15.19 and finishing at 15.28 for checks, against 15.37, the previous close. Trading was dull and featureless, except for the sporadic attempts of speculative interests first on one side of the market, then on the other.

Bankers' sight on Amsterdam finished at 38.98, against 39.09; cable cable transfers at 39.07, against 39.18; commercial sight at 38.97, against 39.08, and commercial sixty days at 38.63, against 38.74 a week ago. Final quotations on Swiss francs were 17.98 for bankers' sight bills and 18.00 for cable transfers. A week ago the close was 18.26 and 18.28. Copenhagen checks finished at 20.02 and cable transfers at 20.07, against 20.00 and 20.05. Checks on Sweden closed at 26.70 and cable remittances at 26.75, against 26.72 and 26.77, while checks on Norway finished at 17.95 and cable transfers at 18.00, against 17.61 and 17.66 the week before. Spanish pesetas closed the week at 15.28 for checks and 15.29 for cable transfers, comparing with 15.37 and 15.38 a week ago.

With regard to South American remittances, changes have not been important. Argentine checks finished at 36.00 and cable transfers at 36.25, against 36.25 and 36.75 last week, while Brazil was firmer, closing at 11.50 for checks and 11.55 for cable transfers, in comparison with 11.35 and 11.40. Chilean exchange was up fractionally at 14, against 13⅞, but Peru remained at 3 91, unchanged.

Far Eastern exchange moved more quietly and prices were steadier, reflecting less erratic movements in the price of silver. Hong Kong closed at 55⅛@55⅜, against 55⅜@55⅝; Shanghai, 76¼@76½, against 75¼@75½; Yokohama, 48¼@48½, against 48¼@48½; Manila, 49¾@50, against 49¼@49½; Singapore, 52¼@52½ (unchanged); Bombay, 29¼@29½ (unchanged), and Calcutta, 29½@29¾, against 29¾@30.

Pursuant to the requirements of Section 522 of the Tariff Act of 1922, the Federal Reserve Bank is now certifying daily to the Secretary of the Treasury the buying rate for cable transfers on the different countries of the world. We give below the record for the week just past:

The New York Clearing House banks, in their operations with interior banking institutions, have gained $5,027,352 net in cash as a result of the currency movements for the week ending Oct. 26. Their receipts from the interior have aggregated $5,881,052, while the shipments have reached $853,700, as per the following table:

As the Sub-Treasury was taken over by the Federal Reserve Bank on Dec. 6 1920, it is no longer possible to show the effect of Government operations on the Clearing House institutions. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York was creditor at the Clearing House each day as follows:

Note.—The foregoing heavy credits reflect the huge mass of checks which come to the New York Reserve Bank from all parts of the country in the operation of the Federal Reserve System's par collection scheme. These large credit balances, however, show nothing as to the results of the Reserve Bank's operations with the Clearing House institutions. They represent only one side of the account, as checks drawn on the Reserve Bank itself are presented directly to the bank and never go through the Clearing House.

THE RE-BALKANIZING OF THE BALKANS AND THE RETURN OF THE TURKS.

Just a year ago our attention was called by an exceptionally well-informed author* to the Balkanizing of Europe; to-day the boot is on the other leg. Europe was then the centre of unrest, while the Balkans faced new and promising opportunities for peace and prosperity. Meanwhile Europe's disturbance has become deeper and more serious, and the Balkan States find themselves set back into conditions as nearly as possible identical with those of the past and as actively dangerous.

The European States were meeting then in the Washington Conference, and there was ground for hope that a new day for the peace of the world was to dawn, a hope to which the Conference without delay gave vitality and world-wide importance. The example, if not the leadership of America in the world's economic and political development was looked for, and the Federation of the European States in some form seemed possible. While the material destruction wrought by the war was still but imperfectly repaired, the necessity of united effort to secure friendly relations and to establish peace was growingly apparent. Respect for local autonomy and individual ambitions and fears, with appreciation of the special value of the contribution of the smaller States to humanity at large, were coming to the front in connection with the general principles of reconstruction laid down by the various Allied conferences.

The Balkan peoples, after 500 years of Turkish rule, emerged in the middle of the last century as a medley of small States with much mixed and generally backward population, with the economic weakness and moral traits begotten of long oppression. They were suspicious, jealous and contentious toward each other, and the continual prey to the machinations of the great Powers. The breaking up of Austria-Hungary by the war joined their fortunes to those of a greater and even more varied mass of Slovaks, Croats, Czechs, Ruthenians, Bosnians, Moslems, Magyars, Tyrolese, Italians, Gypsies and Jews, in a sense each homogeneous, but indissolubly intermixed, all with contending claims, and all aroused to self-importance as the result of the war. The Turks, it was believed, were driven permanently out of Europe.

A year ago the state of mind of these peoples was expressed by the Jugoslav Premier, who said: "We do not intend to take orders henceforth from anybody—not from Moscow any more than from Berlin, and not from London any more than from Paris." We could well believe that nationalism is the strongest force of modern times. It was now to be turned to useful and benevolent ends, developing with full respect for the national life of one's neighbors. It seemed recognized that international economic solidarity was in the way to be pushed and made, as far as possible, to harmonize with political aspiration. Federation even among the weak nations in the Balkanized area seemed to be the possible result of local combinations already forming. The idea of democracy was finding root, and leaders were invited to look to the West and learn in Italy, France, England and America how constructive reform worked out. America was still standing apart from the actual problems, and while keeping up charitable gifts to feed the starving, was patiently waiting for trade and prosperous peace to appear. We repeated the brave words from Budapest: "Perhaps out of this very clash and turmoil of peoples some of the finest achievements of man are destined to come, in the future again, as they have in the past."

Twelve months have gone over our heads, and it is difficult to believe what has happened. The Turk is returned and re-established in Europe by the united action of the Allies! His guaranteed borders are to be along the boundaries of Bulgaria, Serbia and Greec, from the Black Sea to the Aegean; and in Asia Minor he has conquered and fixed them for himself, from Russia and Persia to the Mediterranean, and from the Black Sea as far south as the challenged and at some points already receding lines of the English and French will find it wise to permit. War between the Turks and the Greeks has ceased, at least in Asia Minor, with the expulsion of the Greeks; and the impending danger of war with the Allies has passed. Beyond the almost incredible but all too well substantiated stories of the destruction and suffering caused by the war, the outstanding fact is that the little Armenian Republic that America hastened formally to recognize after Versailles, of which France through M. Poincare wrote in February 1919, "Armenia has not doubted France and France will respond to her confidence"; and again in June 1920, through M. Briand, "France has not the right to abandon her," has ceased to exist.

With his position in Asia assured, the Turk for the third time returns to Europe. The conditions in the Balkans, which, despite frequent change in both internal and external relations of the dependent States, had never ceased to leave them subject to the more or less complete dominion of the Turk, now return to the ante bellum state. What those conditions were amid the strife, the jealousies and the ambitions of the greater European nations, anyone can read in authentic detail in the "Diplomatic Experiences" of the late Sir Henry Elliot, the successor of Lord Lyons as Ambassador to Constantinople, recently published by Dutton.

Read to-day, it is the instructive but humiliating story of the way in which through the last hundred years the rivalries and plottings of Europe have enabled Turkey to maintain her position and work her will. From the days when the all-powerful Lord Stratford de Redcliffe opened the way for us to get valued foothold in the Turkish Empire, the difficulties and the unworthiness of the situation then have been told by Presidents Washburn, Hamlin and Angell, as later by our Ministers Straus and Morgenthau, but never with such fullness of intimate knowledge as now by Sir Henry Elliot.

*Paul Scott Mowrer, in "A Balkanized Europe," published by Dutton.

The Allies ask "guaranties for the Turks' guaranty"; but who will give assurance that the mutual good-will, the united purpose of the strong to help the weak and of all to respect others' rights, which were so universally acclaimed at Versailles, and which later found such welcomed utterance at the Washington Conference of Disarmament, will now maintain?

During the past year they have been sadly disturbed; with the result that once more the Turk has found his opportunity. To-day his ancient policy is confirmed. What he is to be, and what will be the future of the Balkans, and consequently what the future of Europe, is to be determined by the spirit and the conduct of the Christian nations. It must be admitted that at the moment the prospect of holding the Turk in check appears slim in view of the universal desire for peace, almost at any cost, on the part of all the peoples of the earth. He now exults over the downfall of Lloyd George. But let him not presume too much. Let him remember what befell him during the first Balkan War. Europe is not helpless in face of his aggressions. That war made it plain that even the minor countries are more than a match for him—when united. But holding him down is Europe's business, not America's, now, as it was before the world conflict of 1914-18, though America may well have a part in securing for the Armenians at least some redress for their overwhelming loss.

LYMAN ABBOTT.

With the departure of Lyman Abbott the world loses a man of powerful and versatile intellect, trained in three fields and equal to mastery in all. He began with the law; and from that he turned to obey a strong impulse to the pulpit, and he closed his useful career as an editor, having found time to produce a long list of quite unique books on religion as distinguished from theology.

The distinction is real. There are only three possible concepts of God. One is that He created the universe, made operating laws for it, set it operating accordingly, then withdrew to immovable self-contemplation at some infinite distance, without intervention, sympathy or concern with events. The second concept is that He is ever immanent, with an ages-long plan that nothing can defeat or hinder, and that He works in a sympathy and love incomprehensible to us because deeper and wiser and farther-reaching than our now-blind souls can compass; that ultimately love will triumph, all wrongs will be righted, and all mysteries will be explained and justified. The third concept is that He is—to put it with honest plainness—a monster of cruelty and caprice, "electing" a few to eternal bliss and creating the other myriads for the pleasure of eternally torturing them, "for His own glory," and doing this even before He began the work of creation, and "by a just but immutable decree."

There is no other conceivable hypothesis, unless we take the imbecility that there is no First Cause but that the universe created itself, and evolved its own laws, life thus coming out of non-life. The old New England theology asserted the third of these concepts, including the unspeakably horrible dogma that hell is paved with the skulls of infants; and the wonder is not that some went insane under it, but that women did not refuse to aid the decree by bearing children.

Lyman Abbott, in youth, wrestled vainly to understand this rigid creed which made the promised Messiah a final burnt offering whereby the God-monster might—for the elect few—be propitiated and satisfied. This creed really left no service possible for Christ, since everything had been fixed from the beginning, and made the Gospel itself a mockery instead of the "Good News" its very title proclaims it. Gradually Dr. Abbott followed Mr. Beecher in discovering a God of Love and showing as for all mankind a way to peace eternal and the long-promised Kingdom even here.

When several suppositions are equally open, Reason bids us take the most favorable; therefore we hould choose the second of the above concepts and refuse to listen to any other. This was Dr. Abbott's course. In his long service in the pulpit and on the secular platform he was a singularly ready, logical, forcible and convincing speaker. He carried these qualities into his many books, feeling himself charged with a message to his time, and fearing nothing but error. Alike by voice and pen, he inculcated the fatherhood of God and the consequent brotherhood of man. The world will never be delivered from the curse and the fear of war until the evil spirit of jealousy and suspicion and hate is replaced by fraternity and co-operation. "When each man seeks his own in others' good and all men work in noble brotherhood" was the vision of Tennyson many years ago. With the world still in upheaval and hands everywhere raised against hands, this seems hard to believe; yet, all this welter may be the deep plowing which precedes and makes possible the harvest.

At least, faith and courage should not be surrendered, for they are the last redoubt, and all is lost when they are abandoned. This would probably be the last message of this sage and teacher whom a world that seems to need him no less than ever before, now has only in memory and example.

REMNANT OF WAR FINANCIAL LEGISLATION LIKELY TO BE REPEALED IN CANADA.

Ottawa, Can., Oct. 27 1922.

The coming session of Parliament, it is thought, is likely to see the repeal or modification of some remaining financial war legislation and the formal return of Canadian currency to a gold basis. At present, under war legislation still in force, the Government is not required to redeem Dominion notes in gold. In addition, there is an embargo on the export of gold—an embargo first imposed by order-in-council under the War Measures Act and then, after the war, continued by statute.

These steps were taken to conserve in the country the available supply of gold and have been continued during the reconstruction period to guard against depletion of the gold reserve. Recent spectacular improvements in Canadian exchange, however, are raising the question whether it would not be advisable to return to pre-war conditions in regard to redemption in gold. When Canadian funds were at a heavy discount in the United States, there existed the probability, had the war legislation not been continued, that the gold reserve would be heavily depleted by presentation of Canadian notes. But, instead of being at a discount, the Canadian dollar is now at a slight premium as compared with the American dollar and it is argued there is not the same necessity for the continuance of the legislation. The question is one which Hon. W. S. Fielding Minister of Finance, will consider carefully on his return and any action recommended to Parliament would be dependent on financial conditions existing at the time.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE WITH U. S. SHRINKS BUT IS WELL MAINTAINED WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

Ottawa, Can., Oct. 27 1922.

Canada's imports for home consumption during the twelve months ended September 1922 totaled $732,904,818, as against $905,961,941 in the previous twelve months and $1,325,779,894 in the twelve months ending September 1920. The decrease from the total of the year ended September 1921 was over $173,000,000, according to trade figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In the same period of 1921-22, Canada's home produce exports decreased $183,263,815, or from $976,060,660 in the year ended September 1921 to $792,796,845 in the year ended September 1922. In the twelve months ended September 1920 total exports of Canadian produce were valued at $1,208,919,175. Exports of foreign goods from Canada during the three years were: 1920, $36,807,793; 1921, $15,396,622; 1922, $13,693,834.

Imports from the United Kingdom during the year ended September 1922 totaled $127,437,704, against $137,624,015 in the previous twelve months and $217,270,658 in the year ended September 1920. Exports to the United Kingdom in the same years showed a growing trade in the twelve months ended September 1922 as compared with the previous year. In the last twelve months Canadian products to the value of $311,294,751 were exported to Great Britain, as against $285,017,699 in the previous year and $375,460,368 in the year ended September 1920.

Trade with the United States showed a decrease during the twelve months just ended. Imports from the United States during that year were valued at $492,965,967, as against $643,466,836 in the previous year and $919,066,657 in the preceding year. During the year just ended the United States purchased $332,624,068 in Canadian products, as against $427,275,374 the previous year and $512,866,537 in the twelve months ending September 1920.

PROPOSALS BY GERMANY FOR ISSUANCE OF GOLD TREASURY BILLS TO STABILIZE MARK.

On the above subject Associated Press cablegrams from Berlin Oct. 18 said:

Although the Cabinet has approved of the issue of gold treasury bills as an initial step toward stabilizing the mark, but incidentally with the intention to discourage investments in foreign currencies, various technical features are still in abeyance, these including the periods of time for which the notes will be issued and the amount of the denominations and the gold security covering them.

The issue would take the form of a gold loan, the interest on the bills being payable in gold. The bills would not circulate as paper currency, but would offer an opportunity for investment by people who heretofore have been buying goods instead of saving money because the depreciation of the paper marks made the saving of currency unprofitable.

The proposed new bills would constantly maintain a parity equivalent to the rates of exchange of foreign currencies. Experts attached to the Ministries of Finance and Economics are now working out the technical details. These will require ultimate approval by the Cabinet before the new bills are issued.

A cablegram (copyright) from Berlin Oct. 22 relative to the proposed bills was published as follows by the New York "Times" on the 23d inst.:

The outstanding movements of the week on the German markets were the fresh collapse in the mark, the advance of 500 points or more in home shares on the Stock Exchange, and the returning stringency in the money market, where the rate for day-to-day loans varied last week from 7½ to 10½%. But the novelty in the financial discussion of the week was the announcement of the Government's proposed experiment in issuing Treasury bills redeemable in gold at a fixed price.

The remark was frequently made last week in German financial circles that the two most populous countries of Continental Europe, Russia and Germany, had simultaneously announced plans which, in theory, at any rate, were steps towards restoration of a metal-backed currency. The Russian Soviet Government has in form declared for creation of a circulating currency based on metallic reserves. Germany thus far proposes only to create metal-backed Treasury bills, for investment of individual savings.

The Russian Experiment.

The Soviet decree authorizes the new State Bank of Russia, which the Swedish Professor Gustav Cassel will advise, to issue new notes in units called chervonets, equal to ten gold rubles. These notes will be issued in denominations of one to fifty chernovets, and will be secured one-fourth by gold or in foreign high-value currencies, three-fourths in realizable goods or short-term bills. But they are later, according to the statement, to be entirely secured with gold.

The plan for Germany's new Treasury bills has not yet been published in detail. It is believed that the smallest denomination will be $25, which at present exchange would be not far from 90,000 marks and apparently therefore much too large for petty savings. The new bills will not be backed by Reichsbank gold, but probably by part of the export duties which, since most exports are invoiced in high currencies, could provide a high-currency cover.

The "Gold Treasury Bills."

The plan of issuing gold Treasury bills is described by many bankers as the inevitable corollary to last week's prohibition against buying dollars for hoarding. It is intended that the bills should provide means of investment which would protect small savings against further depreciation of the paper mark. Although the new gold bills are not a circulating currency, it is admitted that they might lead the way to creation of a real circulating currency on a gold basis.

Karl Melchior, partner of Max Warburg, writes optimistically on this point, stating that the mark should be stabilized in value at 2,000 to the dollar. Business circles, however, prefer the lowest and latest rate of dollar exchange as the basis of stabilization. It is pointed out that if the present paper inflation were to cease, Germany could easily put her whole present circulation on a gold basis without preliminary deflation.

This possibility arises from the fact that the mark's gold value on exchange has fallen much more rapidly than the amount of paper circulation has risen, whence the aggregate gold value of the circulation has been constantly shrinking. The Reichbank's entire note circulation of Oct. 7 was worth only $152,000,000 at the exchange rate of Oct. 17, whereas the Reichsbank's present gold reserve of 1,005,000,000 marks is worth $238,000,000. From this it is argued that Germany already has enough gold in hand to secure fully a note circulation 100% larger than that which now exists provided the redeemable value of the mark were to be stabilized at existing exchange rates.

On the 19th inst. the "Wall Street Journal" published the following in the matter:

New gold Treasury bills will not be issued before Nov. 15. Bills will range as low as the equivalent of $25, payalbe at existing rate of exchange in paper marks. Declaration of Havenstein, President of the Reichsbank, that the new Treasury bills will not be backed by Reichsbank gold, makes their future gloomy. It is therefore probable that only taxes and import duties will serve as a cover for them.

THE NEW CAPITAL FLOTATIONS DURING SEPTEMBER AND THE NINE MONTHS.

In sharp contrast with the relatively small total for August, the new capital flotations in the United States, as represented by the stock, bond and note issues brought out on behalf of corporations and by States and municipalities, foreign and domestic, for September, were among the heaviest on record. The extended tabulations we present below show that the new financing in September aggregated no less than $565,824,897, as against only $199,211,136 in August, and $381,609,071 in July. The total compares with $550,824,856 in June, $617,235,070 in May, $655,817,946 (the record for any month) in April and $557,257,979 in March. The total is also far in excess of the corresponding totals of September in all previous years back to the time of the war. At $565,824,897 it compares with $422,093,857 in September 1921, only $284,694,765 in September 1920, and with $348,214,264 in September 1919.

The September total attained its huge proportions by reason of two transactions of unusual magnitude, namely the offering to its shareholders by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. of $115,000,000 new stock, and the placing of an issue of $75,000,000 Federal Land Bank Farm Loan bonds. These two added $190,000,000 to the total, but even with them both eliminated, the remainder would still by $375,824,897—a figure of no mean proportions. The $115,000,000 of Amer. Tel. & Tel. stock was offered to shareholders at par ($100). The company is paying dividends of 9%. Two other prominent public utility issues appearing on the market in September were $21,000,000 Kansas City Power & Light Co. 1st Mtge. 5s, 1952, offered at 93 to yield about 5.47%, and $7,000,000 Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 5s, Series "B," due 1952, placed at 92¾, yielding about 5½%.

Financing on behalf of industrial concerns was also large and was featured by the following new issues: $50,000,000 Swift & Co. 10-Year 5% Notes 1932, offered at 97, to yield about 5.40%; $25,000,000 Sinclair Pipe Line Co. 5s, 1942, offered at 95, to yield about 5.40%, and $15,000,000 Cudahy Packing Co. Debenture 5½s, 1937, offered at par, yielding 5½%.

The total of new railroad offerings amounted to $46,675,900, showing a substantial increase over the total of $4,878,900 reported for August. The three largest offerings of this nature were : $12,558,500 Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. 6½% Cumulative Convertible Series "A" Preferred stock, offered to stockholders at par ($100); $6,645,000 Equipment Trust 4½s, due 1923-37, of Illinois Central RR. on a 4.95% basis, and $6,000,000 Equipment Trust 5s, due 1923-37 of St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. at prices to yield from 5% to 5.30%. It has been stated that the Illinois Central RR. equipments are the first railroad equipment obligations bearing a 4½% coupon rate to be issued since the War.

Eleven issues of Farm Loan bonds, aggregating $87,900,000 were placed on sale at prices giving a yield of 4.10% to 4.68%. The largest and most important offering in this class, as already stated, was $75,000,000 Federal Land Bank 4½s, due 1942, which were offered at 101½, yielding 4.30% to redeemable date (1932) and 4½% thereafter to redemption or maturity. This offering was the third of its kind since the first of the year. The earlier offerings were also of $75,000,000 each and were made in February and May. At the time of the latter offering $42,000,000 additional bonds were disposed of, these additional bonds, as stated by the Federal Farm Loan Commissioner, "having had to do with the Treasury retirements of bonds that had already been issued and sold to the Treasury by the several banks."

The following is a complete four-year summary of the new financing—corporate, foreign Government and municipal, and farm loan issues—for September and the nine months ending with September:

WEEKLY RETURN OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.

Net liquidation of $40,800,000 of discounted and purchased bills and of $38,300,000 of Government securities, accompanied by reductions of $114,300,000 in deposits and of $16,900,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated bank statement as at close of business on Oct. 25 1922, and which deals with the results for the twelve Federal Reserve banks combined. Liquidation was greatest at the New York Reserve bank, which shows reductions of $23,300,000 in bills discounted and bought and of $35,100,000 in Government securities, accompanied by reductions of $91,400,000 in deposits and of $10,200,000 in Reserve note circulation. Combined gold reserves of the system declined by $1,700,000 and total cash reserves by $2,300,000. The reserve ratio shows a rise from 75.2 to 77.6%. After noting these facts, the Federal Reserve Board proceeds as follows:

As a result mainly of inter-bank shifting of gold through the settlement fund and slight withdrawals of gold from the system, aggregate increases of $31,600,000 in the gold reserves of six banks, as against total reductions of $33,300,000 in the gold reserves of the six other banks are shown. The gold movement was away from New York, which reports a decrease in its gold reserves of $19,100,000, largely towards Chicago and Cleveland, which show increases in their gold reserves of $11,100,000 and $10,400,000, respectively.

Holdings of paper secured by Government obligations show a slight increase from $194,200,000 to $195,500,000. Of the total held, $126,000,000, or 64.4%, were secured by Liberty and other U. S. bonds, $5,600,000, or 2.9%, by Victory notes, $59,000,000, or 30.2%, by Treasury notes, and $4,900,000, or 2.5%, by Treasury certificates, compared with $128,400,000, $4,900,000, $55,200,000 and $5,700,000 reported the week before.

The statement in full in comparison with preceding weeks and with the corresponding date last year, will be found on subsequent pages, namely pages 1921 and 1922. WEEKLY RETURN OF THE MEMBER BANKS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

Increases of $187,000,000 in loans and discounts, largely of paper secured by corporate obligations, and of $142,000,000 of U. S. bonds, following the consummation on Oct. 16 of the refunding loan and the allotment of over $511,000,000 of newly issued bonds, are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement of condition on Oct. 24 of 787 member banks in leading cities. It should be noted that the figures of these member banks are always a week behind those for the Reserve banks themselves.

All classes of loans show larger figures than the week before; loans secured by Government obligations by $21,000,000, loans secured by stocks and bonds by $149,000,000, and other, largely commercial, loans and discounts by $17,000,000. Apart from the considerable increase in the holdings of U. S. bonds, holdings of other Government securities show but moderate changes, an increase of $9,000,000 in Treasury notes being nearly offset by reductions in the amounts of Victory notes and Treasury certificates held. Holdings of corporate securities declined by $8,000,000. Member banks in New York City report increases of $115,000,000 in loans and discounts, of which $96,000,000 represents an increase in loans secured by stocks and bonds, and of $51,000,000 in U. S. bonds, as against a reduction of $12,000,000 in other, largely Government, securities.

Payment for the newly allotted refunding bonds was made largely by credit on the books of the subscribing banks, and accordingly, deposits show an increase for the week of $202,000,000, the New York banks reporting an increase under this head of $80,000,000. Other demand deposits (net) of the reporting banks show an increase of $49,000,000 and their time deposits an increase of $13,000,000. Member banks in New York City, because of the substantial increase of bank balances for the week, report a gain of $89,000,000 in demand deposits, with no change in time deposits.

Borrowings of the reporting institutions from the Federal Reserve banks, notwithstanding the large increase in the loans outstanding, declined from $278,000,000 to $274,000,000, or from 1.8 to 1.7% of their combined loans and investments. For the New York City members a decrease of accommodation at the local Reserve bank from $122,000,000 to $75,000,000, or from 2.4 to 1.5% in the ratio of accommodation, is shown. On a subsequent page—that is on page 1922—we give the figures in full contained in this latest weekly return of the member banks of the Reserve System. In the following is furnished a summary of the changes in the principal items as compared with a week and a year ago:

JULIUS H. BARNES ON ALLIED DEBTS—SUGGESTS RECONSIDERATION OF INTEREST AND REDEMPTION TERMS RATHER THAN REDUCTION TERMS.

In an address dealing with "The Treatment of Allied Debts," delivered on the 25th inst. at the annual convention in this city of the American Manufacturers Export Association, Julius H. Barnes, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, declared that " a remission of any portion of the British debt would find slight consideration in America, even if the sturdy self-respect of that competent people would permit them to accept any such consideration at our hands." Mr. Barnes also made the statement that:

It seems worthy of serious consideration by those who believe a recasting of Allied obligations should be considered on economic or moral grounds, whether more effective aid could not be rendered in the area of interest and redemption terms, rather than reduction of principal. It will need a convincing story indeed to overcome the fundamental convictions of Americans that the principal of an obligation should be scrupulously respected and far less difficult to crystalize the fullest consideration, perhaps even to the entire remission of interest and the most generous deferred terms of principal installments."

The following is Mr. Barnes's address in full:

In a discussion of the Allied debts, no man may presume to express the definite conviction of organized American business, for American opinion has not yet crystallized into definite conviction. In the ranks of organized business enrolled under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States there is as yet only one clearly unanimous conviction, and that is, a complete accord in the desire to frame a solution with great sympathy, as well as wisdom. There is, with it, a clear determination that aid, when extended, shall be effective in actual remedy, and not be dissipated in unwise and ineffective effort. Much of the individual prosperity of peoples is dependent clearly upon the healthful functioning of international commerce, and if there is a solution which will stimulate the productivity of peoples through international helpfulness by a solution of the problems of international finance, then the rejection of such a solution carries with it a grave responsibility.

America entered the war for no selfish purpose, and in the terms of settlement desired no benefit, and received no gain. America is capable of acting with the highest idealism, but it is so capable only when acting from profound and solemn conviction. There are, it seems to me, some realities that have not been adequately stressed in the discussion of a proper treatment of Allied debts. The realities are these:

1. These debts are due to the Government of the United States.
2. That Government is a representative Government controlled by public opinion.
3. An effective public opinion in favor of reduction or remission must be created on one of two grounds:
(a) Either the justification of economics as being in the self-interest of our people; or
(b) A justification on moral grounds as being an act of generous treatment due to those formerly associated with us in a great world war.

It is clear to-day that there is no general public conviction on either of these grounds, and it is well to examine briefly why this is so, and whether a public conviction will yet be crystallized on one ground or the other.

On the ground of economics, the American people have been told for three years that their own prosperity depended upon the markets of a restored Europe and that these would be impossible to restore without the elimination of this international financial menace. This is probably ultimately true, but, so far, the evidence of actual trade development has not sustained this contention. Judged by all the measures of a prosperous industry, by aggregate car loadings, by steel production, by operating output of typical industries such as the automobile section, by market strength in prices of stocks and bonds, by the figures of total savings accounts and their rate of increase—by all these measures, America is to say possessed at home of a substantial prosperity. Within the short space of a single year, from a condition of four million unemployed, America has emerged to a condition of full employment. This present era of prosperous trade at home may be a present-time accident, but it is, to-day, the visible evidence that our industries are not languishing under the weight of an Allied debt, the readjustment of which, Congress has by resolution limited to definite limits of time, and terms. Therefore, on the ground of economics alone, the present condition of American industry is not such as to crystallize at this time a public opinion favorable to their remission.

As to the moral ground, the difficulties are to-day even more real. There is a background in our short national history which must be understood before one can properly value the influences which crystallize into the profound moral convictions of a people. Remember that the foundation of this Republic was laid by the ambitious and aspiring of every people, profoundly dissatisfied with the Old World opportunities for advancement, or profoundly distrustful of the social and political structure under which they had formerly lived. Remember that in this New World they established a Government under a new social and political ideal which may be described as the Philosophy of Individualism. The founders of this Republic fled from autocratic forms of government against which their self-reliance and strong individualism rebelled. Everything in our national history confirms the wisdom of the new social and political philosophy which they established, and which we have maintained. In a short century and half, the Republic has developed its natural resources, until its wealth could dominate the finance of the world, and has demonstrated in common use a standard of living for its citizens which is the marvel of the world. its freedom from rigid caste and age-old tradition had produced a people so responsive especially to new invention and so eagerly welcoming to the achievements of science, that the productivity of its people per unit of population, in agriculture and in industry, is equalled nowhere in the world. It has taken the leadership in the development of new industries such as the automobile and motion picture, the electrical and chemical industries, until these fields, unknown a generation ago, to-day provide employment and opportunity for twenty million of our people. American has a profound conviction that not only the spectacular fortunes of the leaders of industry, but the individual content and happiness that spring from the limitless opportunities and employment of prosperous industry, rest solely on a social structure which preserves the incentive to individual effort and individual productivity. American has a profound conviction that, whether a people are to rebuild their living standards from the wreck which follows war, or whether a people are to hold high the advanced standard of common comfort and convenience already secured, the sole means by which these are achieved is in preserving and stimulating the individual efforts of its people. America holds that its most precious heritage is the philospohy of individualism which esteems a constituted government to be justified chiefly as the agency established by common consent primarily for the preservation of fair-play between individuals, so that each individual may, himself, by his own effort and ability, create his own niche in the social structure.

America conceives that the prime obligation of Government is to preserve to the individual the reward if superior effort or superior ability apportioned to him through the natural processes of trade, and therefore apportioned more fairly by society itself than would be possible through the arbitrary action of any man or body of men placed in temporary authority.

America also believes that the prime obligation of Government is to maintain an honest standard of value. On that standard of values rests the processes of industry which must buy one month the raw material which, weeks or months later, in its finished form, must be offered for sale measured in the same monetary standard, and industry will perish if it must add to the natural hazards of conversion and merchandizing also the risk of a currency fluctuation, particularly a depreciating one.

America realizes that in terms of the monetary denomination of a government is written the savings account, the result of thrift and self-denial of its people; life insurance, the result of sacrifice for the provision of after-death dependents, and America realizes therefore that a deliberately depreciated currency is a dishonest and immoral process which wrecks the industry of a country, and destroys the individual incentive to effort and to thrift.

I lay great stress upon these convictions as being the conscious or unconscious standard by which will be measured the efforts of Europe for its own restoration. Consciously or unconsciously, these standards will be applied to indicate whether, in Government or in industry, the policies of Europe show a full measure of honest effort, or carry any promise of ultimate success.

When we weigh the course of European governments since the armistice, we find that, in the policies of government and in the conduct of industry, violence is done to these most profound conviction of our people.

America is puzzled and vewildered when, in Europe, where is most needed the profound understanding of individual human impulse and a sturdy stimulation of that impulse in the interest of aggregate recovery, there is shown apparently the most reckless yielding to expediency in measures which our whole national experience tells us lead to suspended or delayed recovery, or even to utter social demoralization.

Payment from national treasuries of unemployment doles that put a premium on idleness and non-productivity, carry no appeals to American common-sense, even with full knowledge of the difficulties which the reabsorption of released armies may present.

Factories turned over with the consent of Government against the will of the owners to rebellious workmen for a fantastic experiment that ends inevitably in failure, carries no conviction to our people as a proper function of constituted authority that must preserve in absolute equality every man's right to life and to property.

International trade agreements with Russia, made with the color of an effort to precede the entrance of our own people into trade relations, affront our own policy based on a national conviction that trade cannot exist without both production and just laws, and that Russia's policy of communion has destroyed production and violated sacred human rigts.

Trade barriers erected by national animosities at new frontiers, which check the flow of goods and of transport equipment along long-established channels of trade, seem to us to be so fraught with the destruction of commerce, on which employment must rest, that our confidence is lessened in governments which create and maintain these barriers.

Governments dominated by political groups frankly devoted to the interests of minor section of their people, convey no promise to us of broad, sound national policies.

Labor parties, permanently in politics, speak to us of the acceptance of a rigid-caste social structure, that implies a closed door to opportunity and advancement, which violates a fundamental tenet of our own social convictions.

Streams of emission of paper tokens which are a Government's promise to pay, issued without maturity date and without provision for redemption, or indeed without intention to redeem, seem to us the height of destructive immorality of Government.

Public services assumed by Governments, such as transportation, telegraph and telephone, and others, the field of which in America is recognized as functioning best under private ownership and private operation, loaded with armies of dependents, income and outgo disregarded, and the National deficits thus created met by further emission of dishonest paper inflation, carry no assurance of ultimate solvency.

National budgets unbalanced with large expenditures for non-productive armaments which offend both our business sense and moral sense, are difficult to justify us as a necessity in the collection of reparations, when other methods are successively rejected.

America subscribed without reservation to the principle that Germany must pay in reparations the last dollar which the productivity of her people can create, but our business sense, and our commonsense, tell us that the problems of reparation; the ascertaining of what the uttermost limit of payment by Germany may be, up to the point of utterly crushing her industry, and therefore her means of payment, is a problem for men trained in the economics of large business, and not solely for diplomats or politicians.

Yet when the problem is examined, as was done so hopefully a few short months ago by the leading business talent of the world, their efforts is controlled, limited and frustrated by the will of men in political authority. Even France, heroic France, imperishably seated in the admiration of our people, has wounded America sorely the past few months. A world conference on naval disarmament, which accomplished much, and promised more in hopefulness for similar treatment for the larger land armament problem, receives a grudging assent to a treaty yet unratified by its assembly.

Shock after shock to the processes of over-seas trade and international finance follow repeated crises in the relation between the two great Allies. A great moral conviction of our people that the Turk belongs not in Europe is profoundly shocked by the demonstration that the restoration of the Turk's foothold in Europe is largely due to France's encouragement to-day.

As to Great Britain and its debt to the United States, this requires to be separately discussed. Our people see their own commerce carried largely in British ships, operated probably with superior efficiency to our own, but laying, nevertheless, a trade toll upon the foreign commerce of our people. They see British finance predominant everywhere in the world, and probably rightly so, out of the financial sanity and the long experience of a great trading nation. They see the far-flung Brtiish federation of colonies with resources equal to our own. They know the British ideals of the relation of Government and industry so nearly resemble our own in stimulating individual effort that there is every promise of the quick productivity of their people. They rate, then, Great Britain as ultimately able to meet the obligations of the Empire, no matter how stupendous those sums may be. A remission of any portion of the British debt would find slight consideration in America, even if the sturdy self-respect of that competent people would permit them to accept any such consideration at our hands.

But when, by mutual negotiation, the British portion of the Allied debt is put in definite form; when in respect to the other less fortunate countries of Europe the position of England and American may be almost identical in interest, then will come the test whether public opinion of America will govern its legislative bodies and its administrative officials, may be crystallized for a different treatment of the other Allied obligations. It is no kindness to fail to develop clearly the realities which must be faced in considering the influences which create and mold that controlling public opinion in this country. The men who have spoken for a revision and a reduction of the Allied debts due this country have been largely men of great ability and high character. Their views must be weighed with great and careful consideration. International banking implies character and ability, and not solely a selfish interest, and therefore international banking should speak on this subject with special authority.

The sincere expressions of men of ability will have a distinct influence in the formulation of public opinion which, after all, will govern the national treatment of these national obligations.

If Allied debts are to be reduced or remitted because their payment would be disastrous to our own industry, then it would seem regrettable that the conviction of America can only be secured by waiting the demonstration of a disorganized industry.

If Allied debts are to be reduced or remitted as an act of moral obligation, then the sincerest friendship is to point out the basis on which the moral convictions of our people can be crystallized. We have no right to impose our ideas of an industrial or social or political structure upon other peoples with other ideals and convictions, but no conviction in America will support a remission in sheer national generosity, unless it is based on a demonstration that the proceeds of that genersoity will not be wasted in inefficiency and extravagance, nor in social experimentation which we know to be destructive of a people's productive impulse.

A definite program leading to ultimate restoration in Europe, by steps which appeal to America as reasoned and probably effective, will find certain sure foundations in America.

1. Our business sense will tell us that a revived and prosperous Europe means an added measure of prosperity for our own people.

2. A firm and lasting admiration for the qualities of courage and endurance of these peoples of Europe, and an American idealism which may not fail to extend assistance to peoples making an effort to accomplish a restoration manifestly beyond their attainment, unassisted.

On these foundations and behind such a program promising successful restoration, public opinion in America can crystallize rapidly into action. It seems worthy of serious consideration by those who believe a re-casting of Allied obligations should be considered on economic or moral grounds, whether more effective aid could not be rendered in the area of interest and redemption terms, rather than reduction of principal. It will need a convincing story, indeed, to overcome the fundamental convictions of Americans that the principal of an obligation should be scrupulously respected and far less difficult to crystalize the fullest consideration, perhaps even to the entire remission of interest and the most generous deferred terms of principal installments.

SIR GEORGE PAISH DISCUSSING ALLIED DEBTS WARNS AGAINST TRADE BARRIERS—U. S. AND HIDDEN GOLD.

Sir George Paish, the well-known British economist, who served as financial adviser to the British Treasury during the war, was one of the principal speakers at the convention in this city the current week of the American Manufacturers Export Association. Sir George, who was also formerly editor of the London "Statist," arrived in the United States on the 20th inst. on the Cunard liner "Aquitania," having come at the express invitation of the Association to address the convention on the subject of "Foreign Trade and International Debts." Sir George spoke at Wednesday evening's session, the 25th—the opening day of the convention. In his discourse he declared that "it is clear that whatever method is adopted of repaying the debt of Great Britain to America the difficulties will remain until America is willing to accept payment either in goods or services for the interest and principal due to her." While it is not essential that America should buy British gods, it is, however, he said, essential that she should buy the products of some nations: he added, "it may be rubber or tea, or wool, or gold, or silver, or tin, or something that she requires, the purchase of which would give the seller of the goods the power to buy the goods which Great Britain would need to sell in order to make payment of the sum due to America." Sir George went on to say that "at the present moment Great Britain is paying the United States Government the interest due on its debt in gold, and the stock of gold in America is now becoming so great that the American Government is again placing it in circulation in the form of gold certificates. In other words, America does not need the gold. It is a superfluity, but it is the one product of the world which she will freely take in payment and, therefore, it is essential for Great Britain if she is to meet her obligations to America to collect all the gold that she can gather together in order to pay the sums as they fall due. I do not for one moment desire to criticise the policy of the American Government." He further stated that:

A creditor cannot refuse to take payment of its debts in the goods or services which the debtor nations can supply either directly or indirectly, and, therefore, the endeavor of the American Government to prevent the import of goods and produce by erecting tariff or other barriers for the purpose of keeping out the goods of the other nations is an action which I am convinced neither they nor the American people have fully considered. Again if the policy of placing gold in the Treasury, issuing gold certificates and placing the certificates in circulation instead of allowing the gold to go into the Federal Reserve banks to promote trade and buying power is an action the consequence of which they have not fully considered. The importing of gold by any nation, unless obtained by loan indicates that the trade balance, both visible and invisible, is in favor of that country and that i s selling power at the moment, both visible and invisible, is greater than its willingness to buy.

He further said that "the action of the American Government in endeavoring to prevent debtor nations from meeting their obligations to America does not differ from the action of European nations in erecting tariff barriers to the import of goods from the nations which are indebted to them either for loans or for reparations." In conclusion he said:

It is, therefore, of the greatest possible moment that the business men and peoples of all nations should seek to understand and to realize the disasterous consequences that must ensue from the present policies of those responsible for national and international affairs, and should insist upon such change of policy that will avert the catastrophe toward which the entire world is now moving with ever increasing rapidity.

The following is his speech in large part:

To understand the causes of the existing difficulties and to devise the remedies to be applied, it is necessary to make a brief survey of the pre-war situation, to compare the existing abnormal conditions with the normal, and to contrast the existing unworkable and impracticable policies with the workable and the practicable.

Prior to the war not only were all the nations solvent but year by year they were increasing in well-being. There were a great many national debts and there was a large amount of international debt, but rarely did nations experience any difficulty in meeting either their national or their international obligations. The densely peopled nations of Europe were able to sell sufficient manufactured goods and to render service to the world in general to enable them to supplement their own supplies by large purchases of food and raw materials from other nations, while the countries with power to produce food and raw materials beyond their own needs were able to sell their surpluses in exchange for the manufactured goods and services they required in return. Moreover, the countries which offered great opportunities for the investment of new capital had no difficulty in supplying their requirements by reason of the willingness of the manufacturing nations of Europe to supply goods either on short or on long credit. For the most part the credits were given in the form of permanent investments and largely carried interest or dividends only if earned. The income derived from these investments was received in the products which the lending nations needed for the purpose of supplementing their own production, chiefly food and raw materials.

The willingness of the manufacturing nations to supply capital to nations that needed it not only created an ever-increasing supply of food and raw materials, but enabled the manufacturing nations to expand their own productions and to find a ready market for them. It is essential to note that this foreign capital was usually invested in countries from which the lending countries desired to obtain supplies of food and raw materials, so that the borrowing nations had no difficulty in selling the products which the foreign capital helped them to produce. Thus the borrowing nations met with no obstacle to the payment by them of interest and dividends to the lending nations; in other words, they had no difficulty in selling sufficient of their products to the creditor nations in order to meet their interest payments. The amount of international debt, that is, capital invested by various nations in other nations, prior to the war was about eight thousand millions, carrying a combined interest and dividend charge of some four hundred millions a year. The remittance of new capital from the lending creditor nations year by year greatly added to the volume and value of the exports of these countries, while the receipt of interest and dividends greatly added to the volume and value of their imports. Had the lending nations refused to purchase the products of the borrowing nations they could not have received their interest and dividends, and had they refused to grant loans to them they could not have sold their products, except to a very inadequate extent. It is, of course, essential to realize that well-being arises from purchasing power and that selling power is of value only in so far as it gives purchasing power to the seller. The object of making an investment is to give purchasing power to the investor to the extent of a small annual income over a long period of years in exchange for an immediate loan of capital. If the investing country refused to use its buying power as its foreign income enabled it to buy or refrained from reinvesting its foreign income in the debtor nation or in some other nation, the debtor would not be able to pay, however capable he might otherwise be of making payment. Nations can pay each other only as they can find markets for their goods, for their services or for their securities.

For the purposes of international trade gold is just a commodity which one nations buys from another when it does not immediately want any other commodity or service. The supply of gold is, however, very limited, and while of great importance in causing nations which possess large stocks of it to spend more freely, or in causing the nations that have insufficient stocks to spend less freely, its use for the purpose of paying for produce or for the payment of interest and services between nations is very limited. Before the war Great Britain, with her great foreign trade, rarely held a liquid gold reserve of more than ten million pounds, and when she had to pay in gold she simply bought the gold elsewhere.

For the purpose of international trade, gold is used mainly to balance, and no great sums can be paid in gold. Prior to the war the nations were able to sell to each other enough produce and goods not only to pay for other produce and other goods they needed to buy, but to pay for interest and services. Also, the lending nations were able to sell enough goods abroad to enable them to buy all they required to buy from other nations and also to invest abroad large sums of capital year by year. It is necessary to realize clearly that the investment of new capital by the manufacturing nations in the agricultural and other nations expanded their exports and the receipt of the interest on this capital expanded their exports. In other words, the investment of their capital in other nations gave the lending countries power to sell goods which they otherwise could not have sold, and the receipt of the interest gave them power to buy food and raw materials which they needed for their subsistence over and above the quantities they could have bought by direct exchange. It should be thoroughly understood that the investment of capital by the lending countries in other nations was the main factor which brought about an expansion in the productive power of the nations in which the capital was invested, and that this expansion of productive power was a necessary precedent to the expansion in their export or selling power. In other words, the expansion in exports of the debtor countries was largely the result of former investments of foreign capital in their industries and resulted from the desire to make payment of interest in connection with those capital investments, as well as to purchase additional goods for cash. The investment of new foreign capital in these countries was the fresh seed, which would in the course of a few years yield a crop of export or selling power to the debtor nations and of import or purchasing power to the creditor nations.

Prior to the war Great Britain had loaned to other nations a sum of about four thousand million pounds (20 billions of dollars). This capital was placed in the United States, in Canada, in South America, in Australia, in South Africa, in India, and elsewhere. The interest upon this sum gave Great Britain power to buy about two hundred million pounds (a billion dollars) worth of produce annually from those borrowing nations.

Before the war Great Britain bought from the United States on an average of about one hundred and thirty million pounds worth of produce, while America bought back only thirty million pounds of British foods. America bought an extra twenty million pounds of colonial and foreign produce from Great Britain, such as tea, wool, etc. Hence, Britain's purchases from America exceeded her sales to America by no less than eighty millions sterling. With this balance in America's favor it will be realized that the latter had no difficulty in meeting the sum of about thirty million pounds a year which she owed to Great Britain for interest and dividends.

Somewhat similar conditions prevailed with regard to the other countries to which Great Britain had loaned large sums of capital. From Canada Great Britain bought far more produce than she sold to her, and because of Great Britain's large purchases of Canadian produce, Canada had no difficulty in meeting her interest payments to Great Britain. The same conditions applied to South America. Great Britain had supplied Argentina with great sums of capital, but Argentina found a ready market for her surplus supplies of wheat and other produce in Great Britain, and had no difficulty in meeting interest and other payments. The same statements are true of Australia, South Africa, India and other countries. Great Britain was always willing to buy enough produce from these countries to enable them to meet their interest and other obligations. Occasionally it happened that Great Britain's needs or desires did not permit her to buy sufficient produce from a country to which she had loaned freely, but she never placed any impediment whatever to the sale of the produce of the borrowing country in her markets.

It is now necessary to state the post-war situation, in order to ascertain the effect upon the nations of the war disturbances and all that has happened since the war, and also to discover the policy that needs to be followed if the nations are again to enjoy that regular expansion of both national and foreign trade, as well as that steady increase in national well-being, which occured until the war so seriously injured the trade of all countries by reducing the productive power of the Continental nations of Europe and the selling power of the rest of the world.

The debt that was created between nations prior to the war was all but a minute part debt incurred in order to create wealth, not to destroy it. America's debt to Great Britain was incurred mainly for the building of railroads, the construction of which immensely added to America's productive power. The debt of Canada, South America, Australia, India and of other countries was mainly created for a similar purpose. The sums loaned by France and Germany to Russia were spent mainly on the building of the Russian railway system, which greatly contributed to Russia's production of foodstuffs and to her well-being. There was, in fact, wealth created against the debts. That was productive power, and with it both selling power and buying power, so that the investment of the capital created new markets as well as new supplies.

In the period of eight years from 1914 to 1922, nearly as much international debt had been created as in all the past. The United States in this period sold goods against credit or securities of one kind or another to the extent of some four thousand millions sterling, while Great Britain granted credit to the Entente and other nations to the extent of not far short of three thousand millions sterling. It is true that Great Britain incurred a large foreign debt and sold securities in foreign markets which must be reckoned as a set-off to the credit she has granted, nevertheless the fact remains that Great Britain has granted foreign credit during the period of nearly three thousand millions sterling, while the United States has granted credit or has bought securities to the extent of some four thousand millions pounds sterling since the war began. If allowance be made for the re-sale of American securities to America, Japanese securities to Japan, &c., it is evident that the amount of international debt has been increased from about eight thousand million pounds sterling prior to the war to some thirteen thousand millions at the present time. Unless this new debt had been created, neither the United States nor Great Britain could have sold their products or realized the prices for them which they did realize. The granting of this credit, in fact, immensely increased the export trades of both the United States and of Great Britain during the period.

Unfortunately, however, the new debt has not been incurred for productive purposes. Indeed, instead of assisting the nations to become richer, to produce more freely, to sell more, and to buy more, it has contributed to the work of destroying their productive power, reducing their selling power and with it greatly reducing their buying power. It has, therefore, had a contrary influence to that exercised by the investment of capital by one nation in another prior to the war. Nor is this the full extent of the mischief. This war debt had been incurred by the manufacturing or creditor nations to other manufacturing or creditor nations, and these creditor nations did not desire to be paid in the goods of the borrowing nations. Therefore, we have this position, that the loans granted since 1914 have reduced and have not increased the selling and buying power of the nations that have had to borrow. Furthermore, the latter are placed under the necessity of buying still greater quantities of foreign produce than they did before the war. On the other hand, these nations have difficulty in selling enough of their products to pay for what they require to buy to meet their necessities without taking into account their desire to sell additional quantities of their products in order to meet the interest on the obligations they incurred.

Even this statement of the situation is not complete. Prior to the war the continental nations received large quantities of food from Russia in payment of interest, while they enjoyed a considerable market in Russia for their goods, which enabled them to purchase still greater quantities of food and materials from the Russian people. These Russian supplies of food and materials are now entirely lacking. The Russian market for European goods has also completely disappeared. Therefore these nations are now forced to buy produce from other nations to make good the lack of supplies from Russia at the same time that they neither have enough goods to sell in order to buy, and even if they had the goods to sell the creditor nations would not be willing to buy them.

Nor is this the full statement of the disorganization and difficulty which the war has created. Beyond the debts incurred in the purchase of American and British products by the European nations during and since the war, a great foreign debt has been placed upon Germany for reparations, a debt so great that it is entirely beyond her power to meet. The sum is, indeed, so great that it has destroyed whatever power she would otherwise have possessed of assisting the war-injured nations to obtain the credit they needed for the purpose of reconstruction. Thus at the present moment what prior to the war were some of the great creditor nations of the world have become impoverished debtor nations that lack power to produce enough things with which to buy the food and raw materials they require, leaving aside their need to produce and to sell greater quantities than ever in order to pay their obligations for interest and reparations.

In the debtor nations I do not include Great Britain. Great Britain is still the greatest creditor nation of the world. After allowing for the resale to America of securities and for the debt which she has incurred, she has over five thousand millions sterling of foreign investments, in comparison with a net sum of somewhat over three thousand millions sterling of foreign investments which America now possesses. It is quite true that of her present foreign investments some two thousand millions sterling are doubtful, the money having been lent to the war-injured nations of Europe, more particularly France, Italy and Russia, but even if these investments are entirely deducted, Great Britain still possesses some three thousand millions sterling of good foreign investments, whereas, of the three thousand millions sterling of foreign securities which America now possesses, at least one thousand millions sterling are doubtful in the same way as the British investments are doubtful. If allowance be made for this, the good foreign investments of America are about two thousand millions.

Were this the complete story the difficulties in the world situation would not present such insuperable obstacles to recovery as the nations are now faced with. Great Britain has been a creditor nation for many generations and understands that it carries with it responsibilities as well as privileges, and that if her credits are to be good, she must help to promote the productive power and the selling power of the nations to which she has supplied so large a percentage of her total capital. The British people are willing, as I have previously explained, to give a free market in Great Britain to the produce and goods of the debtor nations, and moreover are willing to buy that produce with the utmost freedom. Indeed the growth of her population and her increasing well-being demands that the produce shall be purchased in order that her people may be sustained. Consequently, the nations debtor to Great Britain do not require to consider the question of whether or not they can dispose of their products. All they have to consider is whether they can produce enough for sale at world prices which will enable them to meet their obligations. On the other hand, the very fact that up to the war America was a debtor nation and was consequently more anxious to sell than to buy, has prevented the American people from realizing that the extraordinary change which the war has effected in their fortunes by converting them from a debtor to a creditor nation demands a change in their point of view. Clearly, a creditor nation with a large income from foreign investments must be willing to buy more than it sells if it is to receive payment for the interest due to it. The produce may come in as imports or it may be consumed abroad by its tourists, but in some way or other a creditor nation must be willing to take payment of the produce it is still selling and of the interest which is due to it in the foods and services of other nations or it cannot be paid. A nation may be quite solvent, indeed quite willing and able to make payment, but if a creditor nation refuses to accept payment either in goods or in services, then it is difficult for payment to be made. A creditor nation may for a time accept securities in payment for interest, but that merely means that its foreign capital account is accumulating at compound rates and that ultimately it will be entitled to receive a still greater quantity of foreign produce and services in exchange for its own produce and in payment for the interest due to her.

The suggestion has been made with regard to Great Britain, which owes to the United States Government a debt of about a thousand millions sterling, that payment should be made in the present foreign investments of Great Britain, not inter-allied securities but in pre-war securities. This could be done. Great Britain could give to the United States in payment of her debt a thousand millions sterling of Canadian, Argentine, Australian, Indian, South African, or other securities, and the debt could be paid off. But this would not solve the problem. It would definitely deliver Great Britain from its obligations, but it would not make any essential change in the situation. America does not need to purchase the products of the countries in which Great Britain placed so much of her pre-war savings, any more than she needs the produce of Great Britain—indeed, she needs them less. Canada pays Great Britain for her interest in wheat, America does not need the Canadian wheat. Canada would still have to sell her wheat to Great Britain in order to pay the interest due, and Great Britain, which needs Canada's wheat, would still be faced with the task of remitting the necessary funds to the United States to meet interest payments.

The same situation is equally true of Argentine. The United States does not need the products of Argentine. Great Britain does, and for Argentine to pay the interest on any securities transferred from Great Britain to the United States she would still have to sell her products to Great Britain and Great Britain would still in some way or other have to make the remittance of interest to the United States. Thus the difficulties of Great Britain in making payment to the United States for produce purchased and for interest would remain the same. Indeed, it is clear that whatever method is adopted of repaying the debt of Great Britain to America, the difficulties will remain until America is willing to accept payment either in goods or services for the interest and principal due to her. It is not essential that America should buy British goods. It is, however, essential that she should buy the products of some nation, it may be rubber, or tea, or wool, or gold, or silver, or tin, or something that she requires, the purchase of which would give the seller of the goods the power to buy the goods which Great Britain would need to sell in order to make payment of the sum due to America.

At the present moment Great Britain is paying the United States Government the interest due on its debt in gold, and the stock of gold in America is now becoming so great that the American Government is again placing it in circulation in the form of gold certificates. In other words, America does not need the gold. It is a superfluity, but it is the one product of the world which she will freely take in payment, and, therefore, it is essential for Great Britain if she is to meet her obligations to America, to collect all the gold that she can gather together in order to pay the sums as they fall due. I do not for one moment desire to criticise the policy of the American Government. During the war and until recently they have, in my judgment, done all that the civilized nations of the world could expect of them. I merely wish to state the facts as clearly as it is possible for me to state them. A creditor cannot refuse to take payment of its debts in the goods or services which the debtor nations can supply either directly or indirectly, and, therefore, the endeavor of the American Government to prevent the import of goods and produce by erecting tariff or other barriers for the purpose of keeping out the goods of the other nations is action which I am convinced neither they nor the American people have fully considered. Again, if the policy of placing gold in the Treasury, issuing gold certificates and placing the certificates in circulation instead of allowing the gold to go into the Federal Reserve banks to promote trade and buying power is an action, the consequences of which they have not fully considered. The importing of gold by any nation, unless obtained by loan, indicates that the trade balance, both visible and invisible, is in favor of that country and that its selling power at the moment, both visible and invisible, is greater than its willingness to buy. The arrival of the gold and its deposit in the banks stimulates buying power, and this increase of buying power soon tends to rectify the trade situation so that a nation buys as much as it sells, and the nations which have to make payment are able to perform their obligations. By placing the gold in the Treasury instead of in the banks where it would be available for the purposes of trade, this natural effect of gold imports is prevented. The gold might just as well be consigned back to the reefs from which it was extracted.

Before I conclude my statement I must point out that the action of the American Government in endeavoring to prevent the debtor nations from meeting their obligations to America does not differ from the action of European nations in erecting tariff barriers to the import of goods from the nations which are indebted to them either for loans or for reparations.

The statesmen of all nations are indeed engaged in a common effort to prevent the nations from meeting their obligations to each other and thus reducing the whole world to bankruptcy. Already the policy of the statesmen of Europe is fast bringing the strongest nations of Europe to ruin, and before long the statesmen of the other nations of the world, if permitted to do so, will bring their countries into a similar condition. It is therefore of the greatest possible moment that the business men and peoples of all nations should seek to understand and to realize the disastrous consequences that must ensue from the present policies of those responsible for national and international affairs and should insist upon such change of policy that will avert the catastrophe towards which the entire world is now moving with ever-increasing rapidity.

On the 24th inst., in an interview at the Hotel Vanderbilt, where he has been stopping, Sir George is said to have laid great stress on observations he said he had made since arriving here of an apparent plan of the Administration to "hide the gold which has been sent here from Europe in the Treasury vaults." The New York "imes" reported him as saying:

A great quantity of gold has been sent here from England. Through the channels of Great Britain alone you have received something like $200,000,000 in gold, in addition to the $50,000,000 in gold we of Great Britain have paid in interest recently. From what I can observe that gold has not been put into the Federal Reserve banks, but has been going into the Treasury, probably to prevent an inflation of your gold reserve and supply. This tends to stifle world trade.

Were this money at work you would have easy money in this country. You would have better trade conditions and lower prices that would create a condition that would enable British goods to flow over the tariff barrier that has been erected. The entire world is suffering from the lack of buying power together with the lack of credit and loss of credit. If nations like America refuse to buy they only add to the misfortune caused by the war. It prevents recovery and intensifies depression.

Taking down the tariff barriers by nations and other trade restrictions would be the first steps necessary to a restoration of foreign exchange. It is to urge that these trade barriers be lowered and that commerce of the World be restored to normal that I have come to this country at this time. It is the barriers that have been erected by the politicians that have dammed the currents of commerce. Once they are removed the peace and prosperity of the world will be again resumed.

At the present time British shipping is very bad. I might add that the present income from shipping to British capital is the lowest it has been in modern times and that, of course, is the best indication of the trend of trade. Each country should do the things it is clearly fitted to do, and a country like this that is so well fitted for other things does not need to care about shipping. I have nothing but unstinted praise for your shipbuilding program in the war, as without these ships we might have starved in England, but I would suggest to this country that they now regard these ships as a war product and sell them for whatever they will bring.

Your immigration policy is a great misfortune. It is stopping the normal functions of labor. It seems to be in line with all the nations of the world who are apparently doing all they can to stifle the trade of the world. With free immigration your country would increase production and thereby better the country as a producer and as a market for Europe. Of course, there is something to be said on the other side if the country is overpopulated, but at present there is abundant room in the world for all people and unlimited chances for development.

Prohibition is an economic question. There are two reasons for this. First, we must admit that the working classes will command from now on a greater share of the world's goods than they have been getting before.

Secondly, the difficulty of securing capital from the classes that formerly supplied capital will be exceedingly difficult, because of taxes and fear of the future. Therefore, unless the working people make savings and provide capital, world business will be at a standstill. They can only make savings by denying themselves pleasures, which include drink. In England to-day they spend from £400,000,000 to £500,000,000 on drink. If half that amount were saved in England and elsewhere among the nations the problems of the world would be solved. As an economist I consider prohibition is necessary and inevitable.

S. P. Gilbert, Jr., Under-Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, pronounced as absurd, according to a special dispatch from Washington to the New York "Times" Oct. 24, the statement attributed to Sir George Paish that the United States "is concealing gold coming from European countries." He had no explanation to suggest and said "Sir George Paish ought to explain what he means." The dispatch added:

In fact there is little gold actually in the Treasury as two-thirds of it is held as reserve by the Federal Reserve Banks. One explanation offered was that Sir. George might be talking about the interest recently paid by England, but this was not in gold.

The New York "Times," in its financial column Oct. 26, made an analysis of Sir George's figures and showed conclusively that they were erroneous. We quote from the "Times" as follows:

Gold Imports and the Treasury.

Pointing out that something like $200,000,000 in gold has come into this country since the beginning of the year, Sir George Paish remarks that this gold "has not been put into the Federal Reserve banks, but has been going to the Treasury, probably to prevent an inflation of your gold reserves." Something is wrong with the figures on which this conclusion is apparently based. During the nine months ended with September, the net gold imports into the United States, as reported by the Department of Commerce, were almost exactly $200,000,000. During the same period gold in the vaults of the Federal Reserve increased $220,280,000. So far from the Treasury having locked up in its vaults any part of the gold received from abroad, the Treasury's gold holdings in excess of the amount held in reserve funds, which were $227,209,946 on Jan 1, had fallen to $203,065,919 on Oct. 1, and at the latest report stood at $203,387,938. Some of the gold received by the Federal Reserve has been put into free circulation in the form of gold certificates.

SIR GEORGE PAISH ON DOWNFALL OF LLOYD GEORGE.

Discussing the affairs of the British Empire and the downfall of Prime Minister Lloyd George, Sir George Paish, the British economist, whose address on Allied debts is given elsewhere in this issue, had the following to say, according to the New York "Times," with his arrival in the United States on the 20th inst.:

The downfall of Lloyd George was expected by many to take place in November at the scheduled meeting of the Conservatives, but it was hastened by the crisis in the Near East. Although there is no criticism of the fact that England made a stand at Chanak, there was a decided feeling that the necessity of sending troops to Turkey should not have arisen.

To withdraw would have meant that the victorious Turks would have gone into Constantinople and controlled the Dardanelles, which must be kept open to all, and it might have caused a conflagration in the Balkans which would have again plunged the world into war. Such a situation as described should not have arisen, it is believed by many and the consequence is that Lloyd George's resignation came quickly.

Now Bonar Law has taken charge, and the Conservatives are in power, controlling fully three-fourths of Parliament, and what will be done next no one knows. Certainly, there will be no difference in the relations between Great Britain and the United States. No matter whether the Conservatives, Liberals or the Labor Party are in power all wish to be on the most friendly terms with you here.

Again, there can be but little change in the Irish question, for the majority of the people of England have decided that Ireland has been given dominion rule and ust be allowed to prosper without interference.

Lloyd George's downfall, however, has shown that the Coalition has been a lamentable failure. Whether the Conservatives will go before the people for a general election, as I believe they will, will not be known for a time but it is probable that they will, although they have the power to stay in office until late next year.

Better that we have an absolute Conservative or absolute Liberal Government than an attempt at coalition.

The Coalition movement is but a "give and take" matter at the best, and it can have no determined policy, save one determined by the circumstances that arise from time to time.

Blames Coalition Cabinet.

As to the Near East, all the blame should not fall on Lloyd George, despite the fact that he is the acknowledged head. The blame rests on all the members of the Cabinet. What Bonar Law will do no one knows as yet, but my position on his well-known policies is best expressed by the fact that I am standing against him in the exchange district of Glasgow, a district which comprises the principal business and financial part of the Scotch city.

It is well known that the Conservatives are pledged to a 33 1-3% tariff against countries which have a depleted currency, and also they are for a preferential rate for the dominions of the British Empire. It is my belief, especially at this time, that any attempt at the protective tariff, so called, in England now is the worst thing that could happen for the British Empire. It would be a disaster. At the present time it is essential to reduce the barrier against trade. The British Empire should pursue the policy of the "open door" if it is to live.

PROPOSED CUBAN LOAN OF $50,000,000—W. P. G. HARDING TO VISIT CUBA TO ASSIST IN WORKING OUT FINANCIAL PROBLEMS.

Following the recent adoption by the Cuban Congress of the $50,000,000 loan bill, it has been announced that W. P. G. Harding, former Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, will leave for Cuba next week to undertake a study of its financial conditions. The bill authorizing the $50,000,000 loan was referred to in our issue of Aug. 12, page 705; on Sept. 29 the Cuban House of Representatives approved the bill, and on Oct. 5 the Senate, according to special advices from Havana to the "Journal of Commerce," passed the bill by a vote of 17 to 3, approving all its sections except Article 19, which, it is stated, authorized the President to suspend definitely the profits tax. On the 6th inst. Associated Press advices from Havana said:

Approval by the House of Representatives of the $50,000,000 loan bill, as amended Thursday night by the Senate, and similar action by the Senate on the judiciary reform bill to-night completed the emergency reform program for Cuba recommended by Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, President Harding's personal representative in Cuba.

Negotiations with American bankers to float the loan will be started immediately by the Government. General Crowder is planning to leave Tuesday for Washington to confer on new phases of his mission, which will be resumed after the American Congressional election.

In reporting conferences had by Major-General Crowder with New York bankers, the "Journal of Commerce" of the 17th inst. said:

Wall Street bankers are understood to have been in conference yesterday with Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, representing the State Department, in regard to the proposed $50,000,000 Cuban loan. Dr. C. M. De Cespedes, the Cuban Minister, who is to become Cuban Secretary of State under the new administration, was expected here last night for further conferences to-day.

Although the bankers refused to discuss the loan, it was said in responsible quarters that they were in a friendly frame of mind. Major-General Crowder is understood to have assured them that the United States Government approves the loan. Only preliminary plans, it is reported, were taken up. The details will be worked out by representatives of the Cuban Government, State Department officials, and the American bankers involved.

Washington dispatches yesterday indicated that the State Department had given Minister Cespedes a cordial reception. He discussed Cuban affairs with Secretary of State Hughes, it was said, and was given to understand that the Government would give its O. K. to the loan.

Cuba wants the $50,000,000 to put the Republic on a sound financial basis. The $5,000,000 loan advanced by J. P. Morgan & Co. will be repaid, overdue salaries of Government employees will be adjusted and much needed improvements will be started.

On the 18th inst. the New York "Times" reported the following special advices from Washington:

Dr. Arturo Padro, Charge d'Affaires of the Cuban Legation, in a note presented to Secretary Hughes this afternoon, submitted the formal request of the Cuban Government for approval by the State Department of the proposed $50,000,000 Cuban Government loan.

Under the provisions of the so-called Platt amendment the consent of the American Government is required before Cuba can negotiate any loans, internal or foreign. No objection to the present loan is expected. The way for its flotation was paved by the recent action of the Cuban Government in putting through the legislative reform program which was advocted by Major-General Crowder as President Harding's personal representative in Cuba.

The money will be used to pay off the floating debt, including the short-term loan of $5,000,000 made last January by J. P. Morgan & Co., for a group of bankers. This was a one-year 6% loan. Part also will be used for important public works which the Cuban Government is contemplating or which already have been started.

The Cuban-American reciprocity treaty may be revised or amended as a result of consideration now being given at Washington and Havana, to the commercial relations between the two countries. In the discussion of this question, it is understood, the duty on Cuban imports into the United States, principally sugar, will receive consideration.

In referring to the fact that Governor Harding of the Reserve Board would probably go to Washington in the near future to assist the Cuban Government in its financial reforms, a New York "Times" Washington dispatch of Oct. 23 said in part:

The selection of Governor Harding is understood to have been one of the subjects discussed when General Crowder was in Washington last week conferring with Secretary Hughes and with Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, the Cuban Secretary of State, who is still here. Cuba also has made formal application to the State Department for approval of a proposed $50,000,000 loan in the United States. The State Department feels that the Cuban situation has cleared sufficiently to warrant such approval and already has indicated it will approve the request.

Governor Harding's services will consist principally, it is understood, in advising the framers of the proposed banking law, which is a part of the legislative reform program that still remains to be put through before Cuba is placed on a solid financial and economic basis. Much of the difficulty through which Cuba has passed is attributed to the fact that the Republic had no banking law. The contemplated banking system of Cuba may be modeled to a considerable extent, it is understood, on the Federal Reserve System, which already has been made the subject of special study by representatives of the Cuban Treasury. The system will be modified, of course, to suit the peculiar needs of Cuba.

The formal reply of the American Government to the request of Cuba, submitted last Thursday through its Legation here, for approval of the proposed loan of $50,000,000, had not been delivered to-day by the State Department, but it was stated that it probably would be ready very soon. It was learned to-day that the Cuban Charge d'Affaires, Dr. Arturo Padro, after having presented his first note to the State Department, delivered a supplementary one on the following day in which was given some additional information regarding the loan situation. It was not stated whether this information was requested by the State Department or whether the Cuban Government furnished it on its own initiative.

We also quote the following from the Washington bureau of the "Journal of Commerce" under date of the 26th inst.:

Reforms in Cuba's banking system of an important and far-reaching character are expected to follow the investigation and recommendations of former Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, who has been selected to make a study of the financial condition of the island, according to the Treasury officials to-day.

It is the hope of the American Government officials now interested in the study of Cuban economic conditions to evolve a banking system for Cuba generally along the lines of the Federal Reserve System. Officials explained that while the reserve could not be exactly duplicated for Cuba, most of the system's features could be amde avilable for use.

Plan Audit System.

The recommendations of Governor Harding also would include the establishment of an audit system similar to the American system, in all probability, officials said. This would provide an effective check upon unlimited expenditures on the part of the island Government and result in valuable economies, in the opinion of the Treasury.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced to-day that Governor Harding had agreed to undertake the study of Cuba's financial conditions at the request of the United States and at the suggestion of the Cuban Government. The former Federal Reserve Board head probably will leave by Nov. 1. The survey is expected to take at least a month or six weeks.

Secretary Mellon declared that the survey of Governor Harding would have no effect upon his chances for reappointment to the Federal Reserve Board. The Treasury official siad that appointment to fill the vacancy now existing in the Board's personnel would be held up until after Congress resumes its sessions and that by that time Governor Harding would have completed the most important part of his Cuban study.

Will Have Free Rein.

Treasury officials could not discuss plans of Governor Harding for his investigation. Governor Harding will be given free rein in his inquiry, and it is understood that no instructions have been given the official be the Treasury Department confining his efforts to any particular phases of the situation. However, Governor Harding will work in harmony with General Crowder, who has charge of bettering the island's economy position.

Any compensation for Governor Harding for his work in connection with the inquiry, officials said, would be forthcoming from the Cuban Government. It was at the request of that Government that the United States has invited Governor Harding to study the Cuban conditions, and as a consequence the United States will not incur the expense of financing the survey.

CLOSING OF MEXICAN CONSULATE AT NEW YORK.

The issuance of a writ of attachment against funds of the Mexican Government in depositaries in New York resulted in the issuance of an order by that Government closing the offices of the Consulate General in New York yesterday. From yesterday's (Oct. 27) "Financial America" we quote the following with regard thereto:

In local banking circles in which there is a complete understanding of the whole matter, it is pointed out, as announced by this Bureau in a Washington despatch, that the closing of the Mexican Consulate in this city was not in protest against the action brought against the Government by the Oliver American Trading Co., but against the action of the New York courts in issuing a writ of attachment against the Government's funds in local depositaries.

This controversy between the Mexican and the United States Governments antedates the Oliver American Trading case. In the summer of 1920, the Mexican Government placed an order through the Lebertan Corporation for 25 submarine chasers to cost a certain amount. Upon signing the contract in November of that year the Government made the first payment, amounting to $173,768 31 United States gold.

It developed in due time that, whereas the Lebertan Corporation had taken the first payment made by the Mexican Government, it had taken no steps toward making delivery of any part of the submarine chasers called for in the contract.

Accordingly, the Mexican Government brought action in the courts of this city to recover the money that it had paid to the Lebertan Corporaton. The latter's counsel maintained that inasmuch as the Mexican Goverment had not been recognized by the United States Government, the former could not bring action in a United States court against an American corporation. Judge Donnelly of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of this district sustained the defendant's counsel with respect to this contention.

The point now being made by the Mexican Government is that, whereas a New York court held that, because of non-recognition the Mexican Government had no standing in the United States courts with respect to the Lebertan Corporation case, a court in this city promptly issued a writ or attachment against the Government's fund here, upon the application of the Oliver American Trading Co., an American corporation.

Th Mexican Government holds that, if because of non-recognition it could not bring action against an American corporation, the court had no right to take action against it upon the application of such a corporation.

It is learned also that the position of the Mexican Government is that, although it has not been recognized by the United States, it nevertheless is a soverign nation, and consequently entitled to all the rights of such a nation.

Some extremely interesting and vital points in international law are involved in the case. The opinion prevails in local banking circles that the controversy will be cleared up within a short time and not be permitted to cause any serious international complications.

As to the writ of attachment the following appeared in the New York "Times" of Oct. 22:

A writ of attachment designed to tie up the funds of the Mexican Government in banks in New York City was served on J. P. Morgan & Co. on Friday in an action brought against the Mexican Government and the Mexican National Railways by the Oliver Trading Co. Thomas W. Lamont, one of the Morgan partners, denied last night that J. P. Morgan & Co. was the repository for any funds of the Mexican Government, and explained that the service of the writ on his firm, at least, was without effect.

The Oliver Trading Co. caused the writ of attachment to be issued in a suit to recover about $1,250,000 from the Mexican Government on claims arising from the private operations of the Mexican National Railway Lines during the revolutionary period of Carranza's Administration and subsequently. Up to last night no complaint had been served.

A summons in the action, however, was served on Carlos Felix, financial agent of the Mexican Government, in his offices at 120 Broadway, while a copy of the writ of attachment was served also upon the Consul-General of Mexico, R. E. Muzquiz, 7 Dey Street, and another copy of the same instrument was served on Representative De Hoyos of the National Railways of Mexico in his offices in the Woolworth Building.

The summons was issued last Wednesday in the Supreme Court, but the writs and copies of it were not served until later by the Sheriff, apparently because a number of banking institutions were believed to be the repository of the funds of the Mexican Government in the United States.

At the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. no secret was made of the belief that the action was intended to embarrass the Mexican Government. The same view was entertained by Jerome S. Hess of Hardin & Hess, 50 Pine Street, counsel for the Mexican Government. The Oliver Trading Co. is represented in the action by Zabriskie, Sage, Kerr & Gray, attorneys, 49 Wall Street.

"We represent both defendants, the Mexican Government and the National Railways of Mexico," said Mr. Hess, "but the matter is essentially one that concerns the railways, and the handling of the same will, therefore, in all probab lity be principally undertaken by the railways.

"No complaint was served upon the financial agent, and, therefore, the exact claim of the plaintiff, Oliver Trading Co., is not clearly defined. The offices of the National Railways of Mexico are without any definite information or data in respect to the character of the claim, but Mr. De Hoyes, the representative of the railways, will no doubt secure fuller data and information from Mexico.

"Mr. Oliver, of the Oliver Trading Co., claims that the railways owe him a certain sum of money for equipment which the Oliver Trading Co. operated on the National Railways of Mexico during the Carranza revolution and for some time thereafter, claiming that the railways no longer allow him to operate this equipment.

"This dispute arises by reason of the fact that the Administration Board of the National Railways desired to rid the system of the confusion arising from the use of private carriers on the National Railway Lines as distinguished from the regular facilities furnished by the railways themselves.

"During the troubled times in Mexico the practice grew up of private carriers operating their own equipment on the railroads. Both locomotives and cars were operated in this way by private owners. The equipment was not sold to the railways but was operated by the private carriers on the basis of paying existing freight rates to the Government and charging to the shippers a higher rate for the service of the carrier and his equipment.

"The National Railways of Mexico did not profit anything from this. They only received the regular tariff rates, while the private carrier, on the other hand, charged all the traffic would bear—and then some.

"When President Obregon appointed the Board of Administration to improve the traffic and transportation conditions on the Mexican Natioanl Railway lines the Board found it necessary to dispose with these private carriers for the purpose of restoring operating efficiency to a normal basis, and to rid the system of the confusion entailed by the private owners operating in a sort of competition with each other and with the railways themselves.

"It seems very unfortunate," observed Mr. Hess, "that the plaintiff has not seen fit to assert its claim through regular channels rather than embarrass the Mexican Government by seeking to interfere with its property in this country."

Mr. Felix, financial agent of the Mexican Government in the United States, who was served with the summons in the case, has twenty days in which to appear. He then may ask the court to direct the plaintiff to file the complaint in the case.

The Associated Press reported the following from Mexico City Oct. 24:

Nothing in the past year has aroused the newspapers to so much bitterness against the United States as the recent action of a New York court in granting a writ of attachment on funds of the Mexican Government on an action brought by the Oliver-American Trading Co.

Various Government officials share the view of the newspapers that international relations have been seriously impaired. The feeling prevails that the State Department of the United States by a mere word of disapproval could discourage such procedures against the Mexican Government.

Officials declined to be quoted on the details of the case, but President Obregon, answering the inquiry of "The Excelsior," which asked how a New York court had jurisdiction in the case, said that he knew the plaintiff had a transaction pending with railroads because the board of directors did not approve all the demands made by the plaintiff. President Obregon said: "The suit in New York will result in the same manner as did the case brought by Otto Kafka, as they are very similar."

Leon Salinas, former Chairman of the Board of Directors of the railroad, who is well acquainted with the facts in the case, issued a statement to-day outlining the history of the affair and justifying the action of the board.

The following from Washington is taken from the Brooklyn "Eagle" last night:

At the Mexican Embassy here it was said to-day that the closing of the Mexican Consulate in New York had been ordered because the building it occupies had been attached as a result of the decision of the New York State Supreme Court in the Oliver-American case. It was impossible for the Mexican officials to continue business under such circumstances. Charge Tellez of the Embassy said, adding that the Consulate would remain closed pending final adjustment of the litigation with the Oliver company.

It is not intended to close other consulates of the Mexican Government in this country, Mr. Tellez said, unless similar court actions are taken and the property attached, as was the case in New York. In that event, it was said, the Mexican Government would choose whatever properties the courts may attach.

GREAT BRITAIN'S MODIFICATION OF GERMAN REPARATIONS—LOUIS BARTHOU'S PLANS—REPARATIONS COMMISSION TO CONFER IN BERLIN.

The proposal by Chancellor Wirth of Germany that that country, as a result of the collapse of the mark, should declare general reparation bankruptcy, and announcement of a modification of Great Britain's position regarding reparations, have been important among the financial developments of the week. As to the latter, Associated Press cablegrams from Paris Oct. 24 said:

A modification of Great Britain's position regarding reparations, indicated by Sir John Bradbury at a meeting of the Reparations Commission this afternoon, will make it possible for the Commission to leave Paris for Berlin next Sunday with a unanimous Allied agreement on what measures will be imposed on Germany's financial administration for the purpose of averting a total collapse of that country.

The unanimous decision to go to Berlin was taken after Sir John Bradbury had definitely made known that he, on behalf of Great Britain, was willing to vote to declare Germany in voluntary default of her agreement provided she refused to carry out within a reasonable time requests for the internal reforms which the Commission will make in Berlin.

This was a big surprise to the Reparations Commission, since it was a decided concession to the French viewpoint. Heretofore the British representative had refused to declare Germany in default under any conditions, and also had declined to be a party to any move which might be construed as interfering with Germany's internal affairs.

Sir John had told M. Barthou, the French representative on the Commission that he thinks the Commission has the right to "suggest" certain drastic reforms in Germany's internal financial system, to the end that the budget may be balanced and the mark stabilized. Should Germany fail to make every effort to put the proposed reforms into effect, and thereby jeopardize her indemnity payments, Sir John thinks the time would then have arrived for the Commission formally to declare Germany in voluntary default.

It is not unlikely that the British already have obtained certain concessions from the French Government in return. It is reported that these may take the form of indefinitely postponing the Brussels financial conference, placing the entire reparations problem in the hands of the Commission, a point upon which Sir John Bradbury has been strongly insistent.

The fact that the Committee on Guarantees is not to accompany the Reparations Commission to Berlin is taken here to mean that France has altered her viewpoint, since the original French plan would have entrusted the imposition of new reforms to the Committee.

The exact character of the measures to be imposed upon Germany will be decided by the Commission between now and Sunday, certain general ideas already having been broadly agreed to. The Commission, however, realizes that inquiry in Berlin may force changes, and they therefore will leave their decisions open to possible alteration.

The gravest of reports concerning the financial condition in Germany have reached the Reparations Commission during the last two days. These reports had much to do with the decision of the Commission to proceed to Berlin. Roland W. Boyden, the American unofficial observer on the Commission, was one of the first to suggest the advisability of an inquiry on the ground as the best means for determining what additional reforms should be imposed.

The members of the Commission are agreed that the time has come to take radical action on the German situation if the complete financial breakdown of Germany is to be avoided. The British still hold that a long moratorium will be necessary to place Germany on her financial feet, aside from the good effect the new reforms may have. The American observer is believed to have endorsed this view. The French still maintain that, with the faithful carrying out of the new measures, Germany soon will be able to resume reduced, but nevertheless substantial, cash payment on her obligations.

Regarding Chancellor Wirth's bankruptcy proposals, we quote the following copyright cablegram from Berlin Oct. 23 to the New York "Times":

Chancellor Wirth this morning startled political circles by submitting for discussion at a Cabinet Council the question whether in view of the utter collapse of the mark Germany ought not to declare general reparation bankruptcy and default in payment in kind as well as in cash.

There is undeniably plenty of Teuton sentiment against further reparation, whether in cash, kind, services or any other form.

Late this evening Dr. Wirth was still conferring with party leaders as to advisability of such a dramatic move.

It is held to be of peculiar significance that before his meeting with the party leaders the Chancellor had a long conference with Hugo Stinnes on whether Germany could or should attempt to continue material payment under present conditions.

Dr. Wirth, it is believed, is trying to save himself politically by an open avowal of the futility of the "policy of fulfillment," of which he and the murdered Foreign Minister Rathenau were the originators. He paved the way for a lightning change of policy by recently reiterating the popular slogan, "First bread, then reparation," while the idea of a suspension of material reparation payments has latterly been zealously propagated by leading industrialists.

Geheimrat Kloeckner the other day told a stockholders' meeting that "Germany had now reached the end of her strength." Germany could only be saved from complete collapse, he said, by total discontinuance for a long time of gold payments for reparation purposes, further adequate reduction of reparation coal shipments and a very considerable reduction of paper mark payments for the armies of occupation and commissions.

Price of Bread to Be Doubled.

Even more ominous for the Government's peace of mind and continued existence is the bread problem—how to continue to furnish relatively cheap bread to the masses with the mark at 4,000 to the dollar and prospects of going lower. The German people are already being prepared for a hundred percent increase in the price of bread at the end of the month.

The bread crisis will reach its next period when the new bill comes up for third reading in the Reichstag this week.

The bourgeois members of the Reichstag committee administered a public slap to the Socialists and Radicals by agreeing to grant the agrarians a 400% increase in the maximum price for their grain under the new law. This is one of the most dangerous issues tossed into the national political arena since the revolution. Even if Dr. Wirth succeeds in compromising temporarily and saving his Government from being split by the bread issue the crisis is bound to crop up again in more acute form.

Berlin's municipal workers are greatly agitated again. They had demanded, and fully expected, advances on their October salary and prospective wage increases, the negotiations for which will not begin till the end of the week. But Berlin is "broke," and the municipality has declared its inability to make cash advances of any kind.

The term "great unwashed" as applied to the people is likely to become literally true this winter. To save coal bills, it has been decided to close the public baths from November to May. The municipality has likewise voted to discontinue work on a new crematory, so as to save coal and building costs.

The rejection by France of Sir John Brodbury's reparations proposals was referred to in our issue of Saturday last, page 1780. Under date of the 20th inst., Associated Press cablegrams from Paris gave an account, as follows, of the French plan for the financial control of Germany, presented to the Reparations Commission by Louis Barthou:

Complete and rigid control of all German finances, power to veto expenditures and regulate taxation, and authority to dictate the arrangement of the budgets of the various German States are among the chief proposals contained in the plan of the French Government for a solution of Germany's financial difficulties and for placing that country in a position to meet her reparations payments.

The plan was submitted to the Reparation Commission to-night by Louis Barthou, the French representative on the Commission, and discussion of the project will begin to-morrow.

Although not mentioned in the official summary, M. Barthou's plan contemplates a meeting of leading business men of the world to determine Germany's capacity to pay and to consider the question of inter-Allied debts.

The plan, in effect, is a reply to the British reparations project placed before the Commission by Sir John Bradbury. It differs radically from the British point of view. M. Barthou urges the calling of a Brussels conference to deal with a broad reparations settlement and Allied debts and the question of German payments in 1923 and 1924. France would limit the powers of the Reparation Commission to the application of new guarantees and reforms for Germany, leaving the more comprehensive issues to an international meeting.

The proposition would gradually put Germany on a gold basis, beginning with an issue of gold Treasury securities. M. Barthou would have Germany pay her outstanding obligations in currency, and he calculates that then Germany's paper circulation would be 510,000,000,000 marks, which at the present rate of exchange are worth less than the Reichsbank gold reserve.

Details of M. Barthou's proposal were carried in a New York "Times" copyright cablegram from Paris Oct. 20, which we give herewith.

The divergence in view which exists between the British representative on the Reparation Commission and his new French colleague, Louis Barthou, on both the capacity of Germany to pay and means which should be taken to secure payment was strikingly shown to-day, when M. Barthou tabled for the consideration of the Commission the French reply to the proposals made last week by Sir John Bradbury for meeting next year's payments by Germany.

In his memorandum Bradbury suggested what amounted to a two or four-year moratorium for Germany, but in order to comply with the form of continuing payments he suggested that five-year bonds should be issued for amounts to be agreed on as within German capacity to pay. His action was dictated by a desire to have a discussion of the whole question before a crisis should arise by a German request for a moratorium and also by a desire to try to discover some way of pegging the mark before its collapse should produce, as he fears it will, a situation like that which has been produced in Austria.

The French reply begins by the statement that it is not the French opinion that the Commission should take up the discussion of any moratorium scheme at the present time before the German Government has formulated a demand for relief. In any case it says such a moratorium could never be granted without taking guarantees.

The note than continues with a resume of the French arguments advanced in London last August and elsewhere that the fall in the mark in no way represents the real state of German solvency and points to the contrast between the German Government's insolvency and the "industrial prosperity" of the country. But, the note continues, the situation had much better be discussed at an inter-Allied meeting than by the Reparation Commission. And it urges that the Brussels Conference be assembled as soon as possible.

Experience of temporary moratoriums, says M. Barthou, have proved in no way convincing that a new moratorium would improve the situation. Other solutions and other measures are needed, and among the first which is envisaged is stabilization of the German budget "by the absolute interdiction of further inflation."

In order to produce this desirable result, M. Barthou continues, there must be "rigorous control of the budget of the Reich, and, if necessary, of the budgets of the German States. This control should not be limited simply to supervision, but should have an effective force on the finances of the Reich."

In order that this control should be effective, the French delegate suggests that the powers of the Committee on Guarantees be interpreted in such a way as to allow it full liberty to dictate to the German Government on matters both of expenditure and income. For this purpose it should be transferred to Berlin and should be given full powers to inquire into every detail of German finances, fix the minimum taxation and maximum expenditures, increase at will when it thinks necessary the amount of taxation in order to include in the budget the reparations payments due. The right to report the voluntary failure of Germany to fulfill her obligations and provision for sanctions is, of course, included in the French proposals as to powers of the committee.

Further, the German Treasury must not try to raise any loans without the consent of the Committee, and the Reichbank is forbidden to discount Treasury bonds. Such a program as that, the note adds, is, of course, beyond the scope of the commission and must be decided on by the Allied Goverments.

The French proposals may be regarded as a timely statement to the incoming British Government of the minimum terms on which France will discuss the reparations problems. The intention of the Government is evidently to try once more to give the British the choice between debt cancellation and complete control of Germany by Allied officials backed by Allied armies.

Political Document, British Declare.

Such at least the choice appears to the British delegate on the Reparation Commission, who described the French note this evening as " in no sense a financial document, but a political document of first importance which certainly has no place in the discussions of the commission."

Here are the seven proposals which form the conclusion of Barthou's communication:

1. That Germany's finances be immediately placed under control of the creditors of Germany, within specified limits.

2. That all necessary measures be takenlin order to establish the equilibrium of the budget and to maintain it, whie simultaneously and progressively introducing in expenditure that part of the reparations of which the payment has not been assured by other means and loan charges contracted for and amortization of capital of the reparation debt.

3. That the Treasury be forbidden to discount bonds, of whatever nature they may be, to the Reichsbank and submitall Treasury bond issues, whether long or short term, to interallied control.

4. That the Reichsbank be placed under interallied control, whose business will be to survey the execution by the latter of all measures imposed by the Allies and which necessitates intervention of the control commission.

5. That further stringent measures which may be necessary be taken by interallied control committee to halt leakage of capital out of the country and buying and storing of foreign moneys in the country.

6. That as soon as circumstances permit, Treasury bonds be issued, the placing of which could be facilitated by a fiscal arrangement, and that the proceeds of these borrowings shall serve exclusively, on the one hand, so far as may be necessary to reinforce the metallic reserve of the Reichsbank, with a view to assuring success of monetary reform and, on the other hand, to pay in part reparations which may not be inscribed in the budget.

7. That the German Government continue to levy in gold or in good foreign moneys 25% of the total value of exportation. The proceeds of this levy as well as the proceeds of customs on importation and taxes on exportation will be paid into a special account opened at the Reichsbank in the name of the Guarnatees Committee and specially controlled by the latter. The German Government will have the disposition of sums existing on the credit side of this account so long as the Reparation Commission estimates that he German Goverment is fulfilling those obligations which have been or may be imposed by the Reparation Commission. If at any moment the latter estimates that this is not the case, the Guarantees Committee will take possession of the sums standing to tne credit of this account and of all subsequent payments to this account.

In taking the matter of relief before the Commission Sir. John Bradbury wished to prepare the way for the possible international financial conference at Brussels which has been proposed by the French but not yet accepted by the British Government. Further, he considered that the delay which must elapse before the conference could meet might prove disastrous in view of the rate at which the mark is falling. He thought the matter was urgent then, and his view has not changed to-day.

When he filed his memorandum he hoped that the French would reply with some positive suggestions along the same lines as those which he himself was making. But the reply handed in to-day has proved that the French Government is not prepared to yield an inch except on condition that the Brussels Conference, which it assumes to be a settled affair, provides at the same time some scheme for cancellation of interallied debts.

In stating that the plan submitted by Louis Barthou as a solution for Germany's financial difficulties and for placing the country in a position to meet her reparation payments was sharply attacked by sections of the press, which declared it to be an overt assault on the sovereignty of the German Republic, the Associated Press in cablegrams from Berlin Oct. 22 added:

"Democracy, self-determination, the parliamentary system and all State sovereignty would vanish if the French plan were put into execution," says the "Vossische Zeitung," which views the scheme as an attempt to place Germany under rigorous financial guardianship. This newspaper believes the proposed procedure would be productive of much internal embitterment, political convulsions and economic disorder and would result in a dollar exchange rate of from five to ten thousand marks and in the end would fail to accomplish the desired result—yield reparations.

"A new reparation crisis is at hand" says the "Kreuz Zeitung," which believes the French Government in the present move is deliberately planning "economic blackmail" of Germany, especially as M. Barthou's memorial provides for "far-flung supervision to which the federated States as such would be subjected, while the Reichsbank's autonomy, which was established at the Entente's behest, would be automatically annulled."

Further Associated Press advices from Berlin Oct. 24 stated:

It is semi-officially announced that the German Government will invite a number of prominent financial experts to come to Berlin and discuss measures for the stabilization of the mark.

Among the experts who are to be invited are Professor John Maynard Keynes, the British financial expert, and Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks of New York University, former financial adviser to the Chinese Government. Professor Jenks is now investigating economic conditions in Germany. It is also stated that a leading official of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York will be invited.

The Government's plan to solicit the aid of the foreign experts in connection with its efforts to correct the financial situation, was announced late to-night. It had not been made public when the Reichstag adjourned this afternoon for two weeks. The full list of experts who will take part in the conference will not be made public until their acceptances of the invitation have been received.

Reichstag leaders believe the Chancellor has thoroughly recognized the unfeasibility of carrying out his program of fulfillment and that the Government, faced by the pressure of the economic situation, will adopt a wholly new orientation regarding the entire range of reparation issues.

We likewise quote from Associated Press accounts from Berlin Oct. 25:

The financial critics profess to see in to-day's improvement of the mark over New York's closing rate of Tuesday an indication that the arrival here next week of M. Barthou, Sir John Bradbury and other members of the Reparations Committee presages of something more concrete than informal discussions with the heads of the German Government.

In short, the Berlin optimists believe that the forthcoming pourparlers will inaugurate a decisive re-alignment of the Entente's reparations policies, hastened through the precipitate collapse of the mark.

The Government learned of the decision of the Reparations Commission to visit Berlin during Tuesday's session of the Reichstag, and the unexpected news prompted Chancellor Wirth to abandon his plan to discuss reparations and the stabilization of the mark before the Reichstag.

The Chancellor and the members of his Cabinet are devoting the few remaining fays before the arrival of M. Barthou and his colleagues to accumulating data with which the Government purposes to confront the Allied reparations chiefs. The coming of the members of the Commission is being viewed as an event of far greater political and economic importance than the Government's plan to call in neutral financial experts to discuss means for stabilizing the mark.

Much curiosity is being exhibited over the Government's procedure in paralleling the official visit of the Reparations Commission with an independent survey of the situation by foreign experts, several of whom are known to be sharply at variance with the reparations theories cherished in Paris. Official quarters reiterated to-day that the plan to invite the experts to Berlin with the purpose of discussing financial reforms antedated the Reparations Commission's notification of its impending visit, and that the German Government did not plot to oppose the presence of the Entente representatives with "a counter irritant."

Advice for Chancellor.

The "Allgemeine Zeitung," organ of Hugo Stinnes, to-day urges Chancellor Wirth to hand out "plain talk, instead of commonplace oratory," when conferring with the Reparations Commissioners, who, the newspaper adds, should be made to understand that frank cross-table talk is preferable to a policy of enunciating decrees and dictates from Paris.

A section of the press warns the Chancellor to be prepared for a proposition from the Allies involving far-flung financial guardianship over Germany, and demands that the Chancellor summorily reject any proposal which might transgress German sovereignty.

Dr. Wirth this afternoon discussed the problem of curbing speculation in gold currencies with a number of the leading bankers, with the purpose of increasing the Government's present emergency measures.

The Government has failed to make progress in connection with its proposed issue of Treasury notes backed by gold, having been unable to break down the objections of President Havenstein of the Reichsbank to the plan. Havenstein believes that such an issue would be merely a futile attempt to reach the symptoms of the trouble.

In a Paris cablegram Oct. 26 the Associated Press had the following to say:

The Reparations Commission this afternoon decided unanimously upon its program for its coming visit to Berlin. Final decision on what new reforms will be demanded, however, were delayed until after the Berlin inquiry, as some of the members expressed the view that the uncertainty of the present situation in Germany made it impossible for the Commission to lay down any fixed demands upon Germany until they had seen for themselves what could be done.

The Commission voted to make a thorough investigation of Germany's internal finances, with special reference to budget expenses, the collection of taxes, what has been done to prevent the removal of capital from the country and the depreciation of the mark. The effect that inter-Allied control of German finances would have on the problem also is to be studied.

Sir John Bradbury, British member of the Reparations Commission, left Paris for London to-night to confer with the new British Government prior to proceeding to Berlin. The Commission will be accompanied to the German capital by a large staff of experts and secretaries. It is expected that it will remain in Berlin for ten days or two weeks.

GERMAN REICHSTAG PROLONGS TERM OF PRESIDENT EBERT.

The German Reichstag by a vote of 314 to 76 on Oct. 24 decided to prolong the term of Friedrich Ebert in the German Presidency until June 30 1925. The extension of President Ebert's term became a certainty last week, when the political parties agreed to the introduction of a bill in the Reichstag amending the Constitution to that effect. Herr Ebert was elected Provisional President by the National Assembly at Weimar before the adoption of the Constitution, which provides that the President shall be elected by universal suffrage for a term of seven years. The question of an election under the Constitution has been pressing for some time, but it was recently decided that the present unsettled conditions were unsuitable for a Presidential campaign and the extension of President Ebert's term was therefore deemed advisable.

STRANGULATION OF GERMAN COTTON INDUSTRY THREATENED BY DECREE RESTRICTING DEALINGS IN FOREIGN CURRENCY.

On Oct. 15 the Associated Press in Bremen cablegrams said:

The Cotton Exchange here has wired the Government authorities in Berlin that the new decree restricting dealings in foreign moneys threatens strangulation to the cotton industry in Germany.

The protest says the decree forces home spinners to buy raw supplies in the United States, instead of Bremen, and that it will shortly bring the domestic cotton industry to a complete standstill. It also maintains that it is essential that sales shall be made on a dollar basis, since supplies must be bought with American currency.

MORATORIUM ON GERMAN CLEARINGS.

On Oct. 23 the Associated Press announced the following advices from Berlin:

Representatives of the Allied and German clearing offices reached an agreement to-day whereby Germany will be freed from payment under the clearing procedure until July 1923. This agreement will be laid before the Allied and German Governments.

Earlier accounts in the matter from Berlin (Associated Press, Berlin, Oct. 20) stated:

There is a difference of £10,000,000, it is reported, between the amount the Allies claim is owed by the Germans in clearing payments and the sum Germany maintains is due.

Negotiations are now proceeding in Berlin in an effort to obtain an agreement between the Allied demands for £35,000,000 and the £25,000,000 recognized by Germany. Slow progress is being made, however.

It is stated that the German negotiators have announced that in any case there is no prospect of immediate payment. The Allied representatives are reported to have pointed out that the question of the republic's solvency has in no wise entered into the matter, since the obligations comprise strictly private debts.

The outstanding fact is that there has been some discussion of seeking a solution along the lines of the Belgian reparation settlement in Treasury bills.

SOVIET PLANS ISSUE OF GOLD CURRENCY.

The following copyright cablegram from Moscow, Oct. 12, was published by the New York "Times" Oct. 14:

Soviet Russia is going back to the gold basis. At least this is the aim of the decree published to-day authorizing the State Bank to issue gold certificates in bills of 10, 20, 30, 50, 100, 200 and 500 gold rubles backed by "not less than a quarter of the total amount issued" in precious metals, foreign currency, and bills of exchange.

This move is the latest challenge of the Soviet authorities to theories of Western economists. It is an attempt to make valid in defiance of their criticism the Soviet contention that Russia was already virtually on a gold basis in that the paper ruble only has a purchasing value in relation to its value to gold which generally is known and recorded from day to day.

After a long period of stabilization at about 4,000,000 to the dollar Soviet paper experienced a dreadful slump in the past six weeks. To-day it is fairly steady around 15,000,000 to the dollar, but it actually touched about 20,000,000 last week-end. A few days before there were wholesale arrests of money "speculators," whose transactions on the curb market or "Black Bourse" had been sanctioned for the best part of twelve months. The result was a bitter shock to the radical section of Communist opinion, which always attributes things it doesn't like to the nefarious action of "capitalism" and seems to want to adopt the slogan "When in doubt arrest the nearest bourgeois."

The slump of the paper ruble continued with increased velocity. The reason is simple enough—every one of 10,000 business men in Moscow, large and small, Government trusts or private firms, had realized that when the paper began to drop the only currency that would secure their position and enable them to conduct business on a certain basis was gold. Accordingly there was a quite unprecedented demand for gold and foreign bills everywhere which sent its price soaring. The new gold certificate issue is intended to remedy one of the worst drawbacks of Russian business recovery—the excessive shortage of currency in terms of gold value. Reckoning the paper ruble at 15,000,000 to the dollar, the whole currency issue in its "astronomical" figures of trillions cannot amount to more than $25,000,000—a ridiculously small sum for the business of a huge country like Russia.

The amount of the issue of gold certificates is not stated, but I am informed it is reckoned there is solid security on a 25% basis for an issue of 500,000,000 rubles, of $250,000,000, which, without perhaps being fully adequate, would make a great difference.

The decree expressly states that dates will be published later on which it is possible to exchange the new certificates for gold or foreign currency. This evidently means the State bank is prepared to hold them at par value by the sound old method which obtains in no other European country to-day. There is also a proviso whereby the amount issued will be published every fortnight. If part value can indeed be maintained the new money, doubtless, will have a stabilizing effect on the previous paper issues, which I understand it is proposed to "peg" at a somewhat better figure.

FRANCE RETURNS TO USE OF DARK BREAD—WHEAT CROP SHORTAGE.

The Department of Commerce at Washington reports in the Oct. 2 issue of "Commerce Reports" the following advices from Consul Sample B. Forbus, Paris, under date of Aug. 11:

Owing to the estimated shortage of 2,000,000 tons in the 1922 French wheat harvest, measures are being taken to decrease the quantity of wheat which will have to be purchased abroad by controlling the milling percentage of wheat and authorizing the use of substitutes for wheat flour in bread making. Extracts from a translation of the decree of July 28 1922, promulgated in the "Journal Officiel" of Sept. 1 1922, prescribing the manner in which flour must be manufactured are given herewith:

Article 1. On and after Sept. 1 1922 the manufacture of flour must be performed in such manner as to extract from the wheat the maximum quantity of flour suitable for making bread. This whole flour will be considered as extracted at a percentage below which wheat-flour milling products can not be manufactured, offered for sale, or sold.

Art. 2. In order to make sure that the flour products conform to the provisions of the present decree, they will be compared with a single official standard of whole flour, fixed by a commission appointed by the Minister of Agriculture. This standard will represent the whole flour which it will be forbidden to surpass in quality and whiteness.

Art. 5. An order issued by the Minister of Agriculture on the advice of the Commission of the Utilization of Wheat will set forth the conditions and proportions in which, in derogation of Article 1, certain flours may be manufactured at a lower milling percentage and used to supply certain special industries, particularly biscuit manufacturers.

A translation of the decree is on file in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and, upon application to the Foodstuffs Division of the Bureau may be examined by those interested.

The French wheat crop shortage was referred to in our issue of July 15, page 262, mention being made in the item to the law authorizing the French Government to issue a decree permitting the use of substitutes in wheat and flour and to compel millers to use a larger percentage of wheat substitutes in making flour. On Sept. 30 Associated Press advices from Paris said:

France's wheat crop for 1922 is more than one-fourth short of last year's production and nearly one-third under the customary annual requirements according to statistics prepared by the Ministry of Agriculture and officially published to-day. The rye crop also is insufficient, but oats and barley are more abundant than last year.

The wheat yield is estimated at 64,000,000 quintals, as compared with 88,000,000 last year and the country's normal requirements of 94,000,000. This is due to a reduction of 600,000 acres in the area planted, to the small yield per acre and to bad weather.

Remedial measures already taken include a decree compelling the millers to utilize a larger percentage of wheat grain in flour and preliminary purchases abroad already amounting to 7,000,000 quintals. These were bought in the United States and Canada at less than the prices prevailing here.

For the last month France has been living on her old reserves because of the late harvest, so there actually are only eleven months to cover. It is estimated, therefore, that the shortage would have been only 24,000,000 quintals, and as 7,000,000 were bought abroad, there remain needed 17,000,000 quintals.

But no difficulty is expected, as the wheat exporting countries, such as the United States and Canada, are believed to have a surplus of 50,000,000 quintals above the needs of Europe, where the average shortage is 15%.

The rye crop is estimated at 9,500,000 quintals, as compared with 11,250,000 in 1921; oats, nearly 42,000,000, as compared with 35,500,000; barley, 8,750,000, as compared with 8,350,000, and the crop of mixed wheat and rye at 1,166,000, as compared with 1,500,000 quintals in1921.

On the same date the New York "Times" in a copyright cablegram from Paris stated:

The Government now officially estimates a large deficit in the French wheat crop this year below requirements. For the country's home consumption 90,000,000 quintals is estimated to be necessary and this would normally be raised on a sowing of 5,500,000 hectares.

This year, however, owing to the bad weather and other considerations, only 5,140,000 hectares were sown, and the probable harvest is estimated at 64,000,000 quintals, which would be 30,000,000 below the country's needs, a shortage of one-third.

FRENCH FOOD PRICES SOAR.

The New York "Times" reports the following copyright cablegram from Paris Oct. 23:

At a public meeting yesterday M. Cheron, the French Minister of Agriculture, announced that the number of cattle, pigs, horses and poultry in France was back again at the pre-war figures.

"France," he said, "has made a wonderful recovery and in a few years we will be able to export meat."

"Yet," add all the Paris newspapers to-day in commenting on the statement, "the price of beefsteaks and eggs still goes soaring."

A few days ago from all the wine districts came reports that never before had there been such a plentiful wine crop. "Yet," comments the press, "the price of wine has risen during the past two weeks."

Paris has quite suddenly started profiteering again. A beginning has been made almost simultaneously with the fall in the price of the franc, and just as in the case of the franc there seems to be no way of discovering where the business is going to end. Both newspapers and Deputies have begun to take the matter up, and Deputy Marin declares that the price of foodstuffs is higher to-day than in 1918, at the time of the armistice, though supplies are available in the country fully back to normal. Everyone blames the Chamber of Deputies for not having backed up the judges in punishing the profiteers, but with a fatalism that always characterizes the French, every one seems content to place the blame on some one else, while the game goes merrily along.

RETURN TO WAR BREAD PROPOSED IN ITALY TO OVERCOME DEFICIT.

Under date of Oct. 13, press advices from Rome stated:

With a view to making all possible efforts to overcome the deficit in the State budget, which now exceeds 6,000,000,000 lire, Minister of the Treasury Paratore proposes to bring about a return to the use of war bread.

The bread will be made of a mixture of wheat and other cereals to decrease grain purchases in the United States.

SEMI-GOVERNMENTAL BANK OPENED IN FAR EASTERN REPUBLIC.

The following information regarding the Bank of the Far Eastern Republic furnished to Trade Commissioner Mayer of the Department of Commerce at Washington by officials of the bank at Chita, was made public by the Department on Oct. 21:

The bank, a semi-governmental institution, was opened with headquarters at Chita on April 25 1922; the board of directors consists of five members, three representing the Government of the Far Eastern Republic, one representing the Chita Chamber of Commerce, and one representing the Centrosoyus or Union of Co-operative Societies. The bank has an authorized capital of two million gold rubles, as yet not fully subscribed. The Government proposes to hold 55% of the stock and the remainder is open to subscription by private individuals and firms. Foreigners may buy shares under certain conditions. Branches have been established in Verhkne Udinsk, Stretensk, Blagoveschensk, Troitskosavsk and Bergusin and Harbin. The Harbin branch of the International Banking Corporation is at present the principal foreign correspondent. The Bank of the Far Eastern republic is empowered to exercise all the functions of a regular commercial bank.

The balance sheet of the bank as of date Aug. 1 1922, including the business of the branches without elimination of duplications, shows total assets of 4,600,654 rubles (excluding 877,950 rubles of shares unsubscribed but including 659,160 of stock subscriptions not yet paid up).

EXPANSION OF LAND BANK OF SOUTH AFRICA.

The following from Consul Charles J. Pisar, Cape Town, appeared in "Commerce Reports" of Oct. 2:

During the recent session of the Union Parliament, a law was passed granting the Land Bank of South Africa considerable power, which will enable it to expand its operations and eventually finance itself. Formerly the land bank was restricted to financing the seasonal requirements of products handled by co-operative societies. The new law enables it to make loans for long periods to co-operative societies with limited liability, subject to certain stringent provisions as to security. The conditions on which these loans will be made include a measure of control by the bank over the shares of the borrowing society; and the societies will be required to include in their articles of association provision that these shall not only be the ordinary liability of such society, but also contingent liabilities, so that in case of the failure of the society to meet its liability to the bank its individual members will be liable to a special call.

At the present time the Government has approximately £6,000,000 invested in the land bank. The new law gives the bank borrowing powers in the sense that it may sell its debentures or stock to the public, as well as receive deposits, withdrawable at not less than one month's notice. For the present, the bank may still apply to the Government for financial assistance, and for the coming year £500,000 has been appropriated forthis purpose. It is the ultimate idea, however, for the bank to finance itself, and from 1925 onwards it will be expected to repay to the State the money already advanced to it.

SAVINGS BANK ENTERPRISE—IMPORTANT RESULTS ON NEW LINES.

In an article entitled "Thrift and the Mutual Savings Bank," published in the "Bankers Magazine" for September, James Dana Coit, Assistant Treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank, Norwich, Conn., describes the remarkable success with which the efforts of this institution to induce saving among industrial workers and school children are being attended. The savings banks of the country are quite generally proceeding in this same field, having been aroused thereto by the demonstration of saving capacity afforded in connection with the subscriptions for the several issues of Liberty Loan bonds and Victory notes during the Great War. The Chelsea Savings Bank, however, appears to have added to the personal appeal of its representative some simplified methods of its own, so that the individuals have been reached and brought into close contact with the bank with a minimum of labor and inconvenience to overworked school teachers and the managers of the several industrial establishments approached.

An entirely new feature of the bank's activity appears to be the endeavor, meeting with instantaneous success, to persuade small industrial concerns and merchants to provide against contingencies and times of financial stress by establishing reserve funds with the bank.

What such measures for thrift, wealth and conservation management must mean if universally applied throughout the nation it is hardly necessary to emphasize. Mr. Coit says in part:

The mutual savings banks of this country have joined together in a concerted effort to increase the number of their bank depositors from 11,000,000 in 1921 to 20,000,000 in 1930. They are using every means possible.

Probably the war demonstrated as clearly as anything else the possibility of thrift in this country. A small New England city with a population of only 28,000 raised $9,077,900 in the five Liberty Loans with 34,648 persons subscribing. One of the savings banks of this city, which we will call "The Home Savings Bank," had 5,279 partial payment subscriptions, amounting to $490,250, almost all of which were bought on the installment basis of $2 per week on a $50 bond and bought by the laboring people.

For a great many years the mutual savings banks have been regarded as dead institutions—carefully and conservatively run for the benefit of those who wanted to save and have their funds taken care of, but not doing a great deal to encourage new savers. This is all very different now. To-day the savings banks are live business institutions which are striving in every way to aid not only their depositors but everyone to practice thrift—not only aid, but urge, to save regularly and systematically.

Thrift Clubs in 25 Industrial Plants—Company Co-operation.

It will be interesting to take up a few of the features which this "Home Savings Bank" of the same New England city has installed along this line. Realizing how much money had been accumulated during the war and how easily through the sale of Liberty bonds on installments, a plan was worked out by which the wage earner may make regular systematic weekly deposits in this bank without any inconvenience to him or loss of time from work, the "Industrial Thrift Club" was inaugurated, which is now operating in 25 industrial plants in and around this city.

The plan is very simple. An employee of a company may sign an order authorizing its paymaster to deduct any amount that he desires from one dollar up, from his pay envelope each week and deposit the same for him in the bank. The paymaster places a small green certificate in the employee's pay envelope each week certifying that that week's deposit has been made. These certificates are receipts for the deposit. When the first deposit is received from the employee of a certain mill, a regular savings bank account is opened for him and the book mailed directly to him. This deposit account is covered by the regular savings bank laws and is identical with the accounts which are opened through our teller's window.

When installing this club, the writer was very much impressed with the attitude of the management of all the companies. He has called on and discussed this plan with the officers of 51 industrial concerns in the vicinity of this city. Of these 51 companies there were just two who were not interested in this plan because they had no interest in their help. "The help did as little as possibel for them, and why should they do anything for them in return" was their attitude. Three companies had plans of their own, such as selling their capital stock on installments to their employees.

But the most impressive thing was that the management of the 49 out of the 51 were not only willing to install the plan for the good of their help, but were willing and enthusiastic to push the scheme as hard as possible. For instance, the largest company approached was so enthusiastic about it that they started similar clubs in all of their plants through the local banking institutions of the towns where they are located, copying the "Home Savings Bank" forms exactly. There are various special reasons why several companies have not installed the club as yet but probably will later on.

800 Mill Operatives Already Are Members of Industrial Thrift Club.

At the present time there about about 800 mill operatives who are members of this Industrial Thrift Club, each saving one dollar or more each week. The average for the week of this writing is $2 45 per member. This is on a basis of $75,000 to $100,000 in one year. Most of these people are the young men and girls, those who have been in the habit of spending all they have earned and of saving nothing. This cannot help but be a great benefit to this New England town as well as to the individual mill employees and to the bank.

Two or three of the bank's force canvass each mill, going directly into each room and talking to the operatives at their machines. Great care is taken not to urge anyone in a dictatorial way that it is their duty and that they ought to have money. It is surprising to see how many catch the idea and are delighted to take advantage of this easy method of saving money. During the past six months, the writer has talked with several thousand persons on the subject of thrift. It has been intensely interesting.

In one of the first mills taken on, notices of the club, which have an order attached at the bottom for the employee to sign authorizing the paymaster to make the weekly deduction, were inserted in the pay envelopes, and three weeks elapsed without any interest being shown by the employees. The Assistant Treasurer went to one of the officers of the company whom he knew very well, and asked if he could suggest any way to arouse the interest of the help. It was suggested that the Assistant Treasurer go into the mill and talk with one of the foremen, which he did. The foreman suggested that he explain the scheme directly to some of the help. He stayed in that mill for about an hour and a half, and when he left he had 42 members enrolled, with a total of about $65 a week That was in October of last year, and with the exception of a few who have left the employment of the company, practically all of those who joined are still members, saving each week and now have savings account with from $30 to $75.

It is only a case of getting the people started and impressing them with the fact that small amounts saved regularly accumulate into large amounts in a surprisingly short time. Many people feel that the banks do not care to be bothered with a few dollars at a time and that it is not worth their while to take the trouble of saving in that way. The other day a Thrift Club member came into the bank with his book showing only the original entry of his first week's deposit of $3. The book was written up and returned to him showing a balance of $63. He said there must be a mistake as his account could not amount to as much as that. It was figured up that he had been in the club for 21 weeks, depositing $3 each week, and that he had saved $63. He was perfectly delighted and said that it was the first money he had ever saved and that the best of it was that he had not missed a cent of it. Through his influence, the next week several new members were enrolled from that mill.

Mercantile Reserve Funds a New Feature.

If systematic saving is advantageous to the individual why should it not also be advantageous for the merchant and business house? This question came to the writer's mind recently. After talking with a few merchants he discovered that scarcely any stores carried anything in the description of a reserve fund or sinking fund for contingencies that might arise in the future. Consequently, "The Home Savings Bank" has recently opened a new department known as "The Mercantile Reserve Department," which specializes in inducing the business houses of the city in making regular systematic deposits of from $20 to $50 weekly which are placed to the credit of the firm. These accounts receive the regular bank dividends and are subject to the regular savings account rules of the bank. Everything possible is done to aid the stores in making their deposits with as little trouble and delay as possible.

During the first week that this new feature was offered to the merchants 27 out of 38 made their first weekly deposits. The balance delayed action in order to talk with other members of the firm. Only one merchant was not interested. He claimed to have all the funds he would ever need. With that one exception every business house consulted has adopted this method of creating a reserve, which they have not previously had, or for some special reason has deferred coming in until a later date.

Like many other savings banks, "The Home" has found that being opened a short time Saturday evening has been a great help to the working people. Quite a number have started the habit of coming regularly each week and depositing small amounts who could not do their banking business during the day or without losing any time from their work.

The "Home" also sends a representative to two neighboring mill villages to receive deposits each Tuesday afternoon, which is pay day in the mills in those villages. This is proving to have a very good effect on thrift in these villages, where new regular savers are being secured.

There are Christmas Clubs and Vacation Clubs which instill a spirit of systematic savings. Many contend that these clubs are contrary to the real idea of thrift, as the money saved is returned to the depositors at Christmas time to be spent on Christmas presents—something that is very much overdone and causes a large amount of money to be wasted each year. But as a matter of fact, from 30 to 40% of the Christmas Club funds run by savings banks are immediately transferred from the club department to the regular savings department and not spent on presents. It is the writer's contention that such clubs are beneficial and instill the right kind of spirit.

Savings Bank Department in 61 Schools.

There is another method which is being used to lay the seed of thrift, and with great results. This is through the school savings. There are many different ways in which this is handled. Some banks supply each school building with a slot machine in which pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters may be inserted for which stamps are given out. These stamps are pasted on cards by the children. After a card has stamps representing a dollar, it is accepted by the bank as cash and is deposited to the child's savings account. There are other very elaborate schemes which necessitate a good deal of work on the part of the teacher, which is a very bad feature, as the teachers have all they can attend to.

"The Home Savings Bank" has evolved a very simple scheme which is meeting with very good results in 61 schools in this vicinity. Each school has what is called a "banking hour" immediately after prayers each Monday morning. At this time the children bring their money to the teacher's desk and deposit what they have with the teller. One of the older scholars always acts as the teller. Each pupil has a card with his name and address on it on which the teller enters the date and amount deposited. The teller has a pad made up of duplicate forms, one white sheet and one yellow sheet. The teller enters the name of the school, teacher and date at the head of the form and below the name and amount of each deposit received.

After the deposits are all made, our juvenile receiving teller counts the cash received and foots up the total of the deposits entered on the sheet and then the two must agree. We feel that this little banking experience is a very important part of school savings, as it gives the children a little practical experience and also tends to keep up their interest.

Any amount from one cent up may be deposited. Each pupil's first deposit is acknowledged with a personal letter and a Club Button. It has been found that these buttons are worn with great pride by the children and that they are an incentive for other children to join so that they may also have a button. Each time a dollar is accumulated by a child, it is transferred from the school department to our regular savings department, and he receives a regular bank book and the regular bank dividends.

The writer has gone to many of the schools and has spoken to many of the children, telling them about the school savings club and has invited them to come to the bank and see how the inside of a bank looks. One little fellow from a neighboring town, not more than seven or eight years old, came in one very busy Saturday morning. He introduced himself and said he belonged to our school club and wanted to see the bank. We showed him our safe, adding machines, packages of money, etc. He was most interested and stayed with us for nearly an hour.

The interest which the teachers and State supervisors of schools are taking in this work is a source of great gratification to the bank officers. There is no question that school savings are going to have a great effect on the coming generation. It is getting the young started and making them feel that they have a personal connection with a savings bank, and giving them a good start on the right road.

PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF A BRANCH BY THE NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE IN DETROIT—PRESIDENT HARDING'S ENDORSEMENT OF COMPTROLLER CRISSINGER'S POLICY.

The fact that the National Bank of Commerce in Detroit is preparing to open a branch, the first national bank branch in Detroit, it is stated—is of interest in view of the discussion which developed relative to the question at the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, details of which are given in our "American Bankers' Convention Section," issued on Saturday, Oct. 21. The General Convention, as we have previously indicated ("Chronicle" Oct. 7, page 1599), expressed its "disapproval and opposition to branch banking in any form by State or national banks in our nation." Despite the stand taken by the bankers, it was announced in Washington press dispatches Oct. 6 that it had been officially stated at the White House on that day that President Harding cordially endorsed the policy of Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger with respect to the establishment of branch offices by national banks. The dispatches added:

The Administration feels, it was said, that unless Congress enacts legislagoverning the question the Federal Government should never consent to a policy that would put the national banks out of business. National banks, it was contended, should be permitted to maintain branches wherever branches of State banks are allowed.

In reporting that the National Bank of Commerce in Detroit had received permission from Comptroller Crissinger to open a branch, and that the bank had for the purpose taken a 10-year lease for its office in the General Motors Building and contracted for furniture and fixtures, the "Wall Street Journal" of the 19th inst. remarked:

Richard P. Joy, President, says of the branch bank situation, particularly as it affects Detroit:

"It is manifestly much safer as well as more convenient for an individual to do his banking with one strong bank having a capital and surplus of say $8,000,000, which maintains 25 branches or agencies than to bank with any one of 25 separate individual banks each having a capital and surplus of $320,000. It would indeed be distracting for a merchant or manufacturer to endeavor to split his bank account among 25 individual banks to obtain adequate lines of credit whereas at present the large State banks are well able to care for the requirements of the city's larger industries and the borrower is obliged to negotiate with but one bank when in need of temporary loans. Lines of credit in excess of $1,000,000 can now be granted by some of Detroit's banks.

"Competition between State banks having branches and national banks having no branches has become so keen in Michigan that there are to-day but three national banks in Detroit with its population in excess of 1,000,000. It is, therefore, apparent that State banks are gradually superseding national banks largely for the reason that Michigan banking law is more liberal than the national banking law. Not only can State banks maintain branches or agencies but they can grant loans up to 20% of their capital and surplus by a two-thirds vote of their directors, while national banks are restricted to 10%. State banks may also invest a much larger proportion of their deposits in mortgage loans, which, while not as liquid as other assets, are probably the safest form of investment.

"Unquestionably sentiment alone and the hope that there will be relief in the near future is the inducement to many antional banks to hold their charters. If, however, the national Government proposes to prohibit national banks from establishing branches in States where State banks are permitted to operate branches, it would seem that the only alternative is for the national banks to convert into State banks to compete on an equal basis.

"The fear of the country banker that the city banker will invade his territory with a branch should be allayed. Congress can restrict branch banks to cities having a population in excess say of 50,000. To restrict the banking development in large cities because the country banker fears the extension of branch banking to his territory is indeed a narrow view."

It is stated that the proposed branch will be opened about Jan. 1.

RELATION OF GOLD MOVEMENTS TO FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York in its monthly review of credit and business conditions in the local Federal Reserve Bank has the following to say under the above head:

The flow of over a billion dollars of gold in the past two years, and the receipt of a similar amount in the two years just preceding America's entry into the war, are the two greatest gold movements in history. Just how such additions to our gold supply act upon the volume of credit, now that the Federal Reserve System is in existence, is not clearly understood. It may be made clearer if we review briefly four periods.

I. Before the Reserve System.

Before the Federal Reserve System, when gold flowed into the United States, it found its way into banks, increased the proportion of gold to deposits, and as the banks kept as legal reserve only a certain portion of their deposits in gold, permitted them to increase their deposits by an amount several times the amount of the gold imported. This increase in deposits was mainly brought about by increasing loans. Large amounts of gold usually stimulated business activity and a rise in commodity prices. Conversely, an outflow of gold usually produced the opposite result, and reduced loans and deposits several times the amount of the gold exported.

II. The Gold Inflow of January 1915 to April 1917.

The Federal Reserve System was established in November 1914, and until June 1917 member banks, while keeping a substantial part of their gold with the Reserve banks, were required by law to carry considerable gold in their vaults. Furthermore, but few of the State institutions, which represent about one-half the banking resources of the country were at that time members of the System and they were carrying gold reserves just as before the System began. From January 1915 to April 1917, when America entered the war, more than a billion dollars of gold flowed in, representing payment for urgent purchases by belligerent nations which were unable either to ship goods in payment for ours, or to obtain credits here in sufficient amounts. These purchases introduced the element of competitive bidding for the goods required. Part of the gold went into circulation and the rest went into the vaults of the banks, where it increased their reserves, enabled them greatly to increase their deposits and loans, and created just such a situation as under similar conditions it would have created before the Federal Reserve System; that is, credit volume rising, prices rising, and intense business activity. But there was not a large or in any degree corresponding increase in the volume of goods produced.

The Federal Reserve System, only recently established, and having but a small volume of loans and investments through the repayment of which the effect of the imported gold might have been offset, was in no position to exert any influence upon these conditions.

III. The War Period: April 1917—August 1920.

Promptly upon America's entry into the war gold ceased to flow in, as our credit became available to our allies. And an embargo was placed on the outflow of gold. Immediately the credit needs of our own Government began greatly to exceed the current savings of the people. Between April 1917 and August 1920, without any increase in our gold supply, exactly the same economic phenomena occurred as in the two preceding years of heavy gold inflow. The Federal Reserve System, whose credit power, owing to the inflow of gold, had hitherto lain dormant, was called upon to provide the additional bank reserves and the hand to hand currency required by the credit and price expansion of the war period. The use of Federal Reserve credit for this purpose culminated in October and November 1920, after several months of credit strain during which the Federal Reserve reservoir was drawn down almost to the legal limit—a strain which was accentuated by a net outflow of about $400,000,000 of gold between June 1919 and August 1920.

A comparison of these two periods of credit and price expansion under war pressure, one based on gold imports, and the other on the use of Federal Reserve credit, shows that the additional credit or lending power derived from the two sources was practically identical in its effect on the general credit and price structure. In both instances the banks were provided with the additional reserves and hand to hand currency required for a general expansion of bank deposits and loans; and it is well known that if such expansion is not paralleled by a corresponding expansion in the production of goods, a rise in commodity prices usually results.

IV. The Second Gold Inflow: Since August 1920.

In the period from August 1920 to the present, another great movement of gold, nearly equal to that of 1915-1917, has occurred, but under very different industrial conditions. Imperative buying and borrowing by Governments had ceased; and in the early part of the period prices were falling, business was depressed. Three and a half billions of Federal Reserve credit had been extended, and the banks were heavily in debt to the Reserve banks. In the past two years, accordingly, the billion of gold which came in was deposited as usual with the member banks, and turned over by them to the Reserve banks. But instead of using the fresh reserves thus created as a basis for further expansion, the member banks took advantage of them, after the strain of 1920 was over, to pay off their indebtedness to the Federal Reserve System. Thus, broadly speaking, when this second inflow of gold occurred, conditions were unfavorable to its use in further expansion, and it actually helped liquidate the expansion of the preceding period.

It will be seen from the analysis of these four periods that whether or not the Federal Reserve System is able to absorb an inflow of gold of such dimensions as those of the second and fourth periods depends largely upon whether, at the time, it has a large volume of loans and investments which, if conditions are favorable to such a course will be repaid with the new gold so received. The less loans and investments of the system are in a period of gold inflow the less its influence will be upon the conditions produced by the added gold.

It should also be understood that the expansion of credit from the inflow of gold as above discussed is that primary and somewhat automatic expansion resulting from the direct increase of member and other bank reserves which the gold creates in an amount several times as great as the amount of the gold itself. The discussion has not touched upon the further expansion which the same gold may support after it reaches the Reserve banks, should member banks have occasion, as in the third period, to borrow heavily from Reserve banks.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK ON RATE OF TURNOVER OF BANK DEPOSITS.

From the monthly review (dated Oct. 1) of credit and business conditions in the Federal Reserve District, we take the following:

In the April 1 "Monthly Review," there were published computations showing for a group of cities the velocity, or rate of turnover, of bank deposits. The accompanying table and diagrams bring this study up to date.

Although the available evidence from other sources is clearly to the effect that in the past year there has been a distinct increase in business activity, that increase in activity has not yet been reflected to any large degree in a greater rapidity in the turnover of bank deposits, owing partly to the much increased volume of deposits now reported by the banks.

The figures for New York City are sharply upward, probably largely a result of activity in the security markets. The only other centre, however, which shows any marked increase between August 1921 and August 1922 is Buffalo, an industrial centre, in which manufacturing activity was at an unusually low point a year ago. In San Francisco, Boston and Albany the most recent figures are all somewhat lower than for the corresponding month a year ago, and markedly lower than in 1919 and 1920. The figures for August in successive years are as follows:

Buffalo	17.5	19.9	16.1	18.3
Rochester	17.7	19.8	18.3	17.8
Syracuse	9.9	11.4	7.0	7.3
Boston	33.8	30.8	25.9	24.8
San Francisco	43.1	35.4	36.7	34.4

* July figures.

The available data for past years indicate that great business activity is usually accompanied by a rapid turnover of bank deposits, as credit resources are kept constantly occupied. The recent increase in the volume of business has not yet been sufficient to call for the fullest employment of credit facilities available in the form of bank deposits.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK ON COURSE OF WAGES AND EMPLOYMENT.

Regarding wage changes the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had the following to say in its monthly review issued Oct. 1:

The past month has been marked by probably the largest number of advances in wage rates since the beginning of the period of downward readjustment in the autumn of 1920. A compilation by the National Industrial Conference Board shows that between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15, out of 123 concerns reported, 119 showed some increase in wage rates and 4 showed some reduction. A summary of the changes since April 15 follows:

Date—	Concerns Reporting Reductions.	Concerns Reporting Increases.	Total Changes.
April 15 to May 15	54	9	63
May 16 to June 15	23	26	49
June 16 to July 15	25	21	46
July 16 to August 15	7	8	15
Aug. 16 to Sept. 15	4	119	123

The largest number of increases during the past month occurred in iron, steel and miscellaneous metal manufacturing plants, and on the average these amounted to 20%, the amount of increase put into effect by the United States Steel Corporation in its upward revision announced on Aug. 22 : Many New England cotton mills in which wage reductions in February of 20% were followed by general strikes, have restored the scale prevailing prior to that reduction. The coal miners' strike was also settled on a basis of the restoration of the wage scale existing before the shut down of the mines in the spring.

Wage advances have been most numerous in the case of common labor. A large employment agency in New York informs us that it is now placing unskilled laborers at 45 to 50 cents an hour, as compared with 35 to 40 cents an hour a few weeks ago. Unskilled building laborers have likewise been advanced in certain localities from 8 to 10% in recent weeks.

The New York State Department of Labor reported an increase of 1.3% from $24 77 in July to $25 09 in August, in average weekly earnings of factory workers in New York State. These earnings are now 1.3% below those of August a year ago.

As to employment, the Bank says:

Settlement of the coal and textile strikes and partial settlement of the railroad strike during the past month, coupled with a larger demand for manufactured goods and a continuation of activity in building and other construction have resulted in a large gain in employment. While a relatively small number of the workers who had been out on strike and who returned to their jobs during the month are employed in this district, the assurance of an adequate supply of fuel and improved railway service has caused manufacturers to proceed with plans for larger production and their working forces have been correspondingly increased.

The New York State Department of Labor, in its monthly survey of employment in factories, found that between July 15 and Aug. 15 there was an increase of 2.4% in the number of workers, the largest increase in a single month since early in 1920. On Aug. 15 there were about 13% more workers employed in the State's factories than there were one year ago. The gains in the number employed in railroad repair shops and equipment factories, which followed the partial strike settlement, are not reflected in this survey, as the data were collected before the settlement. The principal gains occurred in the miscellaneous metal manufacturing and clothing industries.

Employment agencies in this city report a larger demand for workers of all types, but to date the supply has been ample to meet the demand, with the exception of common labor and certain types of clerical help.

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND ALLOTMENTS OF 4¼% U. S. TREASURY BONDS OF 1947-52.

Total allotments of $511,385,000 on the cash offering of 4¼% U. S. Treasury Bonds of 1947-52 were announced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on Oct. 23, who stated at the same time that the subscriptions on the cash offerings amounted to $1,399,851,900. In addition subscriptions aggregating $252,000,000 were received on account of the exchange offering; the total subscriptions for the offering thus aggregating over $1,651,000,000. The subscriptions on the exchange offering, for which 4¾% Victory notes or Dec. 15 Treasury certificates were tendered in payment, have all been allotted in full Secretary Mellon announced, so that the total allotments on the offering will aggregate slightly over $763,000,000. The cash allotments of $511,385,000 were divided among the several Federal Reserve Districts as follows:

Federal Reserve District—	Subscriptions Received.	Subscriptions Allotted.
Boston	$113,390,400	$62,700,300
Philadelphia	103,788,500	46,484,200
Cleveland	100,355,300	40,200,000
Richmond	37,070,800	20,345,800
St. Louis	55,300,000	31,244,200
Minneapolis	33,369,300	9,551,700
Kansas City	40,564,900	12,000,000
Dallas	16,076,800	5,439,200
Total	$1,399,851,900	$511,385,000

Secretary Mellon in making the above figures public on the 23rd inst. said:

As already announced, allotments were made on a graduated scale, all subscriptions for amounts not exceeding $10,000 for every one subscriber being allotted in full. The figures as to allotments among the several classes of subscribers indicate the wide distribution of the loan and show to what a large extent it was allotted to subscribers in lots of $10,000 and under. Heavy cuts were made in all the larger subscriptions and as previously announced, subscriptions for amounts over $10,000, but not exceeding $50,000, were allotted only 40%, subscriptions over $50,000 but not exceeding $100,000, only 30%, subscriptions over $100,000 but not exceeding $500,000, only 20%, subscriptions over $500,000 but not exceeding $1,000,000, only 15%, and subscriptions over $1,000,000, only 10%.

In addition to the $1,399,851,900 of subscriptions received on the cash offering, subscriptions aggregating about $252,000,000 have been received on account of the exchange offering, making a total for this offering of Treasury bonds aggregating over $1,651,000,000. Subscriptions on the exchange offering, for which 4¾% Victory notes or Dec. 15 Treasury certificates were tendered in payment, have all been allotted in full, so that the total allotments on the offering will aggregate slightly over $763,000,000. Further details as to the exchanges will be announced upon receipt of final reports from the Federal Reserve banks.

Previous references to the offering appeared in our issues of Oct. 14, page 1684 and Oct. 21 page 1783.

N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE RULING ON TRANSACTIONS IN U. S. TREASURY BONDS OF 1947-1952.

October 25 1922.

REDEMPTION OF U. S. TREASURY CERTIFICATES AND VICTORY NOTES IN ADVANCE OF MATURITY.

Announcement was made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on Oct. 22 that he had authorized the Federal Reserve Banks on and after Oct. 23 and until further notice to redeem in cash before Dec. 15 at the holder's option, at par and accrued interest to the date of optional redemption, Treasury certificates of indebtedness of Series TD, 1922, dated Dec. 15 1921, and Series TD2, 1922, dated June 15 1922, both maturing Dec. 15 1922. Secretary Mellon also called attention to the general offer announced by the Treasury on July 26 1922, in connection with the call for the redemption of 4¾% Victory notes, under which the Federal Reserve Banks are authorized to redeem before Dec. 15 1922, at the holder's option, at par and accrued interest to the date of optional redemption, any called Victory notes which may be presented for prior redemption. In accordance with the notice of redemption then given, all 4¾% Victory notes bearing the distinguishing letters A, B, C, D, E, or F prefixed to their serial numbers, are called for redemption on Dec. 15, and from that date cease to bear interest. On the 24th inst. the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, through Governor Strong, issued the following announcement in the matter:

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK.

[Circular No. 498—Oct. 24 1922.]

To All Banks, Trust Companies, Savings Banks, Bankers, Investment Dealers, Principal Corporations and Others Concerned in the Second Federal Reserve District:

Called 4¾% Victory Notes Redeemable in Advance of December 15.

Similarly under Treasury regulations we will also continue to redeem in cash any 4¾% Victory notes bearing the distinguishing letters A, B, C, D, E, or F, called for redemption on Dec. 15, which you may elect to surrender to us for prior redemption, and payment will be made at par and accrued interest to the date of such optional redemption. In that event coupon notes must have all unmatured coupons attached, including the coupons due on Dec. 15, while registered notes should be properly assigned to "The Secretary of the Treasury for redemption."

You will find enclosed appropriate forms of advice to accompany the certificates or notes of the above issues. We will redeem these obligations immediately upon presentation unless you request us to hold them for redemption on December 15.

Very truly yours,

400% DIVIDEND OF STANDARD OIL OF NEW JERSEY CONTENTIONS OF REPRESENTATIVE FREAR AND SECRETARY MELLON.

As a result of the proposed plans of the directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to declare a stock dividend of 400% (mention of which was made in our issue of Oct. 14, page 1740), Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was called upon last week by Representative Frear of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, to indicate whether the Treasury had invoked Section 220 of the Revenue Act of 1921 "which provides methods for reaching holders of surplus stock held for the purpose of escaping taxation." Secretary Mellon, in his answer made public Oct. 20, points out that Representative Frear would seem to be "under a misapprehension concerning the situation as to this so-called stock dividend." "Taking for illustration," he says, "the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to which you refer, the holder of its stock, after he has received these new certificates or shares, has altogether no more than he had before, and therefore, so far as the holder is concerned, there is no income to tax." Secretary Mellon recites the Supreme Court ruling which describes the declaration of a stock dividend as "merely bookkeeping that does not affect the aggregate assets of the corporation or its outstanding liabilities" . . . nor "alter the pre-existing proportional interest of any stock or increase the intrinsic value of his holdings." Secretary Mellon further took occasion to say that "so far as this Department is concerned, there will be no laxity in invoking the application of Section 220 whenever there is any basis for so doing." Representative Frear has, in additional letters to Mr. Mellon, continued the controversy and in one of his communications urges Secretary Mellon "in the name of 10,000,000 farmers . . . and countless others who use oil now controlled by Standard Oil . . . to impose penalties on the subsidiary companies mentioned in my letter of Oct. 23 and thereby release a large part of the surplus profits estimated to have been accumulated by this company to the extent of over $1 000,000,000." Regarding the initial communication addressed by Representative Frear to Secretary Mellon, we quote as follows from Washington press dispatches Oct. 17, published in the New York "Times":

Citing reports that the Standard Oil Co. of New York had declared a 400% stock dividend, Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, asked Secretary Mellon in a letter to-day if the Treasury had invoked Section 220 of the 1921 Revenue Act, "which provides methods for reaching holders of surplus when held for the purpose of escaping taxation."

Mr. Frear also wrote the Secretary that, according to newspaper dispatches, subsidiary members of the Standard Oil Co. were declaring various stock dividends and that the United States Steel Corporation "will take the same course with a surplus estimated at several hundred million dollars."

In making public his letter to the Secretary, Mr. Frear announced in a statement that in the next Congress he would lead a fight to make all income tax reports public records, adding that these were the only important Government records now kept secret by law. Some campaigning will be required, Mr. Frear said, to change the present law.

"It may not get far during the short session," he added, "but it is certain to be a live issue in the Sixty-eighth Congress."

"It is possible," he also declared, "that a disclosure of secret tax reports held by the Treasury will show that over $200,000,000 and possibly several times $200,000,000 is being lost to the Government annually through tax-free securities, stock dividends and other escape sluiceways known to large taxpayers that should be collected."

President Harding, said Mr. Frear, "sought to reach tax-free securities by a constitutional amendment, but for some reason the proposal was smothered and never passed the House." Congress, he declared, alone was responsible for failure to pass corrective legislation.

"If the income tax is right in principle by taxing incomes according to ability to pay through graduated surtaxes," Mr. Frear declared, "then the law should be enforced equitably. In other words, if the Rockefeller family, for example, with a reputed income of $1,000,000 a day, places its Standard Oil profits in stock dividends so as to render them non-taxable, it may be assumed that it has equally protected the remaining income by large investments in tax-free securities, and instead of paying $100,000,000 tax annually on this enormous income, as was generally supposed, it may have been shaved down to 1% of that amount. No one can tell, because the returns are held secret under the law. Only the Treasury knows.

The administration of the law lies with Secretary Mellon, whose absolute honesty is not questioned in following the strict letter of the law, but Mr. Mellon is quoted by Klien to be worth $300,000,000, which, if reasonably accurate, should yield ar annual income of about $15,000,000 or more, while his daily income of $50,000 is several times his annual salary as Secretary of the Treasury. Whether Mr. Mellon avails himself of the same avenues of income tax escape as Mr. Rockefeller is only known to the Secretary of the Treasury, who has the records, and what is true of Mr. Rockefeller and Secretary Mellon is equally true of many of the 20,000 individual income tax payers whose annual incomes are supposed to be from $50,000 to $250,000,000 each, if correct reports are to be had. These are all kept secret to-day.

The following was Secretary Mellon's answer to the above, made public Oct. 20:

My Dear Congressman:—I have your letter of Oct. 16, calling attention to the fact that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has declared a 400% stock dividend on its Common stock and that other companies are declaring various stock dividends. You refer to Section 220 of the Revenue Act of 1921, which, you say, "provides methods for reaching holders of surplus stock when held for the purpose of escaping taxation," and you ask whether this statute (Section 220) has been invoked by this Department or considered "in the case of any corporations, and whether it has been considered in reaching the surplus earnings held by the Standard Oil Co."

It would seem that you are under a misapprehension concerning the situation as to this so-called stock dividend. Taking, for illustration, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, to which you refer, the holder of its stock, after he has received these new certificates or shares, has altogether no more than he had before, and, therefore, so far as the holder is concerned, there is no income to tax. This was aptly expressed by the Supreme Court in Eisner vs. Macomber, 252 U. S. 189, as follows:

"This, however (declaration of a stock dividend), is merely bookkeeping that does not affect the aggregate assets of the corporation or its outstanding liabilities; . . . it does not alter the pre-existing proportionate interest of any stock or increase the intrinsic value of his holdings or of the aggregate holdings of the other stockholders as they stood before. The new certificates simply increase the number of the shares, with consequent dissolution of the value of each share."

Section 220, to which you refer, does not apply to the situation relating to these stock increases. It provides that, if any corporation is formed or availed of for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax upon its stockholders through the means of permitting its gains and profits to accumulate, there shall be levied a tax of 25% of the amount thereof, in addition to the other taxes imposed upon corporations; but it further provides that the fact that the gains and profits are permitted to accumulate and become surplus shall not be considered evidence of the intent to escape the surtax, unless the Commissioner of Internal Revenue certifies that, in his opinion, such accumulation is unreasonable for the purpose of the business. In every case, therefore, it is necessary under the statute that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue determine that the accumulation of the surplus is unreasonable for the purposes of the business before it can be held that the corporation was formed or availed of for the purpose of evading the imposition of surtaxes.

The declaration of stock dividend is not significant in connection with this section of the statute, nor has it any relation to a determination by the Commissioner under Section 220. The primary purpose of Section 220 is to reach these corporations, the stock of which is usually closely held, and the earnings and profits of which are accumulated for the purpose of enabling the shareholders to avoid the payment of surtaxes upon their dividends.

As to the question of the accumulation of surplus by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey out of past profits, this company, I believe, had over $200,000,000 of surplus which was accumulated before the passage of the Income Tax Law in 1913, and the accumulations since that time have been accretions from earnings, in addition to dividends declared from year to year; but in all of these years the company was subject to full taxes upon its earnings—some of it under the excess profits and war taxes at the then high prevailing rates.

It is not practical in any active business to distribute all the net earnings in dividends to the stockholders, and if part of the earnings were not put back into the business there would be no progress or industrial growth. In the case of this company the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has found no evidence of the accumulation of surplus beyond the reasonable needs of the business.

I have gone into this detail as to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, as you make that company the example, but the same principles apply generally, and so far as this Department is concerned there will be no laxity in invoking the application of Section 220 wherever there is any basis for so doing.

Sincerely yours,
A. W. MELLON, Secretary.

In answering Secretary Mellon, Representative Frear, in a letter made public Oct. 22, declares that Mr. Mellon in his ruling goes "far beyond any holding of the Supreme Court," and that by his ruling overthrows "the action of both Houses of Congress, approved by the President, and passed for the purpose of compelling large profits accumulated in the form of a surplus by big business to be taxed either through penalties enforced by you or by a cash distribution which would then be subject to the provision of the law affecting surtaxes." The following is Representative Frear's letter in part (we quote from the "Times"):

Your letter of Oct. 20 is received, in which you announce your ruling against the enforcement of Section 220 which was provided by Congress to reach large surpluses accumulated by corporations in order to prevent the payment of individual surtaxes. Your letter ignores and misapprehends the plain reading and purport of the statute and your ruling assumes the prerogatives of the Supreme Court when it sets aside this law. Section 220 is intended to reach a different situation from that involved in the McCumber decision, as I shall endeavor to show herein.

Says Congress Act Is Overthrown.

In your ruling you go far beyond any holding of the Supreme Court, and by your ruling overthrow the action of both houses of Congress, approved by the President and passed for the purpose of compelling large profits accumulated in the form of a surplus by big business to be taxed either through penalties enforced by you or by a cash distribution which would then be subject to the provision of the law affecting surtaxes.

I trust you are not under a misapprehension, Mr. Secretary, as to the question squarely presented to you because the press has been filled with announcements that the purpose of the stock dividends to be issued by the Standard Oil Company and the proposed stock dividend of $500,000,000 in United States Steel, in which you are supposed to be interested, is for the purpose of avoiding the surtaxes that would apply if those enormous amounts, aggregating over $1,000,000,000, were distributed as cash dividends.

As a great financier and public officer of large responsibilities you certainly understand that the Standard Oil surplus, reaching in the aggregate upward of a billion dollars, according to press reports, if permitted to be distributed as a stock dividend without enforcement of law, will rob the Government Treasury, of which you are guardian, of possibly several hundred million dollars, depending upon the rate of surtax or of penalties which you are directed by law to impose.

Personal Responsibility Asserted.

You are the only man authorized by law to prevent such result, because the Commissioner of whom you speak is an officer who acts under your direction and according to your will, otherwise you would kick him out of his position, as you no doubt ought to do. I assume you know, Mr. Secretary, that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is under your department and under your orders, and that you have had many discussions with him on matters of policy and of law.

The Statute of 1917 to the same effect, Section 3, provides "the fact that any such corporation . . . permits gains and profits to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business shall be prima facie evidence of a fraudalent purpose of escaping such tax." This provision requires the Secretary of the Treasury to interpret the law as to reasonableness of the surplus accumulated by the corporation, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue acts under the Secretary of the Treasury as he is required to do in all other matters, and his act is your act under the law.

I propose briefly to set forth the enormous profits placed in surplus by the Standard Oil Company for the purpose of escaping taxation. The facts and reports in your department were secret, so that the country could not understand the character or amount of profits until announcement was made that they were to be distributed as stock dividends.

Penalty Clause in Law.

Naturally, as a man of great wealth, interested in sixty or more corporations affected by the ruling on stock dividends and taxation, you will find your personal interest involved in any decision, but I assume in your position as a public officer you will be governed by the law and by the interests of the public rather than by any personal consideration and in the enforcement of the provisions of Section 220, which reads as follows:

"That if any corporation, however created or organized, is formed or availed of for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax upon its stockholders or members through the medium of preventing its gain or profits to accumulate instead of being divided or distributed there shall be levied and collected for each taxable year upon the net income of such corporation a tax equal to 25%. The amount thereof shall be in addition to the tax imposed by Section 230, &c."

In your letter to me you say the corporation has paid its full tax. This refers, I take it, to Section 230, but the penalty of 25% is imposed by Congress in order to reach the unwarranted surpluses that are held by corporations and not distributed as cash dividends in order to evade the tax payment under the individual surtax law. That is the distinction so clearly made by Congress that it cannot fairly be misunderstood. It is another way of reaching the tax on undistributed profits which is undoubtedly permitted under the law and the decision of the Supreme Court in the stock dividend case.

Your suggestion that it is a corporation "formed" for the purpose of evading the law is not in any way involved. Whenever a corporation is "availed of" for this same purpose Congress expects the penalty to be invoked.

In the case of the Standerd Oil, United States Steel and other companies whose records are subject to your inspection and yours alone because they are secret, will you please give your views to the country, stating just what amount of extortionate profits and surplus you believe should properly be amassed before Section 220 of the statute enacted by Congress applies, or do you hold that such statute is nugatory under the plea that the corporations have already been taxed?

Urges Publicity of Records.

Publicity of Treasury records will disclose enormous profits and efforts to evade taxation by those best able to pay. It will help curb the evil and will enable Congress by Constitutional amendments effecting tax-free securities and legislation to reach undistributed profits in addition to the re-enactment, if desired, of excess profits tax laws to meet a perilous growth of concentrated wealth and power.

In addition, the country has a right to place in position high officials who will enforce laws already on the statute books, and I trust that you will remain among this number and that you will reconsider your ruling, which, if maintained, will cause a loss of hundreds of millions of dollars taxation to the Treasury without any possibility of recovering same.

In conclusion, I repeat, Mr. Secretary, what I recently publicly stated when writing my first letter of inquiry, that the "administration of the law lies with Secretary Mellon, whose absolute honesty is not questioned in following the strict letter of the law; but Mr. Mellon is quoted by Klien to be worth $300,000,000, which, if reasonably accurate, should yield an annual income of about $15,000,000, while his daily income of $50,000 is several times his annual salary as Secretary of the Treasury. Whether Mr. Mellon avails himself of the same avenues of income tax escape as Mr. Rockefeller is known only to the Secretary of the Treasury, who has the records; and what is true of Mr. Rockefeller and Secretary Mellon is equally true of many of the 20,000 individual income taxpayers whose annual incomes are supposed to run from $50,000 to $200,000,000 each, if correct reports are to be had. These are all kept secret to-day."

These records I submit in all fairness should be made public by law, and I trust you will co-operate in securing that result.

Representative Frear in continuing his argument had the following to say in a letter to Secretary Mellon given out on the 25th inst.:

Believing it my duty to urge your attention as strongly as I can to this fraudulent evasion of taxes that you may not later on mistake the full official responsibility for the enormous loss to the Treasury, I again write to point out the apparently defenseless position, in my judgment, you have taken and to suggest that your action may involve a serious economic and political mistake, apart from its failure to perform a plain official duty required of you by law.

An announced purpose in financial journals to distribute a large part of over $1,000,000,000 surplus in stock dividends by Standard Oil in order to avoid payment of individual surtaxes through a cash distribution is certainly known to you, and you alone of all men have control of the secret official records that evidence that fact. Will you refuse to enforce Section 220 passed by Congress in 1921 under a plea that the Administration is opposed to tax the undivided surplus of corporations?

I leave that statement to your own sense of justice, in view of a law passed during your own incumbency in office, approved by the President and which you are required by such law to enforce.

Your statement that you will urge upon Congress the passage of any amendment to prevent issuance of tax-free securities is noted. . . . You know, and so do people generally, that it is impossible constitutionally to get any tax-free amendment through Congress in any form to reach the many billions of State and municipal securities on the market and that it will take several years under the most favorable conditions to get any kind of amendment enacted into law. You are only announcing with some gusto that you will ask Congress to lock the door after about all the horses have escaped.

Paying tribute to the exactions of the oil king to-day are over 10,000,000 users of business and pleasure cars throughout the country, and whether the price of oil be ten cents or twenty cents per gallon more than a fair price to the corporation, the consumer pays the price exacted. Profits of over 400% on the stock, apart from cash dividends paid, indicate the character of the extortion. Millions of farmers who run tractors, separators and other farm machinery, in like manner pay full tribute exacted by the king. The user of oil not only pays the plunder price, but also any increased tax burden caused by every enforced tax-dodging stockholder reaching an amount among nine figures.

Some one must pay the tax to run our Government, and, apart from assessments according to ability to pay, if the burden is shifted or evaded by the oil stockholders through the "fraudulent" handling of surplus by the corporation under the Department's definition of the statute, the remaining taxpayers of the country must make good any Treasury deficit reported by you, Mr. Secretary, either in the form of increased tax rates or from other sources. That is to say, the consumers pay the extortionate price of the oil and their own tax, together with any deficit caused by the oil stockholders escape.

In the name of 10,000,000 farmers and of countless others who use oil now controlled by Standard Oil, I urge you to impose penalties on the subsidiary companies mentioned in my letter of Oct. 23 and thereby release a large part of the surplus profits estimated to have been accumulated by this company, to the amount of over $1,000,000,000.

May I extend the list, Mr. Secretary, and ask in the names of the many millions of people of all vocations and parties whom you equally represent as Secretary of the Treasury, and in the name of right dealing and common fairness will you not compel those great public evaders of taxes to comply with the tax laws of the land through the power vested in you under Section 220?

In view of your understood statement in your letter to me, that you have never assessed a penalty under Section 220 or sought to reach by taxation the fraudulent accumulation of surplus by corporations mentioned by statute and also the failure on your part to indicate what surplus or what accumulations you personally would consider "fraudulent," notwithstanding an interpretation by statute and by your Department, which I have quoted in a previous letter, I desire to ask you a question which, under the circumstances, I trust, is not inquisitive or impertinent, because you alone have access to the income tax reports of persons and corporations required by law to be kept secret.

Stated briefly, have any of the sixty corporations of which you were an officer prior to assuming the duties of Secretary of the Treasury announced or indicated a purpose this year of issuing stock dividends from the accumulations of surplus by such corporations? Have any of such corporations during the last five years averaged a net surplus apart from cash dividends of over 10% annually, have any of such corporations during the same period averaged 25% annually or more apart from cash dividends or approaching an amount understood to have been averaged by some of the Standard Oil subsidiaries to which I called your attention in my last letter?

I do not ask the specific amounts nor rates nor your individual interest beyond a further query that if such surpluses have been set aside have you declared a penalty due on the surplus so accumulated by any such corporation, or do you expect to do so under the provisions of Section 220? If not, what profits would you hold subject to a penalty if any?

ANDREW BONAR LAW BECOMES PRIME MINISTER OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Andrew Bonar Law, spokesman of the Conservative Party in Great Britain, became Premier of England on Oct. 23, in line with forecasts made last week, succeeding David Lloyd George, who resigned on Oct. 19, after a split in the Coalition Party. The formal transfer of power from the Lloyd George to the Bonar Law Government was made on Oct. 25. Premier Bonar Law on Oct. 24 issued a list of the principal members of his Ministry. His own name is not mentioned in the official list, which leaves it to be inferred that he takes no other office than that of Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury, the latter being a post without specified duties beyond those attaching to the Premiership. The new Cabinet of Ministers appointed follows:

Lord President of the Council, Marquis of Salisbury.
Lord High Chancellor, Viscount Cave.
Chancellor of the Exchequer, Stanley Baldwin.
Secretary for Home Affairs, William C. Bridgeman.
Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Marquis Curzon.

Secretary for the Colonies, Duke of Devonshire.
Secretary for India, Viscount Peel.
Secretary for War, Earl of Derby.
First Lord of the Admiralty, Lieut.-Col. L. C. M. S. Amery.
President of the Board of Trade, Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme.
Minister of Health, Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen.
Minister of Agriculture, Sir Robert A. Sanders.
Secretary for Scotland, Viscount Novar.
Attorney-General, Douglas McG. Hogg.
Lord Advocate, Hon. W. A. Watson.
President of the Board of Education, Edward F. L. Wood, Member of Parliament for the Ripon division of Yorkshire.

There are still a number of appointments to be made, and it was said to be noticeable that the five offices held under Premier Lloyd George by Austen Chamberlain, H. A. L. Fisher, T. J. MacNamara, Sir Hamar Greenwood and the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres who all sided with Lloyd George, are not yet filled. It is expected that the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland will be abolished and that the Ministry of Labor will be merged into some other department. The Prime Minister held his first informal Cabinet Council of the Ministers already appointed at a small dinner party at his residence on Oct. 24 to discuss general lines of policy.

After being unanimously elected leader of the party at a meeting on Oct. 23 of the Conservative peers and members of Parliament in the Hotel Cecil, Bonar Law went to Buckingham Palace, where he had an audience with the King and informed him that he would be successful in forming a Ministry. At a meeting of the Conservative Party at the Hotel Cecil the new Premier outlined his policy, emphasizing as its cardinal principles:

1. The maintenance and stabilization of the Anglo-French entente.
2. Fewer adventures in different parts of the world.
3. Settlement with Ireland.
4. Development of trade within the Empire with drastic economical retrenchment.

PREMIER BONAR LAW URGES POLICY OF PEACE AND TRADE EXTENSION IN SPEECH AT GLASGOW.

Andrew Bonar Law, Great Britain's new Prime Minister, made his first public speech since the fall of the Lloyd George Government to his own constituents at Glasgow on Oct. 26, when he outlined the policy of the new Government and paid tribute to his predecessor. Mr. Bonar Law's Glasgow speech was largely an elaboration of a manifesto which he issued earlier the same day at London, as leader of the Unionist or Conservative Party. Outlining the new party's policy he stressed the following points:

The crying need of the nation at this moment is that we should have tranquillity and stability both at home and abroad, so that free scope should be given to the inititative and enterprise of our citizens.

With this in view I think it of the utmost importance that we should return as quickly as possible and as completely as possible to the normal procedure which existed before the war.

With reference to foreign affairs, the manifesto says: "At the present moment the first foreign interest not alone of Great Britain and the British Empire but of the world, is the re-establishment of peace. It was by wholehearted co-operation, often under great difficulty and with great difference of opinion we won the war. It is only by the same frank and full co-operation, conducted in the same spirit, with France and our other great allies that we can hope to solve the difficult problems with which we are now confronted.

Get on With Nation's Work.

The manifesto concludes: "There are many measures of legislative and administrative inportance which would be desirable and which in other circumstances I should have recommended to the electorate, but I do not feel that I can at this moment claim precedence over the nation's first need, which is in every walk of life to get on with its work, with a minimum of interference at home and disturbance abroad."

Among other points, was the reference to doing away with the Cabinet secretariat, which Lloyd George's foes charged had usurped the authority of Cabinet. The manifesto says: "The time has now come when a change should be made in the machinery of the Central Government. Some of the work hitherto done by the Cabinet secretariat is essential and must be continued, but we intend to bring that body in its present form to an end. Instructions already have been given to transfer to the Foreign Office the machinery of the League of Nations, and as regards any future international conferences, even where it is necessary that I, as Prime Minister, should be present, the machinery of the conferences will be operated not by the Cabinet Secretariat but by the Foreign Office itself.

"In all our foreign relations we intend to pursue an even course, loyally fulfilling the obligations we have undertaken, but resolutely determined not to extend our commitments, and, should reasonable occasion arise, to curtail them.

"It will be our earnest aim to give the League of Nations wholehearted and practical support.

"The maintenance of our friendship and good understanding with the United States, based not on any formal alliance but on the community of inherited ideals as well as the recent comradeship in arms, must always be a principal aim of the British policy.

"Our task if returned to power will be the ratification of the Irish treaty. We are prepared to take our part in making good that treaty, both in letter and spirit, and to co-operate with the Irish Government in the new relationship within the Empire which the treaty will have created.

"We are equally pledged to safeguard the freedom of choice and the security of the Parliament and the Government of Northern Ireland. We earnestly hope it will be realized that the prosperity of Ireland can only be achieved between the governments and the peoples of the two portions of that country.

"The most helpful method of reviving industry is the development of trade."

KING GEORGE DISSOLVES BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

A proclamation dissolving the British Parliament was signed by King George on Oct. 26 at a Privy Council held at Sandringham, the royal estate in Norfolk. The proclamation was gazetted the same day, vacating every Parliamentary seat in the country. The proclamation ordered the assembling of the new Parliament on Nov. 20. The King signed a further proclamation authorizing the summoning of a meeting of the Scottish peers at Holyrood Palace, Nov. 16, for the purpose of electing the 16 representative peers of Scotland to serve in the new Parliament. General elections will take place on Nov. 15.

DAIL EIREANN RATIFIES IRISH CONSTITUTION.

The new Irish Constitution passed its third and final reading in the Dail Eireann on Oct. 25. Deputy John Milroy described the document as the greatest triumph for Ireland since the Battle of Kinsale. It was a monument, he added, to the two great men who had passed away (Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith), whose names would be blessed by future generations of Irishmen. The action of the Irish Parliament is final, so that the document is now effective except for the British Parliament's reaffirming with greater formality the favorable action already taken on the treaty.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY ISSUES MANIFESTO URGING LEVY ON FORTUNES ABOVE £5,000.

A manifesto treating of economic and political questions generally was issued by the British Labor Party at London on Oct. 25. The manifesto advocates removal of the burden of the national debt through the creation of a "war debt redemption fund, by a special graduated levy on fortunes exceeding £5,000." It further declares for the revision of the peace treaty and German reparations, for an international conference to arrange the freedom of the Straits, for independence in Egypt and self-government in India. The manifesto was quoted at length in Associated Press dispatches, which said:

The manifesto says that labor will not penalize thrift, but that it will require some restitution from the profiteers out of the huge fortunes made in the war. The taxation of land values also is advocated.

The Conservative Government, the manifesto declares, was formed to carry out a policy of naked reaction. Labor is appealing to the men and women of the country on a policy of international peace and national reconstruction.

"Revision of the peace treaties, which caused greater international wrongs than they removed, is the first step to peace," it continues. "German reparations must be brought within Germany's capacity to pay. Turkey's relations with Europe and the freedom of the Straits can only be dealt with in an international conference by the representatives of all the countries concerned.

"Labor is working for an all-inclusive League of Nations, with powers to deal with international disputes by methods of judicial arbitration and conciliation. Through the League of Nations an agreement can be reached for the limitation of armament, with general disarmament as the goal."

The Labor Party advocates the independence of Egypt, self-government in India and cordial acceptance and ratification of the Irish treaty.

"Labor," says the manifesto, "recognizes the urgent need of lifting from trade and industry the deadweight burden of the national debt. It therefore proposes the creation of a war debt redemption fund by a special graduated levy on fortunes exceeding £5,000. Labor will not penalize thrift, but will require some restitution from the profiteers out of the huge fortunes made in the war."

It advocates a system of taxation distributing the burden fairly according to ability to pay, increase of death duties and the taxes on large estates and incomes, exempting incomes below £250, reducing the tax on incomes below £500; taxation on land and statutes to secure to the community socially created wealth diverted to private hands. It opposes indirect taxation and all burdensome imposts, whether customs, excise or stamp duties.

It further advocates economy, "without starving public service or at the expense of the poor for the benefit of the rich," and adds:

"Reduced expenditures on the education of children, the health and safety of workers, the well-being of mothers and babies is the costliest kind of waste. Labor's policy is to provide work or maintenance for the unemployed by reopening trade with foreign countries, by national organization of production, by a large program of necessary and useful public works."

"The plight of agriculture must be dealt with by a bold program requiring landlords to sacrifice rents, rather than that the workers accept starvation wages."

It proposes establishing councils for agriculture reforms, and includes school facilities, more and better cottages, increased hospital facilities and fuller opportunities for recreation in its program.

"Labor is resolved to change as speedily as possible by constructive measures the social and economic system which confers unfair privileges on the few and underserved hardships on many workers," it continues. "This system has brought unemployment and reduced wages to the workers, suffering and starvation to their families, loss of opportunities for full mental and physical development to their children and anxiety and worry to salaried and professional workers and small traders.

"Labor means to bring about a more equitable distribution of the wealth produced by common effort of work by hand and brain. Our industrial policy involves prompt nationalization of the mines, as recommended by the Sankey Commission; nationalization of the railways, with an increased share in their control for the workers, an improved workers' compensation act an other measures for the protection of the working people.

"Labor opposes attempts to intefere with trade boards, demands a national scheme of housing, to replace the slums by decent homes, an increase in old age pensions, complete supercession of the present poor law and a system of pensions for widowed mothers, and opposes also the cutting of ex-service men's pensions or transferring the mentally or physically unfit to the poor law."

The manifesto asserts that there shall be no restoration of the House of Lords veto and calls for a removal of all disabilities affecting women, and declares: "In accordance with these democratic principles, labor must stand for control of the liquor traffic, according to the people's will."

The manifesto concludes "labor's program is the best bulwark against violent upheaval and class wars. A democratic government can be made effective in this country without bloodshed or violence. The laborpolicy is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the nations' wealth by constitutional means. This is neither Bolshevism nor Communism but common sense and justice. This is labor's alternative to reaction and revolution."

LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH AT LEEDS—COUNTRY MUST DECIDE IF A PARTY OR THE PEOPLE COME FIRST.

If the impression was formed in some quarters when Lloyd George resigned last week as Prime Minister of Great Britain that the leader and spokesman of the Coalition Party would retire from active political life, that impression was dissipated on Oct. 21, when the former Premier delivered an address at Leeds before about 3,000 Coalition Liberals. "The banner of party strife has been hoisted," declared Lloyd George, referring to the meeting of the Conservatives last week which forced the crisis in the life of the Coalition Party and compelled the Prime Minister to resign. The Coalition Party, which he described as a "great combination of men of all parties and creeds for national purposes," he said, had been brought to an end by the Conservative meeting at the Carlton Club. "It has been brought to an end," he continued, "not because it has ceased to serve the nation, that was not the case. It has been brought to an end because the party was not getting enough out of it, and it is for the people of this country to decide whether the party comes first—or the nation first. I stand for the people." Explaining the purpose of his speech, Lloyd George said: "I have worked hard and have had no time, when criticism was pouring in upon me, to go and tell the real story to the people. But I have a little more time now. I am now one of the unemployed." Mr. Lloyd George then made a vigorous defense of his administration, both in war and in peace, declaring that heretofore he had not had time to answer his critics or to inform the public of its services to the nation. "Now, I am going to begin to tell the story from day to day until the election," he said, "and having done this, I will be willing to put my record in the hands of the people." The retiring Premier made much of the support of the leading Conservatives, such as Lord Balfour, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and Sir Robert Horne, and pictured Andrew Bonar Law as in the position of holding the horse by the tail. Lloyd George's speech at Leeds, as printed in the New York "Times" on Oct. 22, in full, follows:

The banner of party strife has been hoisted at the Carlton Club. A great combination of men of all parties and creeds for national purposes, a combination which led us to victory in war, and which was leading us, gradually but surely, out of our troubles in peace, has been brought to an end.

It has been brought to an end not because it has ceased to serve the nation, that was not the case. It has been brought to an end because the party was not getting enough out of it, and it is for the people of this country to decide whether the party comes first—or the nation first. I stand for the people.

The time has come for a calm, dispassionate and, I hope, perfectly fair review of what that combination, which started six years ago, has accomplished. If it has accomplished nothing, if it has done no good, if it has not served the nation, condemn it. On the other hand, if it has served the people well, if it helped the country to achieve something, treat it fairly and well.

Let us examine it. It is subjected to criticism from more diverse and conflicting quarters and points of view than almost any other Government. It had one or two disadvantages in defending itself against this criticism. First of all, it had no partisan press. It had no Liberal, it had no Conservative press, and, therefore, it had no steady partisan press which could be depended upon, whatever happened, to defend its actions.

Recalls Years of Hard Work.

Its second weakness, from the point of view of dealing with and disposing of criticism, arose out of the fact that no Ministers in any administration that ever existed in this country have been so continually hard worked I have been working pretty hard all my life, but I never worked as hard as I worked durirg the last six years. I have known no holidays. I have started many, I have succeeded in getting none. I have many times said: "Well, I have been shielded, not merely by many a range of hills, but by impenetrable language, free from deputations."

Then one summer I went across I don't know how many ranges of hills. There are hills beyond Pentland. Many hills I crossed, and I chose a place where there was no road. No use; deputations of Lord Mayors came.

Believe me, I have had no holiday. I have worked hard and I have had no time, when criticism was pouring in upon me, to go and tell the real story to the people. But I have a little more time now. I am now one of the unemployed.

When somebody wrote to me a couple of days ago and asked if I would receive a deputation of unemployed, I said, on the contrary, that I had joined the unemployed. And I am now going to begin to tell the story from day to day or week to week, at any rate until the election is over, and, having done so, I am willing to put my record in the hands of the people. I have served them well. I have served them honestly, I have served them sincerely, I have served them with one dominant purpose, and that is to serve my native land to the best of my ability.

Combination. This combination was formed during the war for the purpose of carrying on the war, in order to put more vigor and more thoroughness into the prosecution of the war.

Governments can win wars and Governments can lose wars. What do I mean by that? Governments can make it possible for our gallant soldiers and sailors to win victory. Governments can make it impossible for the most gallant soldiers and sailors ever to win. The only claim I put forward on behalf of the late Government is that it did everything a Government could do to enable our soldiers and sailors to win the war.

Governments can organize material resources and the resources in men of the nation. They can organize the nation at home to face its responsibilities and to sustain its responsibilities. If there is failure at home, it means failure in the field. Loss of morale at home is always reflected on the battlefield. They were closely related, and stories at home affected the soldiers in the field. That is one reason why Germany broke down. Their soldiers were brave soldiers—let us recognize the courage of the enemy. But they heard stories of starvation, of privation and misery at home. That undermined their spirits and their courage.

It was vital for the Ministers to sustain a spirit which would make the road clear for victory. I claim the Government did everything a Government could do for that purpose. We did our best to promote unity at home and among our forces so as to enable the full strength of the Allies to be concentrated at the right point and at the right moment and, as a matter of fact, the leading part in promoting that unity was taken by us.

So much for what we did in the war. I claim we did everything which a Government could do in that great and trying emergency. But I then am told I might have been a very good war Minister, but I am no good in peace.

I am a sort of doctor, very good in a bad case when it is a matter of life and death for the patient, but I am no good to cure a headache. You want somebody more commonplace. Somebody with a better bedside manner. It is not for me to say whether they have got people of that sort.

Well, war is not a bad test, even of statesmanship, organization, imagination, and resource, and you can somehow or other apply those qualities in peace, and I have done even a few things in peace.

Mr. Chairman, I was reminded the other day in the City of London that I had reorganized the Port of London, a quite peaceful operation but a very necessary one and a very important one. I think I took, a leading part in establishing the system of old-age pensions and in securing finances for that object. I also organized, in time of peace, health insurance. As a matter of fact, the only war I had was with the doctors, and that ended in a very good peace, which has brought satisfaction to them.

I had some experience as a peace Minister before the war, and after the war that was the first thing we had to do when peace was made.

I know the Treaty of Versailles was abused by a great number of people. What did the Treaty of Versailles establish? The first clauses of the Treaty of Versailles established the League of Nations for the purpose of organizing good-will and co-operation, a league that will provide some means by which you can settle disputes between nations without resorting to cruel barbarities of war.

That is one of the provisions of the League of Nations, and the resolution upon which it was based was moved by me in the Council of Ten that met in Paris. That resolution, which is on the records of the Peace Conference, was moved by the British delegation, of which I was the head, and it was the basis upon which the covenant of the League of Nations was built, and is now incorporated in that covenant.

The first chapter was at Versailles. It restored Alsace-Loraine to France, it restored the Italian provinces in the north of Italy to Italy, and these questions, which were a kind of tumor in the Constitution of Europe and a source of irritation and inflammation, were removed by the Treaty of Versailles.

The Work for Small Nations.

What next? We also emancipated a number of races which had for centuries been under the rule of the oppressor in Central and Southern Europe—the Poles, the Czechoslovaks, the people of Transylvania, the Slavs of Jugoslavia, the Arabs of Asia. Populations which numbered in the aggregate 100,000,000, and had for centuries been groaning under the rule of oppression and terrorism, who had their liberties destroyed, their independence gone and the development of their national life hindered, were freed by one great act, prepared in Paris, signed at Versailles, and which has given a charter of freedom to tens of millions of people.

We destroyed the great armaments of Central Europe, which made the war. Conscription in Central Europe is gone. The navy which was the greatest source of worry and menace to this country has disappeared, and a huge army, probably the largest army in the world, which stood intimidating us, which darkened the horizon in Europe like a dense thundercloud hanging in the air above, and everybody watching to see when a flash would rend it and destroy Europe—and it did.

That army has gone. That is one thing in the Treaty of Versailles approved by everybody. Although you do not rid Europe of the burden of armaments, that is the first act in the great drama of peace. I predict to you that the democracies of other lands will not continue to bear the burden of huge armaments when they see Central Europe freed from that oppression. It will be the beginning, it will be irresistible.

Conscription disappeared here in a few months after the war; it will disappear before many years in other lands as well, and that will be due to the fact that the Treaty of Versailles stipulated that neither in Germany nor in Austria, the two great countries that made the war, can you raise great conscript armies.

There is another provision in the Treaty of Versailles whose full value has not yet been appreciated. That is the great labor provision, which has been introduced in order to improve conditions of labor by international co-operation.

As you know, the difficulty always was that whenever there was any proposal in this country to improve conditions of labor, we always had to bear in mind the fact that we had to compete in the markets of the world with countries that had no provisions of that character. But when you get nations marching together to raise the standard, nations working side by side to improve conditions, nations co-operating to lift the toilers, that difficulty disappears, that excuse vanishes, and by that means you will greatly improve the conditions of the worker throughout the world—by the process of international confidence.

These are only some of the provisions in that treaty. It was a great human charter that will be acclaimed more and more as the years go by. There are imperfections in it, compromises in it. Those are inevitable because you deal with so many races and nations, but in the main I claim it was a great human document, which will in its operation reap rich benefits, not merely to Europe but to the human race throughout the world.

What was the next task we had to set ourselves to do? The re-establishment of national credit. The cost of the war was colossal. The figures were such that no one would have contemplated them before the war.

I remember able men at the beginning of the war saying, "This can't go on, but must come to an end in two or three months." But it went on and the expenditure mounted up until it was a pyramid that pierced the clouds.

England's Financial Stress.

We spent what? I think we spent over ten thousand millions on the war more than the revenue of this country for 50 years—the national revenue, collected by the Treasury. The debt at the present is something in the neighborhood of eight thousand millions.

Before the war we were the financial centre of the world. This was a great market for money that brought us business and brought us trade. The money we advanced to the Dominions, to the Colonies, to foreign countries, came back to purchase the goods which we manufactured. The interest which was paid to us for our advances came back to us in food and raw materials which we purchased from other countries.

It was vital to our position that we should maintain our financial status. We had to sell our foreign securities, but when the war was over it was a very serious position for the future of this country.

What did we do? (And this is not sufficiently understood.) There were two courses open to us. One was to follow the method adopted by every country on the Continent of Europe—to borrow and to go on borrwing. It has an appearance of prosperity. You can spend if you go on borrowing. You can keep taxation down if you go on borrowing, but your credit gets lower and lower and lower, and in the end you are paying per pound an interest not worked out in figures. But with your financial position and your trade, it becomes more and more difficult to recover.

It was the easy course to go on borrowing; it was the popular course to go on borowing. If we had gone on borrowing there would have been less unemployment for the time being, but there would have been more two, three or four years hence. And no one knows what would have happened.

That was one course, the easy course, the popular course, the course pursued by every country in the same condition as ourselves on the Continent of Europe.

Two Ways to Meet Expense.

But what is the next course—the thoroughly unpopular course? make your patriot pay.

How can you do it? One way is by ruthlessly reducing your expenditure. You think, perhaps, that is the popular course, but you try it. Everybody said, "Cut down your expenditure," and when we started on this some one would say he didn't meant to cut that down. Then you propose to cut down something else and that also is objected to.

And men who are interested in the reduction of expenditure will never come to your rescue. If you want to know something about that look up the division lists of the Anti-Waste Party. They were always making cheap speeches about economy, but whenever we faced the problem of cutting down some of the items and we got into difficulties with people interested in that direction, the Anti-Waste Party were never there. They wanted to be on the popular side of saying "reduce taxation" and left us the unpopular side of quarreling with those concerned in such reduction.

Economy is not a popular course, and when we cut down the army, when we cut down the navy, when we cut down the civil service, when we cut down the supply departments everywhere, we had no end of people who were affected.

It was brought home to them. They knew it immediately and were writing articles in the "Daily Mail" and not concerning themselves with the particular item we had to deal with.

Cutting expenditure is a difficult and unpopular task. We have done it, but don't you make any mistake, we have gained no votes out of cutting expenditure.

What is the other alternative? If you cut down the expenditure to the lowest possible limit the war debt would still be so enormous that, with the cost of everything having gone up so much, the expenditure for this country is bound to be infinitely greater than before the war. What does that mean? It means that taxation is bound to be high whatever you do unless you borrow.

Therefore, we had to do two things; we had to ruthlessly cut down expenditure and we had, in order to meet interest on the debt and with the increased cost of everything, we had to put up taxation. We are the only people in Europe who are completely balancing our budget and receiving enough to meet our expenditure.

How England Has Recovered.

Now, you would like to know what the result has been. It is a very interesting one. The great test was the dollar. America has practically received all the gold reserve of Europe and America was in a very prosperous position. Before the war if you went to America you would receive $4 86 for your soereign. If you had gone there after the war you would only get $3 20.

What does that mean? Everything you bought in America cost you very much more because the purchasing power of your sovereign had gone down. We went on reducing expenditure, balancing our budget and having no deficiencies. What happened? The credit of this country rose and rose and then our sovereign instead of being $3 20 is now $4 47. We are just beginning to look the dollar in the face on equal terms.

We need not bow our head, we are very nearly where we were before the war. That is because our two Chancellors of the Exchequer, Austen Chamberlain and Sir Robert Horne were men not merely of real capacity but of real courage. They did unpopular things because they knew it was right. They got the soundest advice and, although they have been abused like pickpockets during the whole of these years, they kept on steadily. The result is our credit has risen and risen and at the present moment we are recapturing many markets of the world.

It was a perfectly marvelous achievement. It is a tribute to British credit, courage and common sense, and every country in the world says it but this. They won't say it here, because they know it will redound to the credit of the much-abused Lloyd George Government.

Credit as Good as Ever.

We lend money abroad that comes back in goods. We lent a good deal last year; before that we had nothing to lend, we were a borrowing people. We started lending last year. This year, in spite of trade depression, we lent more than comes back in orders for gods. It is going on accumulating and the credit of the old land is as good as it ever was and better—better because we somehow or other manage to make good. It is better because it has given more confidence throughout the world. They say this is a sound country, this is a courageous country, this is a steadfast country. This is not a country that is going to indulge in wild paper printing in order to get over our difficulty, but will face those difficulties manfully.

British credit is held high, and not merely British credit, but British character. It would be worth your while my giving you figures of how the country has progressed. It has gone on and on and on. It is owed money and its securities are going up steadily.

It is no use talking about Germany. If you went to Germany eight years ago with a sovereign in your pocket you would have had 20 marks. If you go there to-day you will get 17,000 marks. But it is no use talking about Germany.

Take a rich country like France, a steady country like France, very industrious people like the French, a very thrifty, frugal race. What is the position there? Here you have fallen from 100 to 92%, we have only gone eight points below perfect equality. We went down to 55%, and we are now 92%. What about France? The French 100% before the war has now gone down to 79.6%.

In Italy from 100% it has gone down to 17.

When you remember the difficulties of all countries there is not a country with greater difficulties than ours—none. We pulled through largely through the statesmenship of men like Austen Chamberlain and Sir Robert Horne, and they have smashed the combination that has pulled down our trade, our commerce and our credit throughout the world—it is crime against the nation. In economy I know what has been done. There never has been in the history of this country such a ruthless examination of every item of expenditure, great and small.

Tells of Efforts for Economy.

The business of the Government has been a gigantic one. Take any ordinary business. To go through the whole of the accounts and cut down every item in it takes a long time. But think of the business of a great country like this. You can imagine what it is. Every item, great and small, has been examined microscopically in order to see whether you can save here, there or anywhere without damage or detriment to the efficiency of the servic.

Gigantic cuts have been made. As you know, as every business man knows, when you decide upon a reduction and cutting down you never get the full benefit of it at once. It takes time. Last year we got a very considerable reduction. This year we have had a still more considerable reduction out of the changes made last year, and next year you will have a still more considerable reduction out of the changes made last year and this year.

Everything has been done with a very intelligent mind, assisted by the ablest officials and aided by that committee of businses men under Sir Eric Geddes, which accomplished so much in order to reduce the expenditure of this country to the lowest possible level.

That has been aided by the agreement about armaments effected, with the United States of America, by the destruction of the German fleet, by the destruction of the German army—and let me say this: It has also been aided by the way in which Winston Churchill has handled Mesopotamia and Palestine. The cost there has been brought down to almost the minimum, and I am sure you will permit me, when I see him, as I hope I will, on your behalf to wish him speedy recovery from his very serious illness.

In economy that is what we have done, and next year in consequence of these economies you will find that the country will be able to face its future with greater confidence than ever.

A woman's voice interrupted with words which were understood to be: "If Bonar Law does not make a fool of himself."

Expresses Friendship for Bonar Law.

Mr. Lloyd George laughingly procedeed:

He is a very old friend of mine, and he was a very old friend of mine before the war. Before we started working together he had been a friend of mine. Naturally, when we were co-operating together he was a friend of mine. He is still a friend of mine, and I shall be sorry to say anything which might in the least put an end to our present friendship.

I should like to give you two or three more instances, so long as I am not wearying you.

We had also to deal with an industrial situation full of difficulty, full of danger. You know how difficult was the period of transition between the time of the boom in trade, when wages were very high, and the time of depression. It is always a difficult time. There were two things that made it more difficult than ever. First was, of course, that the boom of the war was absolutely exceptional. There had never been anything quite like it, and then, when the war was over, a reaction set in. So you went in at an exceptionally high pitch to an exceptional depth, and to take millions of independent men with minds of their own and to do all that without a bad fall was very difficult, but it had to be done to save the country from disaster.

There was another thing that made it very difficult. There were revolutions and semi-revolutions, more or less, sweeping all over the world. The temperature was high, and when the temperature is high people talk very wildly, and they think very nightmarish things when the temperature is high.

That is what happened to the revolutionaries. You had them in Russia and you had them in Central Europe. You had a batch of them even in Italy, and there was a good deal of it here, and do not forget that this is the most highly industrialized country in the world, with no great peasant population as you have in Italy and in France—not even as you have in Germany. If the situation had not been handled very carefully anything might have happened. We had industrial crisis after industrial crisis. Some of them, many of them, we got through without trouble. We have got peace throughout the industrial world, and I do claim that the part played by the Coalition Government ought to be borne in mind when you look at the industrial record of the last four years.

Reviews Unemployment Policy.

There, again, I must say Sir Robert Horne, Sir Eric Geddes and Dr. MacNamara were all very helpful, and I did my best, and no man could be called upon to do better than his best. We have been trying to deal with the unemployment after the end of the war—unemployment that always happens after wars. The Napoleonic Wars were followed by grave unemployment, unemployment which produced starvation on a great scale. We have averted that. We have made most liberal provisions for the unemployed—not merely that have ever been done in this country, but the most liberal provision that has ever been made in any other country. If it was right from the point of view of humanity, believe me, it was right from the point of view of safety, and when I advised the course which we have taken with the unemployed I had these things in mind. I had no doubt that right and sound advice was given as I am sure that in the end it will be recognized that that was so.

In regard to housing we have erected 181,000, but you might think we have not built any, and after the houses which are now in the course of construction are completed, 250,000 houses will have been erected, and further, by the skillful administration of Sir Alfred Mond, the cost has been very substantially reduced.

I think it has been brought to the lowest figure which it is possible at the present moment to build houses.

I cannot go on through all the things we have done. I could tell you what we have done with regard to temperance by common agreement in the House of Commons and under the skillful hand of the present Lord Chancellor.

Gain by Railroad Grouping.

Then, look at what we have done in the railway world. Instead of having nearly 100 different concerns with a great deal of confusion, a great deal of care and a great deal of duplication of expenditure, we have, by grouping and amalgamation, made them into four great concerns, which will have the effect of saving £20,000,000 a year.

All that will inure to the benefit of the consumer and of trade.

Then, there is electricity. There is the measure which has been introduced for giving more lighting and heating power, which will tell a tale in the industries of this country. But I cannot dwell upon these, nor upon education.

But I must say a word about the great disarmament plan in the Pacific. If Lord Balfour had not with his great ability, with that consummate tact which he possesses, if he had not carried through that disarmament arrangement with the United States of America you might have had a competition in armaments with the richest country in the world, not with Germany, with the United States of America, which would have led, not perhaps to insolvency, but to an increase of taxation which would have been pressing, and we owe it largely to him that we have been saved from this, and that instead of pressing taxation and expenditure in armaments we have good-will and co-operation; that instead of a fist we have got a handshake. The United States of America and ourselves march side by side on the path of peace and international good-will.

Rejoices in Irish Peace.

And now I am delighted that one of the things which we have been able to achieve was something which I think has far more to do with the break-up of the Coalition than anything else, and yet it is one of the things I am proudest of. We have made peace with the Irish race. A feud which has lasted hundreds of years with one of the most difficult races of the world (how difficult they are, only those who have been fighting them can tell), a feud that was costly and embarrassing to the British Empire, a feud that brought no credit, no honor and no strength, has been closed by an act which is honorable to both sides.

I know the effect of the peace. There are men, great Unionist statesmen, who took part in it. They will not be forgiven by the die-hards. But let them be of good cheer, for their names will be honored forever.

I am also glad that the firmness of Britain in the East has brought renewed prestige and renewed confidence to the British Empire. We have secured the freedom of the Straits for which so many died.

We prevented the war from spreading into Europe with all that means and we have prevented the repetition of scenes and spectacles and atrocities which would have made the world shudder. That, I claim, we have done by the resolution and determination with which we confronted our difficulties, in spite of all criticism.

I am not going to dwell on many things which I could say to you, but I want, with your permission, to say one word as to how all of that has come to an end. We have been harassed at every turn by criticism. While conferences were sitting, while negotiations were pending, the hand of this country has been weakened, and at last a combination, which I think has achieved memorable things for the country, has been terminated.

I have no personal reproach. I have received much kindness, much consideration and much indulgence from men who differ from me entirely. I have never concealed from them or from the House of Commons, I have never concealed from the country, that my sympathies were always democratic and progressive. They know it, every one of them. I have simply brought the contribution which a man of my way of thinking could bring to help the nation through its difficulties. But by up-bringing, my sympathies, my whole bent of mind is democratic, and they allowed me to go on. They did not like it and they got to like it less.

I am not complaining. They stood it very long, but after all, I was concerned for the difficulties of this land, education for the people, disarmament, peace with Ireland, liberty to Irishmen and more liberty in India. These are not things that sound well, and they do not make an especial appeal to Belgravia.

And the revolt began. You have only got to follow out what I have said and you will see the revolt began there. It is true it spread. There was a party appeal. They sounded it very loudly and are sounding it very often. It calls for a certain response in many honest and sincere hearts. It is very difficult to resist. If you do not respond to a partisan appeal, it is said you are betraying the cause. I have suffered as much as anybody from that kind of talk, and it has hurt me many a time, and I can well understand many men gradually falling away when the party call was constantly sent to them.

But it began just where I told you. It spread from there. It did not come from the experienced men of the party. The most distinguished, most experienced and ablest men of the party were all against it. They still are against it. There was one prominent die-hard addressing his fellow die-hards who said: "We have not got one man of outstanding ability among us who says it is not an honest part.

Says Bonar Law Holds Horse by Tail.

Honest up to the point of simplicity, Mr. Bonar Law himself hesitated. He was reluctant. I regret that he allowed his judgment to be rushed, not by the best brains of the party, not by the wiser members of the party, but by the least in experience and ability. He has put himself in the position of the horseman not holding the reins, but holding on by the tail—not a particularly secure position.

All the experienced men were of the opinion that until the nation got through its difficulties it was better that all elements that made for stability, whatever their party color, should keep together until the trouble was over. So convinced was I of the importance of this that I was prepared to eliminate my own controversial personality out of the argument. I begged Mr. Bonar Law or Mr. Chamberlain to take the matter in hand themselves and I would give them support, provided it was clear that it was not a reactionary Government and that it would work for peace.

Therefore, there is no personal element in my regret. My sole regret is because I think the interests of the nation will suffer. Co-operation has been deliberately brought to an end. It has been brought to an end in spite of the advice of all those great men—Lord Balfour, Chamberlain and Sir Robert Horne.

Take all the opinions of the men I have quoted to you as having taken a prominent part in restoring the national credit, in getting us through the national troubles—they have all been against it.

The Lord Chancellor, who by common consent is the most brilliant Lord Chancellor this country has seen for over a generation, a man whose work on the law of real property was one which for 50 years lawyers had been unable to achieve, he was against it, but they have determined upon their course, because, to put it quite frankly, they think the opportunity has come for snatching pure party advantage. That is disastrous in view of the difficulties of the country. By division they would be able by means of a majority of votes to secure a majority of the representation.

This country is accustomed to the rule of the majority and will accept the will of the majority, and will not accept government by a minority. It is provoking, it is a direct provocation to the subversive elements in society. The course of this country ought to be a steady, moderate and definite progress. Reaction is fatal if for even a moment it achieves a temporary party success, for in the end it will strengthen the subversive element to such an extent that payment for the atonement will certainly come, and the price paid by the country will be a very heavy one.

Expects Early Election.

That is what we want to avoid. That is what those great statesmen I have named are anxious to avoid. When the time comes for appealing to the people, and I do not see that it can be much delayed, they will have a very important decision to make. This reactionary mutiny which culminated at the Carlton Club this week, if it receives a majority of the votes of this country, and I am honestly apprehensive of the result once they are firmly in the saddle, whatever they may say before the election, once they are firmly in the saddle they will want to carry out their die-hard program.

That is what they went out for. They have pursued it with great determination. They mean to make the greatest use of it, and once they are secure after the election, as they will be for five years if they have a majority, once they are there I fear there will be actions, administrative and otherwise, taken which will strengthen at every step, day by day, week by week, year by year, those subversive elements which are deep down and which, if they cannot be kept within bounds by reasonable, sane legislation, will in the end win the masses of this country, but with disastrous results.

Promises to Honor Confidence.

I stand where I was. I stand for sane, sound progress. I have now for a good many years been steeped in the great events, the greatest events this world has witnessed for many centuries. I have been intimately associated with their direction. I have become closely acquainted with the real character of this great people. I know what they are capable of achieving, what they are capable of enduring, what they are capable of sacrificing for a great cause. And after that experience I promise you, the people of this country, who for six years have given me their trust, I promise you that whatever the future brings forth I will do nothing mean, nothing paltry. I promise you that I will play no part which is unworthy of the confidence placed in me by the people of this country at the greatest period in the history of the empire.

Mr. Lloyd George spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. Later, proposing a vote of thanks to the Chairman, Lord Airedale, he said:

"I knew his father before him, and I know that if his son is on my side I shall not be short of men to support me. There are good men to go into the jungle with but there are some people who go with you into the jungle as long as they can get safe sport, but when the jungle gets dangerous and the tigers get troublesome they pass resolutions like the one passed at the Carlton Club. They think it is safer, but I like men who fight through."

Before leaving Leeds Mr. Lloyd George received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Leeds University, which was voted him some time ago. In his speech of thanks he said that the British, with all his affectation of being extraordinarily stupid, showed more resource than any other nation during the war. He did not realize until the war, he asserted, that universities were an essential part of British national defense as the army, navy and the air force.

Coincidentally with the speech of the former Premier, the National Liberal Council, composed of Coalition Liberals, held a meeting at Leeds and elected Mr. Lloyd George President, giving the Vice-Presidency to Winston Spencer Churchill, who was Secretary for the Colonies.

PRESIDENT HARDING SAYS COASTWISE SHIPPING LAW TO PHILIPPINES WILL NOT BE MADE EFFECTIVE UNTIL SERVICE BY AMERICAN VESSELS IS ASSURED.

The fact there is no intention on the part of the United States to make effective the Coastwise Shipping Law between the Philippine Islands and the United States until the President has assurance that the service can be rendered by American ships, is indicated in a letter which President Harding has addressed to Senator Manuel L. Quezon, made public at Manila on Sept. 18. According to Associated Press advices, the letter, dated at the White House July 24, is as follows:

I have just concluded reading the brief filed by yourself and Mr. Osmena, Chairman of the Commission on the part of the House, relative to the declaration of the effectiveness of the Coastwise Shipping Law between the Philippine Islands and the United States mainland ports. I note that you stress the inadequacy of shipping on both the Atlantic and Pacific, but give special emphasis to such inadequacy on the Atlantic and the route by way of the Suez Canal. As you understand, the law contemplates that no declaration of the coastwise provision shall be made until the President is assured of the declaration of the service by American ships. I think I have already assured you in person, and am glad to confirm it now, that no such step will be contemplated until there is indisputable evidence of the declaration of such shipping.

One phase of your brief has interested me very much. I refer to your reference to the inability of Philippine citizens to own vessels of American registry and the ineligibility of Philippine citizens to be officers on such vessels. I am very glad you called this matter to my attention. I am very much interested to know if any Philippine capital is interested in investing in American vessels and whether there is a tendency on the part of Philippine citizens to serve as officials on such vessels. Moreover, I should like to know if Philippine capital is invested in vessels flying other national flags and whether any Philippine citizens are engaged in the service of such vessels under foreign flags.

CELEBRATION OF NAVY DAY IN U. S.—PRESIDENT HARDING'S ENDORSEMENT—GOV. BAXTER OF MAINE DECLARES IT INADVISABLE.

Navy Day was celebrated (the birthday, it happens, of the late Theodore Roosevelt) in the United States—the day having been set apart last month to pay tribute to the Navy, at the instance of the Navy League. As to its purpose, Henry Breckinridge, Vice-President of the League, was reported on Oct. 22 as saying:

Navy Day has been designated in order to call the attention of the people of the country to the great contribution the Navy has made toward making and keeping us a nation.

The Navy rendered vital service to the nation and to humanity during the World War. While no great fleet action was fought to give spectacular emphasis to its vital contribution to the victory, the convoy, the anti-submarine patrol, the mine barrage, were essential factors in the winning of the war and the saving of civilization. So it has been in every crisis of our history—the Navy has not failed. In the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, victory without the Navy would have been virtually impossible. To-day our peace and prosperity are safeguarded by the Navy. It is an agent of stability in a troubled world. It carries no threat, but it lends authority to America's voice, speaking for altruism, justice and law.

"On Navy Day it is proposed to celebrate the consecration to duty of the personnel of the present Navy, the glorious services rendered to the nation by the Navy of the past; to emphasize its unity with every interest and activity of the national life."

Secretary of State Hughes, in endorsing the celebration, referred to the fact that the United States has taken the lead in securing naval armament reduction under the terms of the Five-Power Treaty, but at the same time urged the need of the maintenance of efficiency of the reduced forces. Secretary Hughes's declarations are as follows:

The celebration of Navy Day has my hearty approval. This Government has taken the lead in securing the reduction of naval armament, but the navy that we retain under the agreement should be maintained with efficient personnel and price in the service.

It is essential that we should maintain the relative naval strength of the United States. That, in my judgment, is the way to peace and security. It will be upon that basis that we would enter in future conferences or make agreements for limitation and it would be folly to undermine our position.

President Harding likewise, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Denby, also voiced his approval of the celebration, and pointed out that "the program of lessening naval armaments" presented "a greater reason for maintaining the highest efficiency" for "this branch of the national defensive service." The President's views were indicated as follows in his letter:

Thank you for your note, which brings assurance of the notable success which seems certain to attend the celebration of Navy Day on Friday, Oct. 27, in commemoration of past and present services of the Navy. From our earliest national beginnings the Navy has always been, and deserved to be, an object of special pride to the American people. Its record is indeed one to inspire such sentiments, and I am very sure that such a commemoration as is planned will be a timely reminder.

It is well for us to have in mind that under a program of lessening naval armaments there is a greater reason for maintaining the highest efficiency fitness and morale in this branch of the national defensive service. I know how earnestly the Navy personnel is devoted to this ideal, and want you to be assured of my hearty concurrence.

Governor Percival P. Baxter, of Maine, one of those not in sympathy with the observance of Navy Day, declared on the 22nd inst. his belief that the day was uncalled for and inadvisable. His comments were reported as follows by the New York "Times" in a dispatch from Augusta, Me.:

The American Navy is and always has been the pride of our nation. Its personnel cannot be surpassed, I doubt if it can be equaled the world over. Our navy is the peer of that of any nation and it occupies a warm place in the hearts of our people.

At the present time, however, I believe it unnecessary and unwise to undertake a campaign to bring our navy into prominence, when within the year, under President Harding and Secretary Hughes's great leadership, a solemn agreement has been made by the leading naval powers to reduce naval armaments and to establish a naval holiday.

Many of the sponsors of Navy Day are inspired by patriotism, while a few others may be actuated by less worthy motives. What will the world think of the United States if, in the face of our binding promises, preparations for naval expansion are made? If every nation holds a Navy Day the great principles of the disarmament conference of 1921 will soon be forgotten.

This country must maintain an adequate army and navy for defense against enemies from without, as well as from the more subtle and insidious enemies within. In some of the States of the Union the followers of Sovietism are trying to undermine society. All such attempts must be checked at the outset. Our people, however, should be careful to distinguish between the far-seeing, patriotic citizens who, by advocating a world-wide reduction of armaments seek to remove the causes of war, and those Soviets who seek to weaken the nation's strength so they may rush in and overwhelm us. The first are patriots; the latter are enemies of society.

Almost every public man who returns from France speaks of the great armies maintained by that country and the dangers incident thereto. Our financiers are constantly calling upon France to reduce her armies so she may pay her bills. With France armed to the teeth other nations feel compelled to do likewise, and again begins that competition in armaments by land and sea that holds back peace and progress.

Many of those who have obtained honor and position in military and naval circles naturally are reluctant to make the sacrifice that modern thought and conditions require. In addition to this class of citizens great fortunes have been built up upon armament manufacture and it will be difficult to entirely shake off the influences of this great wealth. Gradually, however, the peoples of the world will come to realize that they can live in peace better than in war, and rulers will be chosen who reflect the aspirations of their peoples. The military and naval men have responded nobly in the past, and it may be they will be called upon again before the old order is completely changed, but even if this happens it should not deter those who have ideals for the future.

I consider the disarmament conference one of the great events of the Christian era. It is the first step toward the ideal of "no more war." Are we to slip from the high position taken there and relapse into the old ways?

I believe that a Navy Day at the present time is uncalled for and inadvisable. All good citizens are loyal to our navy and it will never lack proper support, but the present is no time for naval expansion and our country should and will live up to both the letter and the spirit of its reduction of armaments agreement. For these reasons I shall refrain from endorsing Navy Day.

A proclamation by Mayor Hylan, calling for observance of the day, was issued as follows on Oct. 26:

To the people of New York: The Navy Department, co-operating with the Navy League and other patriotic socities, has set aside Friday, Oct. 27, the natal day of Theodore Roosevelt, as "Navy Day," on which to pay tribute to the past and present services of the navy. A nation-wide celebration is planned, with the fleets of the navy and merchant marine specially decorated on that occasion.

The observance of Navy Day deserves the co-operation of every inhabitant of the City of New York. Throughout our history an effective navy has stood guard as the first line of defense at our sea gates. In prestige, power and commerce New York has steadily advanced, conscious of protection from aggression afforded by the ships of the navy and the loyal, sturdy boys that manned them.

Great, properous and independent have we become, firm in the security of a great defensive weapon ready to challenge a hostile fleet. Whether in the paths of peace or the waters of war, the reliance which we have placed on our strong and wonderful navy and able and heroic seamen has aided in our triumphant forward march.

At the request of the sponsors of Navy Day, I hereby call upon all patriotic societies and organizations, business houses and citizens to aid in a fitting observance of Navy Day by the display of the national colors and appropriate exercises. All vessels in the municipal service will be appropriately decorated for the occasion, and the owners of all-other vessels in the port are urged to do likewise in appreciation of the splendid record of our Navy in the promotion of national greatness.

In withness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of New York to be affixed, this 26th day of October, in the year of Lord, 1922.

JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor of the City of New York.

PROHIBITION TO CONTINUE IN U. S. FOR ALL TIME ACCORDING TO PRESIDENT HARDING.

The view that the United States would never depart from the prohibition law is said to have been expressed by President Harding, Associated Press dispatches from Washington Oct. 18 reporting him to this effect as follows:

President Harding was quoted by delegates to the conference of Allied Christian Societies, who called upon him at the White House to-night, just before the close of their two-day meeting, as declaring that the nation, in his opinion, would never depart from the Eighteenth Amendment.

The President, the delegates said, expressed his further belief that the country, in its international relations, should do its utmost for the rest of the world.

The President greeted the delegates in his study and listened to an address made on their behalf by Fred B. Smith, Chairman of the Conference, who said the Conference was interested in two things, enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and the exercise of America's full duty to the rest of the world.

These two subjects were said to have been the basis of the President's response. He was quoted as saying that it been found difficult to carry out the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Prohibition Enforcement Act in some of its minot details, inasmuch as it was the Administration's opinion that the law followed in every respect the flag. However, he added, progress was being made along lines of enforcement and the country, he was sure, would never depart from the policy in this respect that it had embarked upon.

Speaking of the international plea made by the delegates, the President was said to have told them it was exceedingly difficult for the Government to do all that it would like. He emphasized, members of the delegation said, that this country ought never to make a threat, if it was not prepared and willing to back it up and assured them that such would ever be his policy as the Chief Executive.

PRESIDENT HARDING ON NEW ERA AND FARMERS' SHARE THEREIN—OPPOSED TO CUT IN PRODUCTION.

The assertion that our country "is on the way now to a new era of activity and prosperity" and that "in that new era we can be very sure that the farmer will be among the first to get the substantial recognition which he needs and must have" was made in a letter addressed by President Harding to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, made public at the White House on the 18th inst. It had been sent to Mr. Wallace to be read coincident with the Secretary's address delivered at Washington Court House, Ohio, to which we refer in another article.

The President deplored any movement by the farmers looking toward decrease of production, saying the natural result of such a movement would be famine prices. He commended Mr. Wallace for his administration of the Department of Agriculture, which, he said, "in the last two years has rendered a particularly notable service along a somewhat new line." The letter continued:

"There was a time when the Department of Agriculture was looked upon as an instrumentality for inducing constantly larger and larger production from the farmers, rather regardless of the questions of markets and marketing, of transportation, of financing, and other things of that sort. Latterly we have come upon a time when these other questions demand attention, and I think the country owes a great deal to the fact that we have had a new direction given to important activities of the Department. I mean that these broader questions have been given a consideration and attention which formerly was not always recognized as due them.

"The other day a farmer said to me that the farmers could themselves rehabilitate agriculture very promptly if they would just unite on a program of reduced production. I replied that the farmers would never unite on such a program because of the peculiar economic circumstances of their industry. Every farm is an economic entity by itself. Every farmer is a captain of industry. The elimination of competition among them would be impossible without sacrificing that fine individualism that still keeps the farm the real reservoir from which the nation draws so many of the finest elements of its citizenship.

"Moreover, it would be a calamity if the farmers should unite in such a diminution of production as would force famine prices or something approximate to them. The world can get along without a good many other things, but it cannot get along without the products of the farm.

"It is rather a striking fact that among the world's industries that of agriculture has been most rapidly rehabilitated since the war. The crop statistics of the world for the past two seasons are proof of this. We ma attribute it to that very individualism and self sufficiency of the farmers to which I have referred.

"Agricultural production is very nearly restored, taking the world as a whole; but agricultural prices are so low that it is apparent to all of us that the farmer is not being adequately compensated. The Washington Administration has recognized this condition and has done everything in its power to restore a normal balance between prices and costs of production. A great deal has been accomplished and I am glad to say that the trend is strongly toward better conditions for the farmer. He has been the leader in the difficult task of bringing the whole industrial world back to normal conditions, and that contribultion is everywhere recognized.

"Our own country, as evidenced by every index of business and commercial conditions, is on the way now to a new era of activity and prosperity. In that new era we can be very sure that the farmer will be among the first to get the substantial recognition which he needs and must have for what he has done to make these improv d circumstances possible."

AMERICAN COTTON EXCHANGE GOES INTO RECEIVERSHIP.

Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner on Oct. 17 appointed the Hudson Trust Co. and Henry Schneider of 542 Fifth Ave., as receivers in equity for the American Cotton Exchange under a bond of $50,000. The receivers were appointed as a result of a friendly suit instituted by James S. Meng and August W. Graham on behalf of themselves and other creditors to conserve the assets of the Exchange. No objections to the application were filed by Albert Massey of 120 Broadway, attorney for the Exchange, who admitted in his formal answer that "the material allegations of the complaint are substantially true." On Sept. 16 the American Cotton Exchange suspended operations pending a decision in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court on its appeal (to be argued Nov. 9, it is said) from the verdict of a jury before Supreme Court Justice L. H. Marcus, last Spring, when the Exchange was convicted of "bucketing" orders. Reference was made to this in the "Chronicle" of Sept. 23, pages 1390 and 1391.

NEW LIVE STOCK REPORTING SERVICE HAS WIDE SCOPE.

The proposed new live stock reporting service for forecasting current live stock production, marketable supplies and commercial movements has been organized by the United States Department of Agriculture. The service will cover the corn belt and Western range States and will function through State statisticians already connected with the Department's crop estimate work. The co-operation of many railroads, stock yards, packing plants and producers' organizations for furnishing data as a basis for forecasting has been secured. The live stock reporting service is part of the Department's program for collecting and disseminating information of an economic character bearing on agriculture, in an effort to influence the organization of the farm business on a sound economic basis. It is believed that statistics on present and prospective live stock production, and information of current market movements, will enable producers better to correlate supply with the demand, thereby preventing gluts or shortages in supplies for consumptive purposes, and the attendant fluctuations in prices to both the producer and the consumer. The new service will have broad scope, and in making it a success, the co-operation of every one concerned in the live stock industry is being urged by the department. The following reports, the Department states, are proposed to be issued from time to time:

Monthly reports on changes in numbers of live stock on farms. These reports will show the number of births, purchases, sales, farm slaughters and deaths each month on a large number of farms used as samples from which ratios of changes are determined. The reports will cover the entire country.

Semi-annual pig surveys will be made in March and November through rural mail carriers. These surveys will show the number of spring and fall litters and size of litters, with comparisons for previous years.

Monthly reports of receipts and shipments of live stock from the corn belt and Western States based upon information secured from railroads, stock yards and other sources, will be issued. Other monthly reports will show pasture and feed conditions in the range States, the condition of live stock expressed in percentage of normal and live stock prices on the range in territory distant from central markets.

Estimates of the number of cattle on feed will be made December 1, January 1, and possibly February 1, each year. These estimates will be confined to areas where cattle are fed for market largely in the corn belt States, and will be based on special field investigations, reports from live stock reporters, records of railroad shipments and receipts and records of the movement of feeder cattle from public stock yards to feed lots. Estimates on December 1 and January 1 will show the number of sheep and lambs on feed, both in the corn belt States and in areas in the West, where sheep and lamps are fed. Estimates on March 1 will show the probable spring movement of sheep and lambs from California, Arizona, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and Virginia, based upon an analysis of movement in preceding years, field investigations and investigations secured from selected lots of sheep and feeders by the use of special questionnaires. A final report of shipments from these States will be made in July or August, compiled from railroad and stock yard records of actual shipments.

Estimates will be made of the calf and lamb crop in the range States; the first report to be made about July 1, with final revisions on January 1 of each year. Plans for making similar estimates in the corn belt States may be developed later. A semi-annual estimate of the prospective supply of cattle for spring and fall delivery will be made in February and August. The spring inquiry will relate particularly to Texas, New Mexico and Arizona; the August inquiry will relate to the supply of stockers and feeders from all sections.

Other reports will be an estimate of the prospective movement of grass fed cattle from southern Texas to be made in February; an estimate of the lamb crop of California and the early lamb crop of Arizona, Idaho and Colorado, to be made in March; a report on the condition of pasture in Kansas Flint Hills and short grass areas, to be made in March and April; estimate of the prospective movement of grass fed sheep from western Texas, to be made in March; an estimate of the grass fed cattle movement from California, to be made in May; an estimate of the number of cattle which have gone from the Southwestern States to Oklahoma, Kansas and other Northern pastures, to be made in June; an estimate of the probable number of fat and feeder lambs available for shipment from Arizona, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico during July and August, to be made in June; an estimate of the number of grass fed cattle moving to market from Kansas, Oklahoma, Montana and Wyoming, to be made in July; a report of the calf crop of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, to be made in September.

The annual reports of numbers of live stock on farms and ranches, by age and class with average farm value for each class, made as of January 1, will show hereafter the classes of each kind of live stock. Estimates of the number of brood sows on farms made April 1; estimates of mortality of live stock, made May 1; estimates of the number of stock hogs on farms, made on September 1, and the report on monthly farm prices of live stock, made the 15th of each month, will be published as heretofore.

The plan calls for the issuance of general reports for the Central and Western States from Chicago, where the Department's representative, C. L. Harlan, will supervise the collection of data in the corn belt States. Simultaneously with the issuance of reports at Chicago, each statistician concerned with making the report will issue a local report for his State, together with such data concerning the whole area as may be necessary to present a clear picture of the situation. Regional Statistician Frank Andrews, located at Denver, will also, it is stated, issue general reports relating primarily to the range States. Reports on pasture and feed conditions are also to be issued from the Denver office. The various estimates will be available to the general public and the press, and some arrangement may be made, it is asserted, for broadcasting the news from radio stations now co-operating with the Department in broadcasting weather, crop and market reports.

DECREASE IN WHOLESALE PRICES IN SEPTEMBER.

The September level of wholesale prices was slightly below that of August, according to information gathered in leading markets of the country by the U. S. Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which, in the statement made public Oct. 19, says:

Measured by the Bureau's weighted index number, which includes 404 commodities or price series, there was a decrease from August to September of 1 1-3%, or from 155 to 153.

Farm products, owing to advances in grain, cattle, hogs, lambs, poultry, eggs, and wool, showed an increase of 1½% over the August level. Cloths and clothing increased 1%, chemicals and drugs 1½%, building materials 4½%, and metals and metal products 6¼% in average price in the period stated. In the group of miscellaneous commodities there was an increase of less than 1%.

On the other hand, a decrease of approximately 10% took place in the important group of fuel and lighting materials, due to decreases in bituminous coal and coke. No change in the general price level was reported for foods and for house-furnishing goods.

The considerable increase shown for building materials and for metals and metal products is due largely to advances in structural steel and other articles included in both groups of commodities. Similarly, the inclusion of eggs in the group of farm products as well as in that of foodstuffs, with the recent steep increases in the price of eggs, accounts in large measure for the rise in the former group and the failure of the latter group to decline in the face of falling prices of flour and potatoes. However, such instances of duplication do not affect the general index number of all commodities, since, in computing the final result, no commodity is counted more than once.

Index Numbers of Wholesale Prices, by Groups of Commodities (1913=100).

Comparing prices in September with those of a year ago, as measured by changes in the index numbers, it is seen that the general level has risen 8½%. Fuel and lighting materials show by far the largest increase, 34¾%. Building materials and metals and metal products increased approximately 15½%, farm products 7¼%, and cloths and clothing 2¾% in price in the year. Food items, chemicals and drugs, house-furnishing goods, and miscellaneous commodities show decreases compared with prices in the corresponding month of last year.

EMPLOYMENT IN SELECTED INDUSTRIES IN SEPTEMBER.

In its monthly statement indicating employment conditions during September, the U. S. Department of Labor shows that in thirty-one out of forty-two industries there were increases this year as compared with last year, the greatest increase occurring in car building and repairing.

The following is the Department's statement in the matter, as made public Oct. 23:

The U S Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics here presents reports concerning the volume of employment in September 1922 from 2,653 representative establishments in 42 manufacturing industries, covering 1,354,162 employees, who received $40,794,816 in wages Comparing the figures for September 1922 with those for identical establishments for August 1922, it appears that in 31 of the 42 industries tnere were increases in the number of employees, while in 11 there were decreases. The greatest increase, 15.8%, appears in car building and repairing. Cotton finishing shows an increase of 11.3% and woolen of 11.0%. The greatest decreases appear in agricultural implements, 4.4%; lumber (mill work), 3.7%, and hosiery and knit goods, 3 2%.

Twenty-nine of the 42 industries show increases in the total amount of pay roll for September 1922 as compared with August 1922, and the remaining 13 show decreases. The greatest increase, 20 6%, appears in car building and repairing. Cotton finishing and woolen show increases of 15.6% and 11.4%, respectively. The greatest decreases appear in agricultural implements, 9.1%; automobiles, 5.7%, and chewing and smoking tobacco, 5.0%.

* Increase less than one-tenth of one per cent.

Comparative data covering identical establishments in 13 manufacturing industries for September 1921 and September 1922 appear in the following table. The number of employees increased in 1922 as compared witn 1921 in 7 of the 13 industries and decreased in the remaining 6 Car building and repairing and iron and steel each increased 25% in 1922 as compared with 1921, while automobiles increased 24 3% and leather 22 5%. Decreases ranging from 16 7% to 14 3% appear in cotton manufacturing, silk, woolen and men's clothing.

The amount paid in wages in September 1922 was greater than that paid in September 1921 in 5 of the 13 industries, and less in the 8 remaining industries. Iron and steel shows the huge increase of 74%. Car building and repairing increased 30.7%, and automobiles 27.5%. The greatest decreases appear in men's clothing, silk, and cotton manufacturing, being 21.9, 20.7 and 18.5%, respectively.

INCREASE IN RETAIL FOOD PRICES IN SEPTEMBER.

The retail food index issued by the United States Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics, shows that there was an increase of 1% in the retail cost of food to the average family in September as compared with August. In its advices to this effect, made public Oct. 20, the Bureau added:

Prices of 43 food articles are reported to the Bureau of Labor Statistics each month, by retail dealers in 51 important cities. In addition prices on storage eggs are secured only for 5 months of the year. From these prices average prices are made for each article. The average prices of the 43 articles on which prices are secured each month are then "weighted" according to the quantity of each article consumed in the average workingman's family. From Jan. 1913 to Dec. 1920 22 articles of food were used in this index, but from Jan. 1921 43 articles are included in the index number.

Changes in One Month.

During the month from Aug. 15 1922 to Sept. 15 1922 21 articles on which monthly prices are secured decreased in price as follows: Onions, 14%; potatoes, 12%; ham and raisins, 5%; flour, navy beans and canned tomatoes, 4%; cabbage, 3%; granulated sugar, 2%; sirloin steak, round steak, rib roast, canned salmon, macaroni, canned corn, canned peas and bananas, 1%; bacon, leg of lamb, cream of wheat, and tea, decreased less than five-tenths of 1%.

Ten articles increased in price as follows: Strictly fresh eggs, 21%; butter, 6%; pork chops and oranges, 4%; fresh milk, oleomargarine and nut margarine, cheese and crisco, 1%; prunes increased less than five-tenths of 1%. Prices remained unchanged for chuck roast, plate beef, hens, evaporated milk, lard, bread, cornmeal, rolled oats, cornflakes, rice, baked beans and coffee.

Changes in One Year.

For the year period Sept. 15 1921 to Sept. 15 1922, the percentage decrease in all articles of food combined was 9%. Thirty-four articles decreased in price during the year as follows: Potatoes, 43%; cabbage, 30%; raisins, 24%; evaporated milk, 20%; cornflakes, 18%; cream of wheat, 14%; flour, 13%; rolled oats, 12%; strictly fresh eggs, cornmeal and onions, 11%; canned salmon and bananas, 10%; hens and bread, 9%; butter, 8%; fresh milk and oleomargarine, 7%; bacon and ham, 6%; piate beef, nut margarine, baked beans and canned corn, 5%; lard, 4%; pork chops and macaroni, 3%; round steak, rib roast, chuck roast and cheese, 2%; sirloin steak, canned peas and tea, 1%.

Nine articles increased in price as follows: Navy beans, 33%; oranges, 26%; prunes, 11%; leg of lamb, 9%; crisco and granulated sugar, 8%; rice, 7%; canned tomatoes, 5%; coffee, 2%.

Changes Since September 1913.

For the 9-year period, Sept. 15 1913 to Sept. 15 1922, the increase in all articles of food combined was 36%. The articles named showed increases as follows: Leg of lamb, 92%; ham, 72%; hens, 62%; pork chops, 60%; bread, 55%; flour, 48%; sirloin steak and fresh milk, 47%; round steak and cheese, 45%; bacon, 44%; rib roast and granulated sugar, 39%; cornmeal, 26%; tea, 25%; butter, 24%; chuck roast, 22%; potatoes and coffee, 21%; strictly fresh eggs, 19%; rice, 10%; lard, 7%, and plate beef, 2%.

The index numbers based on 1913 as 100, were 139 in August and 140 in September 1922.

JUDGE GARY ON INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS AND ALLIED INDEBTEDNESS.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, President of the American Iron & Steel Institute, addressing the semi-annual meeting at the Hotel Commodore, this city, yesterday (Oct. 27), observed that "we are still suffering from the very high cost of living caused by the despicable cycle developed during the war, which carries high prices from a starting point in a given place, proceeds around a spiral and returns step by step to a higher basis." "Speaking generally," he added, "and yet making the illustration specific, labor which constitutes 85% of the cost of production, is paid very large rates, but with exceptions, is not paid more than is proper, because compelled to pay high prices for the living costs." He likewise observed that "normal conditions have not been fully restored and apparently are not likely to be in the immediate future, urless extraordinary efforts shall be made." Referring to the fact that "we have been passing through an industrial conflict, involving commission of crime, heavy losses in commerce and industry, both to capital and labor, and deprivation to the general public which reached almost to the brink of extreme suffering and death," Judge Gary stated that "of special interest just now is the treatment, with like rules, privileges and penalties of both employers and employees." "Unless and until that is brought about," he declared, "there can never be industrial peace nor can the public interest be protected. The untrammeled right to contract and the right to enforce contracts, both based on the law of supply and demand, together with opportunity on the part of the public to have the facts exposed, are essential to the protection of the public interest. Partial, prejudiced or incompetent investigation will not suffice."

Judge Gary, commenting on the Allied debts to the United States, declared against their cancellation, saying:

The doctrine of supply and demand, which is one of mutuality, is germane to the present public and private discussions relating to the enormous debts owing by certain foreign nations to the United States. They were voluntarily, openly and fairly contracted. They cannot properly be canceled or disposed of on any other basis, without doing violence to well-recognized principles of justice and rules of propriety. To cancel these debts or any part of them without full payment would be forced charity, and that is never agreeable to the donor and, as a rule, equally disagreeable to a self-respecting person or nation. It is the individual citizens of the different countries who are to be consulted and whose decisions must control. Americans generally would not be contented with Governmental action which relieved from debt the citizens of a foreign nation by increasing the burdens of the former. Likewise foreigners generally would oppose any such enforced act of charity. Certainly it would be abhorrent to the businessmen and women of both countries. This attitude has no bearing upon the question of furnishing charitable and Christian relief to foreigners who are in distress and need immediate aid, which cannot be provided at home. This has always been and will continue to be done by the people of every land. Each of you has done what you could, reasonably, in charitable contributions, and this will undoubtedly continue to be your habit.

The attitude and conduct of a nation should not be different from that of an individual. If your friend is in real need and is honest and trustworthy, you will assist him by donation or by loan, or both, but in the latter case you do not expect him to turn the loan into a gift if and when he is in any way able to pay. If he attempts this, your respect for him vanishes. To retain your confidence he must use every effort, up to the limit of his ability and opportunity, to earn and to pay. Especially do you insist he shall work, and work hard, in any capacity offered, for this is what you would do if similarly situated. You would, of course, extend time of payment if absolutely necessary, but you would not do so if he were keeping an automobile or eating terrapin or liberally extending his business in order to compete with you.

In the judgment of many of us the foreign nations can and are willing to pay their debts, some sooner than others, and most of them sooner than is now generally admitted. This we have publicly asserted several times. We know something of their capacity to work and earn and save and thrive, of their success in business and their mode of living. No doubt, in many instances, productive capacity has been reduced and we share in their suffering on account of deprivation. We should be cheerfully willing to extend payment at reasonably low rates of interest. We should be glad to make new loans whenever we are confident they will be paid, and thus assist in restoration and rehabilitation. We should be friendly and helpful, responsive to the chords of gratitude for friendly assistance in the past, demonstrating by word and deed that we desire a continuance of the friendship of our acquaintances abroad.

But there is no "royal road" to success. There is no way of paying debts, of receiving benefits, of acquiring property, of securing and retaining positions of employment or office, public or private, or obtaining assistants or workmen, skilled or unskilled, except on the basis of reciprocity, of returning fair equivalent to be mutually agreed upon. Every man or nation in order to measure up to obligations must work, and save, must be prudent and fair and economical.

All this applies to the payment of debts, to the re-establishment and proggress of business, to the money rates of exchange, to the financial and other exchanges of commodities or activities. It is insisted rates of exchange cannot be restored or maintained except by obedience to the simple rule of supply and demand. Foreign debtor nations need not expect a return of fair rates of exchange except by producing and selling to other countries what can be utilized by the latter. It is believed some, if not many, of the great debtor nations can produce more than they are now producing, and can, without suffering, materially increase their economies. When a man or nation is in debt there should be practiced at all times rigid economy and maximum industry until after debts are paid and the equilibrium of the basis for exchanges is restored. It is needless to ignore the well-tried law of supply and demand. It cannot be done successfully.

Personalities have not been indulged in. It has been intended only to discuss and apply rules and principles of common knowledge; to call attention to the fact that artificial expedients cannot be satisfactory or successful. Every nation, every State, every people, every class, every group, every man, woman and child, must always be treated fairly, reasonably, justly. Every one must act with due regard to the rights and interests of all others. This is the panacea for all human troubles.

Expressing the hope that "there will soon be held in Washington another peace conference for the full and frank discussion of all unsettled financial, commercial and industrial questions in which our people are interested, directly or indirectly, to be participated in by able, open-minded, well-disposed representatives from the different nations, such as those who appeared at the recent limitation of armament conference, Judge Gary added:

If there shall be such a meeting, and the delegates are all of the type referred to, there will result incalculable good to all who are parties. They would not decide or discuss how to abolish or overcome the old-established law of supply and demand, how to avoid or repudiate existing legal obligations, but rather how and when to fulfill them without irreparable injury to any one or the sacrifice of principle. It would be found that the United States is always disposed to be just, reasonable, lenient, impartial and friendly. While it is true that members of such a conference would be compelled to consider, and in a large measure be governed by, the wishes of their respective constituencies, it is believed that the large majority of the populations making up such constituencies would be sensible and honest.

The world, now more than ever before, needs peace, international and domestic, social and industrial. It is a time for work, economy, saving, thirft; honest, reasonable and intelligent recognition, observance and enforcement of the rules of law, propriety and common sense. Gentlemen, what we preach let us practice, conscientiously, persistently and loyally. Let us always transact our business on the basis of rendering a full equivalent for what we demand or receive. Thus we shall best succeed and prosper.

Judge Gary sees "no obstacles to continued prosperity in the iron and steel business of the United States except such as may arise from interference with the natural course of supply and demand." Continuing, he said in part:

There is a great abundance of high-quality iron ore; steam, gas and coking coal; limestone and other raw products, all within easy reach; also furnaces, mills and shops of highest grades, railroads and ships for transportation, every variety of experts of pronounced ability, organizations and systems equal to any in the world; and the demand for every kind and character of steel is far in excess of capacity to produce. Steel is needed immediately for buildings and other structures, for railroads for farms, for pipe lines, for canning, for equipment of every kind, for guns, tools and implements of thousands of varieties, for wire, ranging from the finest watch springs and piano strings to the largest cables, for cars, automobiles, aeroplanes and other vehicles for transportation of property and persons, and many other purposes.

Order books are well filled, finished steel, aggregating many thousand tons, is stored at the producing mills, ready for shipment, and this notwithstanding the recent labor troubles at the mines and in transportation circles. Unfortunately there has been an interference with the mining and delivery of coal and with the transporation of finished iron and steel, and there is an insufficient supply of labor.

If the natural course of business had not been interrupted we would now be enjoying success and prosperity in our industry greater than ever before, so far as volume is concerned. Who is blamable? The answer is: Any one who by word or deed has interrupted or hindered the operation of the natural law of supply and demand; or has interfered with the full, free and unlimited right to work, to operate and to produce.

All that is necessary to prosperity in the United States is the legitimate utilization of our stupendous resources. We can produce here everything to supply our inhabitants their necessities and their comforts; also luxuries and even delicacies. We can produce without limit, fuel, food, clothing and shelter; everything to make us comfortable and happy, and then have left much for other countries whenever they are in need. We would sell for cash or work or on credit; or when distress is occasioned by calamity, furnish supplies without consideration except a continuance of friendly and Christian response. We are no better than the people of other nations; and we are no worse.

The fault for lack of continual prosperity in a measure may be laid at our own doors. If so, then let us to the best of our ability overcome our faults and consistently adopt and practice reasonable and constructive policies.

Fault in many places no doubt exists. There are too many tinkers, too few experts. Many individuals, by reason of political position or other limited success, assume to know a good deal about matters, particularly economic, concerning which they have little information, derived either from study or experience, and these generally talk the loudest and longest on these subjects. Others from a desire to control or create antagonisms or to derive personal profit, attempt to interfere with the natural and reasonable course of business, sometimes resorting to force and brutality. We must keep our own houses clean, search our own hearts, remain true and loyal and above reproach, and then openly proclaim the truth at proper times and places.

In spite of the difficulties which have confronted industry and appreciably frightened investors, the manufacturers of steel are now producing, on the average, about 75% of their estimated capacity. This is more than double the total capacity twenty years ago. We are making a better quality of steel, are increasing diversifications of shapes for additional uses; and in many ways we are extending capacity and effecting economies, although selling prices have not kept pace with larger costs. We shall soon get back to a basis of business that will yield fair profits, if permitted to proceed without unreasonable interference.

As to general business conditions, in addition to what has already been said, great significance should be given to the publications concerning the enormous savings bank balances. These show conclusively a disposition to economize, whatever may be the reasons. Economy and saving are fundamental to thrift and prosperity.

In this greatest, richest, most admirable country there should be the continuance of prosperity without prolonged depressions. The iron and steel industry can be a decided influence toward progress and stabilization.

WIGGINTON E. CREED ON DISASTROUS EFFECTS OF PROPOSED CALIFORNIA WATER AND POWER ACT—AN EXTRAORDINARY PROPOSITION.

One of the papers presented at the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America at Del Monte, Cal., during the week of Oct. 9, which we were unable to make room for last week in our detailed reference to the meeting was that of Wigginton E. Creed, President of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company. Mr. Creed, who addressed the convention on the 11th inst., warned against the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of California, commonly known as the "Water and Power Act," which John A. Prescott referred to at length in his report as Chairman of the Association's Committee on Public Service Securities (published on page 1804 of our issue of a week ago), Mr. Prescott stating that the board of governors of the Association had adopted resolutions opposing the proposed amendment as threatening not only the destruction of the credit of existing privately owned hydro-electric power and light utilities in California, but even the destruction of the credit of the State itself. In introducing Mr. Creed, Howard F. Beebe, retiring President of the Association, alluded to the untoward effects of the proposed amendment, saying:

We have had before us, through the Public Utilities Committee of the Association, a very careful study of the so-called California Water and Power Act, which is to be voted on in the form of an amendment to the Constitution of this State in November. This matter is of such far-reaching importance in its possible effect upon the actions of other States and its influence on various bodies, and, indirectly, on securities which we have handled in the past, or are likely to handle in the future, that we should have all the light on the matter that we can get. It was, therefore, thought well to seek an exposition of this matter by someone who has had occasion to study it in its various phases, and, as indicated on the program, Mr. Creed, President of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, has agreed to come here at our invitation and address us in this matter. His interest as head of the biggest—I believe I am correct in saying the biggest and largest power company in California—his knowledge of the legal phases of this matter as a lawyer, and his intimate knowledge of its effect on securities, in view of his experience in the marketing of large amounts of bonds in various ways in the past—both stocks and bonds—would seem to qualify him, as very few men would be qualified, to speak on this subject to what we might term as an audience of experts. I am, therefore, going to ask Mr. Creed if he will not step forward and give us his view and such information as he can on this very important subject.

Mr. Creed described the Act as "the most immoral Act which has ever been proposed," and declared that "it represents in a remarkable degree that great danger in a democracy, oscillation in Government." His address follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: It is a very great pleasure to all of us Californians to have you gentlemen here in our State, and it has been a particular pleasure to me to note, in your reports, the emphasis that has been placed upon your obligation to participate and help in the educational work needed in this country on matters involving economic and financial policies. There never has been a time in the history of this country when the education of the people on the simple economic factors controlling the operation of business was more necessary, because our great economic issues in this country are, to-day, being determined by the people themselves and not by selected representatives. So it is particularly gratifying to me to know that you have stressed the obligation of intelligent men to help in the educational work.

To illustrate how important it is in this State, let me tell you that, at the November election, there will be 30 measures submitted to the vote of the people of this State, those measures all involving either great social or great economic issues, and, in addition to the 30 issues which will be submitted upon the State ballot, there will be in the large cities, such as San Francisco, a great many other issues of purely municipal concern.

So that the citizen in California who really discharges his obligation as a citizen has a vast amount of study and a vast amount of work to do in order that he may merely know clearly what the issue presented to him for decision is.

And amongst these issues in California is this so-called California Water and Power Act—a proposal to launch the State of California into the business of generating and distributing hydro-electric power. And this proposal is in no sense a mere legislative Act; it is a constitutional amendment. The measure is drawn with all the detail of a statute, and is self-executing; and because it is a constitutional amendment, if adopted, no matter how unsatisfactory, no matter how unwise, no matter how undesirable any single provision in that measure may prove to be, it can never be amended, altered or modified in any way, except at a general election by vote of the people of this State. And experience tells you, and it tells me, that amendment after amendment will be necessary to that statute or to any statute proposing so gigantic a launching of Government into business as is proposed by this statute.

And it may occur to you to ask why the statute was proposed. It was not proposed because of any public demand. There was no public clamor for it. It has come about because a little group of men, some politicians, and others, men determined to try a great economic and social experiment, took advantage of our initiative in this State, put up the money to secure the signatures, at 12 cents per signature, and threw it before the people for their decision.

And to date, the California Bankers Association, the California Development Association, the California Real Estate Association, Chamber of Commerce after Chamber of Commerce, the Civic League of Improvement Clubs, and one business, social and economic association after another have condemned this proposal in unmeasured terms, and it would take page after page to list the organizations and associations of intelligent people in this State who have in unmeasured terms condemned it. And on the other hand, the advocacy of the Act comes from such organizations as the Non-Partisan League of California, a branch of the Non-Partisan League of North Dakota, which brought ruin and disaster on that State. And so the identification of the proposal is clear and unmistakable as a proposal of that sort of thinking which sovietized Russia and brought disaster upon the State of North Dakota.

And what does this thing do? There are three outstanding things in the Act. First, it creates a bonded debt of $500,000,000, secured by the full faith and credit of the State of California. In other words, every dollar of taxable property in the State now existing or hereafter created, is pledged as security for the payment of the principal and interest of these bonds. And for what purpose? Are there definite disclosed and specific projects? No. That great bonded debt is proposed for an idea. It is not proposed for one definite, single, known project—merely for the idea that the State of California shall enter into the hydro-electric power business.

The second thing done by this proposed measure is to create a board of five men, to be appointed by the Governor, and to turn over to a quorum of three out of five the unlimited and unrestricted right to expend all this money, at any time they please, where they please, in or out of the State of California, and for such projects as they, in their discretion, may determine. The actions of this board are unlimited in any way, except by their discretion. They are not subject to review or control of any executive, legislative or judicial department of the State Government; but a political board is turned loose with $500,000,000 of State money to do whatever it pleases, whenever it pleases, and however it pleases.

The third thing outstanding in this proposed measure is the fact that it is an unlimited deficiency bill. Now, think of that for a minute—the insertion in a Constitution of a great State of an unlimited deficiency bill! It is expressly provided in this measure that if at any time the funds from the business are insufficient to pay principal or interest on the bonds outstanding, that an appropriation is thereby made, and, mind you, a present, continuing annual appropriation by constitutional provision, to meet the needs of the Water and Power Board to pay principal and interest. And on top of that appropriation is a direct mandate, laid upon the fiscal officers of the State of California, to reimburse the State Treasury for these appropriations by levying new and additional taxes. In other words, there is not only a continuing and annual appropriation for deficits, but a continuing, automatic levy of taxes to meet the deficits.

In other words, it is sought by this Act to place the Water and Power Board in a position in which it is said to them, "Here is $500,000,000. Go ahead and do the best you can. If you fail, if you incur deficits, if you make losses, if you make blunders, you have no explanations to make—the money is all ready for you to pay for your mistakes and blunders by a constitutional provision. You will have no one's permission to seek; you will have to talk to no one. The money is provided." And that, gentlemen, is the most astounding thing ever proposed in any American legislation. An unlimited deficiency bill in a Constitution of a great State.

Not only are these outstanding things present, but there are the most unsound policies provided for in this Act. If you have not read it, it will astound you, I believe, to know that there is express provision given in this Act to sell bonds to pay maintenance and operating expenses. Now, think of that, for the great State of California to put into its Constitution an express grant of authority to a political board to sell bonds to pay maintenance and operating expenses! If I were to say that men wanted a means to cover up losses and to confuse and deceive the people, I would say that they would put such a provision in as that provision.

Again, there is this provision that bonds may be sold and the bond proceeds taken to pay interest on old bonds outstanding. No more absurd illustration of debt pyramiding can be found in any American legislation than that. Why, it is worse, a hundred times worse, than the policy which has been pursued in road building in many States, of issuing bonds which have not matured when the roads wear out, and we are confronted with those two unsound financial policies.

On top of it, is a grant to this Board to fix rates. It has supreme rate fixing authority, coupled with the right to change rates at will. In other words, the people of this State are asked to surrender the control of the price of power service to a political board beyond the control of any department of the State Government or the courts, because by constitutional amendment this board is given authority without limit to fix rates and change rates at will.

And not only has that enormous power been given to this Board, but it is even authorized to go into any business, in addition to the power business, which may have a remote bearing even upon the power business. It is expressly granted power to acquire, produce or manufacture any of the materials or supplies used in the hydro-electric business, even to the extent of getting materials, raw or finished, used in the hydro-electric business, and if that means anything, it means that the Water and Power Board, backed by five hundred million dollars, might go into the cement business, they might go into the copper mining business, they might go into any one of the thousands of businesses which contribute supplies and materials to the hydro-electric industry.

Now, one would think, and one would naturally expect, that, when a proposal of this sort were made to the people of the State, there would be in the proposal some policy, some definite policy, as to what this autocratic Board was to do. But the Act is absolutely silent on the question of policy. No one knows what the policy of that Board will be. Not only that, but no one knows who will constitute the Board. And I said, in the very beginning, the people of this State have been asked to vote five hundred million dollars for the idea of Government in a particular business.

Analysis shows that there are four possible policies which that Board might adopt. First, the Board might conclude that, as the money they obtained was State money, they ought to render a power service to the entire State of California, and that they should, therefore, acquire all the existing uitilities and such publicly owned utilities as were willing, and endeavor to render a power service to the entire State. But if that policy were adopted, the five hundred million dollars is wholly inadequate, and the policy is impossible without a bond issue many times greater than five hundred million dollars, because the five hundred million dollars is not enough to buy out the existing companies in this State. And the needs for power in this State in the next ten years will require in excess of five hundred million dollars. So that that first possible policy must be cast aside, unless the people of this State are willing to vote many more bonds than are provided for in this five hundred million dollar bond issue.

The second possible policy would be for this Board to develop power supplies and compete with the existing utilities. If that policy is adopted, it means a great economic loss which the people of this State must sustain. It means a reversal of the public policy of this State, which has been regulated monopoly, and so far as the State is concerned, that policy could not possibly succeed, because the best and cheapest and most available power sites of the State are already developed, dedicated to the public use and in the service of the public. And the outcome of that policy would be not only an economic loss through duplication of facilities, but an actual failure of the State to make its projects pay.

Now, a third policy which might be adopted would be the policy of rendering a power service to those undeveloped sections of the State not now served. But the fact of the matter is that the power industry in California is serving the undeveloped territory as rapidly as economic conditions warrant, and if the State were to go into undeveloped territory to-day and confined itself to undeveloped territory, the business would not pay, and a great burden would be thrown upon the taxpayers of the State.

The fourth and final policy might be for the State to acquire some of the existing power companies and render a State power service to a portion of the State. But such a policy as that would be wholly inequitable and wholly unsound. It would mean that certain sections of the State would receive a power service without paying their share of the taxes, and that other sections of the State would receive their power service and pay the taxes which they are now paying, and which the other portion of the State had avoided, because the State revenues are acquired in this State by a gross revenue tax on the public utilities. And you can readily see the injustice and the inequity of giving a portion of the State a power service by State projects free of taxes and throwing upon the remainder of the State the burden and obligations of making up through power rates the taxes lost through business done by the State in other sections of the State.

No one can predict, no one can possibly know, what the policy of that Board will be, but the people are asked to vote blindly and unknowingly upon four possible policies, and none of them—none of those policies can be successfully carried out under this Act as drawn. Now, what will be the effect upon the State of California if you can contemplate the adoption of this Act by the people of this State?

The first effect will be to enormously increase the tax burden, and that increase in the tax burden of this State will come whether the power business under State operation succeeds or does not succeed. As soon as the $500,000,000 of bonds are voted those bonds are tax free, and capital that goes into them will escape all taxation. The proceeds of the bonds will be used by the Water and Power Board to buy property. As soon as the property is bought with the proceeds of the bond issue the property becomes tax free and escapes taxation. The expenses of Government in the State will go on just the same, and the remaining private property on the tax rolls will make up the difference, will make up the taxes lost through removing from the tax rolls that State owned property.

It is a serious thing in this State to contemplate the reduction in the taxable value of the property of this State. We have in the last ten years had a growth in our taxable wealth of about 80%, a growth in the cost of our Government of about 250% and a growth in our public debt of about 250%, and now it is proposed to do the unsound thing of separating these two points further. The thing we need in the State of California is to allow our taxable wealth to catch up with our taxing power, because the taxing power in this State has outrun the taxable wealth in this State. To-day in California the expenditure of $500,000,000 in the power business and private business would add to the taxable wealth of the State to such an extent that it would produce in State revenues an annual revenue of approximately $8,000,000, whereas the expenditure of $500,000,000 in tax free properties would lose in revenue to the State of California approximately $8,000,000 per annum in revenues. Further to increase the tax revenue in this State means to turn aside the capital that is flowing into this State in its industrial development, that is willingly flowing into the State.

The Act is the most immoral Act which has ever been proposed, and it represents to a remarkable degree that great danger in a democracy, oscillation in Government. We had in this State in 1912 an election, and in that election the people of this State determined by a well-nigh unanimous vote that the policy for the great State of California in respect to the public service industry was private ownership under State regulation, and we adopted that policy and under that policy the public service industry of the State has grown in a remarkable degree, and the records of our State Railroad Commissions show that one billion dollars has come into the State in the public service industry in the period of ten years.

And now, in the short space of ten years, after inviting in that capital, after encouraging that capital, after extending to it the promise of private ownership and State regulation, it is proposed to reverse that policy, and to vote five hundred million dollars, to go into competition with or to destroy the capital invited into the State. It must be obvious to you, as it is to me, that no great State, no great Commonwealth, can succeed and prosper and gather honor in the world, under any such policy of immorality as that.

Not only is it a reversal of the State policy, but it is directly in the teeth of the policy of the Federal Government, because, after a ten years' struggle, in June 1920, the Federal Water Power Act was adopted, and its two purposes were these: first, to protect the public interests, and, secondly, to encourage the development of hydro-electric power under the conditions existing. And no need exists to-day for any public ownership, because, in effect, the people have public ownership in this State and all over the country—85% of the potential power in this country is under the jurisdiction, control and direction of the Federal Water Power Commission. In this State we have a Public Utilities Commission with State-wide jurisdiction, and we have the power business of this State owned by the people. We have a distribution of securities in this State which makes of the power companies of this State great public enterprises, not only in theory but in fact. They belong to the people, they are owned by the people, and they are controlled by the people, through their stock ownership, and through these regulatory bodies of the State and Federal Government.

Now, a third effect upon this State of this Act will be to stifle the credit of the State of California. We are a growing State. We are young. The reservoirs of capital in this State are not big enough to finance the developments ahead of us for the next ten years.

But throw upon this State the increased tax burden which this Act inevitably produces; create in the minds of investors the country over the conviction that California is not fair to capital,, that it oscillates and vaccillates, that it invites capital in and in ten years competes with that capital, and the flow of money to California will cease. And, added to that, is the enormous increase in our public debt. We have published reports in this State showing the public debt of the State to be $324,000,000. It is an under-statement of the public debt, because, included in those figures, are not the reclamation and flood district bond issues of this State. So that our public debt to-day, in California, is in excess of $400,000,000. And put upon the State of California an additional mortgage of $500,000,000 and capital will look askance and be turned aside. And it is an awful thing to contemplate that, with California sold as it is—and I believe you will agree with me—sold as it is to the investing public of this country, to stop that steady flow of money into this State which is needed to build it up and meet the Western tendency of industry and of business.

Now, in conclusion, let me emphasize the fact that radical movements are not new. They are a part of the history of this country, and our forefathers often despaired of popular Government because of radical movements. But we have more means of communication, we have greater contacts, the country has grown smaller, so that radical movemets come to-day with a bang and noise such as they never had before. And we are at a half-way station in our educational processes, and it requires patience to wait for these processes to unfold, and standing out in the whole situation to me is the obligation of every intelligent man and woman to do his part, as an American citizen, to keep this country true to American ideals and American conceptions. The very foundation of America, the very foundation of our country, was that Government existed to afford the citizen opportunity, liberty and security, and that Government did not exist for business. And, if we do not hold true to those ideals, we shall lose America because we cannot have water and power Acts and have America, too. The things are inconsistent, and the thing out of which our honor, our success and our glory has grown has been the development of the individual in this country, the development of his initiative and his self-reliance, his independence, his vision, his energy. And, if we turn to paternalism, if we turn to Government for everything under the sun, if we continue to extend the functions of Government, we shall snuff out the very spirit and life of America, and sink to the dull mediocrity of the paternalistic Governments of the Old World.

COAL OPERATORS AGREE TO REDUCE PRICES.

C. E. Spens, Federal Fuel Distributer, announced on Oct. 27 that, following conferences recently held in Pittsburgh, bituminous operators had signified their willingness to make reductions. The announcement is the first to be made by Mr. Spens of an agreement between the Government and coal producers. The operators agreed not to exceed a maximum price at the mines of $4 50 per ton f.o.b. in the Pittsburgh District in Pennsylvania; $4 75 a ton in the Southern District of Ohio and $4 25 a ton in the No. 8 Ohio District, the announcement said. The higher price in the Pittsburgh District was said to be due to the fact that that territory produces gas coal, which is much costlier to market. The previous prices on such coal ranged as high as $7 a ton.

"These prices were voluntarily established by the operators," said the Federal Distributer, "in recognition of the present emergency, and to assist the Government in accomplishment of the purpose of the Act." Mr. Spens said that while representations of the operators of the district named did not include all of them, he felt sure the maximum price agreed on generally would be recognized.

MORE INDICTMENTS IN HERRIN MURDER INQUIRY.

The special Grand Jury which on Oct. 23 resumed its investigation of the Herrin mine killings after a month's recess, returned an indictment for murder, naming 48 persons, and announced that it had completed its work. This makes 434 persons the Grand Jury has indicted in connection with the rioting in which 23 men were killed. Those indicted on the 23d were charged with the death of Ignace Kubanis, the last victim of the rioting to expire, who died since the Grand Jury took a temporary adjournment 30 days ago. Only a few witnesses were heard, and they are said to have told of wounds inflicted on Kubanis, and which are said to have resulted in his death.

HEARING BEFORE INTER-STATE COMMERCE COMMISSION ON QUESTION OF COMPETITIVE BIDDING FOR RAILROAD SECURITY ISSUES.

A hearing on a proposal by the Inter-State Commerce Commission as to the advisability of requiring railroad security issues to be soid to the highest bidder in open competition bidding was held before the Commission in Washington on Oct. 26, when railroad and banking interests were accorded an opportunity to present their views in the matter. Robert S. Lovett of the Union Pacific and Chairman of the Special Committee appointed by the Association of Railway Executives, declared that it was not within the power of the Commission to require the adoption of such a system. According to the press dispatches from Washington, Mr. Lovett told the Commission that in general the roads and the financial public were satisfied with the marketing methods now in effect, but would have very serious objection to any enforcement of an auction plan for sale of securities. Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. expressed the opinion that such a system might prove ruinous to railroads, while Jackson E. Reynolds, President of the First National Bank of New York, said that the Commission in the matter "could do its worst and not hurt us (the bankers), but can hurt the railroads." Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., A. H. Harris, Vice-President of the New York Central, and Forney Johnston, counsel for the Association of Railroad Security Holders, were among the speakers called. From the Washington press accounts we quote the following:

Mr. Kahn, first spokesman for the bankers, said the relationship of great banking houses to the railroad corporations had brought into existence the practice of private underwriting of large loans. It had assisted the carriers, he contended, in getting loans successfully floated, in making up securities of a form and type to fit markets, and, above all, had maintained a stable broad investment market on which railroad securities could always be bought and sold.

"For many years to come railroads will annually need large amounts of new capital," Mr. Kahn declared, "and it will be a primary consideration with the Inter-State Commerce Commission to maintain the stable broad securities market from which this capital can be drawn."

"The banker is a necessary intermediary in the process of getting this new supply of capital," said M. Kahn. "The public buyers of securities prefer to have the investigation of the type of security, its value and its form, made by some one else than the company which has the security to sell. The assurance that is given of the propriety of the issue when bankers take over the entire amount and run the risk themselves is a controlling factor in making a market.

"If railroad securities were put up for sale to the highest bidder without any of the preparatory work that I have described, the banks naturally would pick and choose among issues offered and many railroads would run risks of finding themselves faced with a failure to get securities taken. That would be ruinous to the railroads."

Bankers undertaking to underwrite issues of securities, Mr. Kahn, insisted, render important service by fixing the provisions of mortgage deeds underlying bonds, fitting the type of securities to market requirements in the matter of maturity and other details, and timing the sale to the best advantage. It had been wrongly charged, he said, that only two houses in Wall Street, at the present time, are able to handle larger issues of railroad securities, Kuhn Loeb & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co., he said, were the two firms mentioned in that connection, but he asserted that numerous other concerns in Wall Street were now able to handle railroad issues of the largest size.

The experience of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in selling to its own stockholders at par $115,000,000 in new common stock was cited by Mr. Kahn as an example of the effect of direct sales.

"If that company had come to us," he continued, "we would have told them: 'Gentlemen, we'll pay you 115 for your 9% stock instead of par, as you are selling it, take a 2½% commission, and thank you for the business'."

Judge Lovett spoke of the "genius which bankers have for protecting the securities market" as an important necessity in the flotation of large security issues. These issues, he said, sometimes constituted an invitation for speculators to try "bear raids" that would make it impossible to maintain prices.

Judge Lovett told the Commission that in general the roads and the financial public were satisfied with the marketing method now in effect, but would have very serious objection to an enforcement of an auction plan for sale of securities.

"The present method of the Commission entails a delay of from four to six weeks before a decision is announced upon a company's application to make a security issue," continued Judge Lovett. "This delay has not been a serious matter in the last eighteen months because we have had a rising bond market. It might, however, become of more importance and introduce sources of embarrassment should the market condition be reversed and falling prices of securities be in evidence between the time when applications were filed and permissions to issue securities were given. We shall ask, therefore, that the Commission consider what expedition might be brought about to prevent difficulties in this matter.

"As to the question which the Commission has asked upon the advisability of requiring railroad security issues to be sold to the highest bidder in competition, we say it is not within the power of the Commission to require it. It is the Commission's duty, and it has the power, to see to it that bond issues or other securities are issued honestly and in a provident manner by the corporation and that the expenditure of the capital secured is in the public interest. It is further within the Commission's power to do as it now does and fix the form the securities shall take and the minimum price at which the securities shall be sold.

"When it has done that it has satisfied every public consideration. It is then for the directors of the company to determine how they shall proceed in making the actual sale.

"To go further than this is for the Commission to deprive the directors of a right and relieve them of a responsibility which they have for proper management of the company. Likewise it is to go beyond the power of the Commission, since it is not the Commission's duty to menace railroads."

Judge Lovett described several recent security issues and told of their market history as it had come under his observation. The method now followed, he explained, is for the railroad companies to make a contract with bankers for the issue and sale of securities, and to present the proposal to the Commission thereafter for its approval or rejection.

The Commissioners, during Judge Lovett's argument, asked questions as to whether competitive bidding would not enable the Commission to judge more fairly the condition of the money market. Judge Lovett responded that he did not consider such bids would be of value, since bankers "would understand that the Commission had no power actually to sell securities, and would not waste their time by bidding."

Mr. Morrow supplemented Mr. Kahn's argument as to the necessity of keeping the banking machinery up to the task of distributing railroad securities.

F. J. Lisman, another New York banker, said that if the Commission introduced any auction system of competitive bidding for railroad securities, it would do more harm by interfering with the free play of human judgment than anything else."

On the 21st inst. in referring to the hearing the New York "Times" said:

A marked change in the future methods of railway financing may result from a hearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission on Oct. 26 on the question of competitive bidding in the sale of railway securities. The Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives appointed a sub-committee yesterday to appear before the Commission in connection with the hearing and present the views of the railroads on the question, after which the Commission will hand down its ruling.

In the formal summons which the Commission sent the railroads it was stated that it had under consideration the following main questions:

"1. Whether it is within the province of the Commission to require competitive bidding in the sale of securities so authorized to be issued and whether competitive bidding should be required.

"2. If competitive bidding is required, to what class or classes of securities should it be applicable and what regulations or conditions should be prescribed relating to such sales?"

Railway officials explained yesterday that these provisions are in reality a part of the old Clayton Act, which have been included in the Transportation Act under Section 20a. In invoking its authority under this section the Commission seeks to be better advised as to whether it should, "by its order in granting or withholding authorization and approval, determine, limit or restrict the price at which, or the manner in which, securities are to be sold and the cost to the carriers of the marketing of securities issued under the provisions of Section 20a of the Inter-State Commerce Act."

Railroad bankers said yesterday that they were acquainted with the new move of the Commission, but declined to comment on the probable effects of required competitive bidding.

CONDUCTORS AND TRAINMEN SIGN NEW AGREEMENT WITH ONTARIO & WESTERN.

The Ontario & Western Railroad Co. and the Brotherhoods of Conductors and Trainmen have entered into a new agreement it became known on Oct. 24. It provides that the present rate of wages and conditions shall continue in full force until Sept. 30 1923, and thereafter until either party has given the other thirty days' notice requesting a change. All questions as to wages and working conditions now before the Railroad Labor Board are to be withdrawn.

CANADIAN BOARD OF CONCILIATION OPPOSES CUT IN RAIL CLERKS AND HANDLERS PAY.

A decision against a proposed reduction in the wages of clerks, freight handlers and checkers in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway was announced on Oct. 24 at Montreal by a board of conciliation. The decision settled the long standing wage dispute between the company and its men, most of whom are members of the International Brotherhood of Steamship and Railway Clerks. About 8,000 workers are affected.

MOTION TO DISMISS INJUNCTION AGAINST SHOPMEN TO BE HEARD NOV. 6.

The motion to dissolve the interlocutory injunction against the six shop crafts growing out of the railroad strike was continued for hearing until Nov. 6 by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Oct. 20 at the request of the Government. Attorney-General Daugherty, though in the city, was not in court. Later he made public a statement indicating that the motion to dismiss would be opposed by Assistant Solicitor-General Blackburn Esterline.

NEW YORK CENTRAL RR. MODIFIES FREIGHT EMBARGO.

A comprehensive modification of previous embargoes was issued on Oct. 26 by the New York Central RR. to apply to practically all commodities moving over the lines of the road. The embargo, known technically as Embargo 2277, is described as a "superseding" embargo, and in substance it places all commodities under the "permit" system of transportation. According to the permit system, traffic destined to various points is handled if it fits into the various permits and qualifications which the road has laid down. The embargo provides, for example, that carload freight on or via the Long Island shall not be accepted except under certain permits. This applies also to East and West freight, carload export freight and freight for the St. Lawrence and Adirondack territories. Under the terms of the new embargo the usual exceptions are made in the case of food for human consumption, food for live stock, live stock, perishable goods, fuel and other items which are being handled under practically the same conditions as in normal periods when no embargo exists. The New York Central was one of the first of the larger Eastern systems to establish embargoes shortly after the termination of the shopmen's strike.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL DEFENDS THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE AND THE INJUNCTION AGAINST RAILROAD SHOPMEN.

Reviewing the activities and accomplishments of the Department of Justice during the Harding Administration, Attorney-General Daugherty in a speech at Canton, Ohio, on Oct. 21 defended his policy against criticisms which had been voiced from various sources. In the speech, which was made to the voters of his home State, and the only one he will make in the present political campaign, Mr. Daugherty dealt at length with the conduct of the Department of which he is the head. He also praised the Harding Administration, but most of his speech was directed against those who have criticized the way in which the Attorney-General's office has handled the cases which have come before it, particularly the injunction proceedings against the striking railway shopmen. Defending his course in the emergency created by the railway strike, Mr. Daugherty said the injunction proceedings the Government used against the strikers were the least drastic means at hand for rescuing the country from the grip of what amounted to civil war. Some of the blame for the serious results of the strike, he said, should be laid to the radicalism of the strike leaders and some to the stubborn attitude of some of the railway executives. Any man holding the office of Attorney-General who would not have acted as he did, he said, should be impeached. Mr. Daugherty's Canton speech was printed in the New York "Herald" in large part as follows:

Those charged with responsibility in the conduct of government, even though temporarily in office, should periodically be called upon and be willing to give an account of their stewardship. I have come to my home State for the purpose of making the only speech that may be called a campaign speech. It may be almost entirely free from partisanship. No politics can be practiced in the discharge of the duties of the Attorney-General of the United States without interfering with the proper business of the Government and without discriminating between citizens and classes. This should never be and is not done in the present Administration.

The people of the whole country are entitled to know accurately and honestly just what is being done in the interest of orderly government and better society. It is impossible, of course, for public officials to disclose all the intricate moves required in the proper management of a department. As in the case of the Department of Justice, for instance, it would be disastrous to make public indiscriminately what is being done in specific instances and cases, or what is in contemplation.

I do desire to discuss in a limited way, limited only because of limited time, several of the most important matters which are now engaging the attention of the Department of Justice and of your Government. All of us understand that a great Government, such as ours, can have no malice, it must be just and it must be honest to all alike.

Closing War Accounts.

I want you to keep in mind that the war ended on November 11 1918, and from that day until the 4th of March, 1921, responsibility of conducting the vitally important legal business of the Government rested upon the previous Administration. The war being over, those in positions of responsibility should immediately have begun the work of settling the affairs of the Government in order that we might forget the horrors of the conflict, ascertain who had been helpful and who had been hurtful, square the accounts and close the books. Nothing of this character was undertaken. No suits were brought to correct mistakes and enforce adjustments.

Until this Administration was installed no attempt was made to dig out the acts of dishonesty that on every hand were charged, not by those in politics but by well meaning persons, regardless of politics, who were compelled to foot the bills. Stagnation prevailed, and multitudinous claims and unadjusted accounts of every caliber and description were piled high in one conglomerate mass when the present Administration came in. Barbed wire entanglements of modern warfare were simple as compared with the artfully contrived barricades thrown up in concrete form about the countless cases of national and international importance. But no word of criticism is heard of the inactivity of the previous Administration in this respect, because such conduct suited those who have been the most critical of the Department of Justice since much has been started and much has been done.

A great majority of the individuals and a great majority of the industrial concerns which transacted business with the Government during the war period were honest in their representations and activities. Others, unfortunately, were not, and it was the duty of the Department of Justice, as quickly as it could be done, as quietly and in as dignified a manner as it could be accomplished, without sensationalism, to ascertain what transactions were honest and what dishonest, what persons grafted, if any, and who were to be placed on the golden roll of honor and beyond suspicion.

The Department of Justice, therefore, immediately began and is continuing to exercise in the interest of the Government and its people all of its great powers to see that justice may be kept alive. The war fraud cases, under investigation by a corps of experts representing the best legal minds obtainable within the limitations, and even far beyond the limitations because of their personal sacrifice, fixed in the appropriation for the payment of compensation, will be cleared up as rapidly as human energy can accomplish the stupendous task made so difficult through the complicated and inexcusable confusion attending all such wartime transactions.

Some disloyal and incompetent employees had to be ferreted out and kicked out. The records of the war transactions had to be built up from scraps of paper and the faulty memory of witnesses in many cases scattered over the world. Those who were under suspicion and with guilty conscience had been at work for months and years to prevent the day of reckoning.

Foul Means Used.

Every known method of interference and intrigue had been adopted. There was no limit to their resources. Money improperly and criminally secured in war transactions was more in amount for defense than the Government had for investigation and prosecution by civil and criminal proceedings. The scoundrels struck from behind. They hid behind willing or innnocent tools, who were induced to make attacks on faithful agents and officers of the Government for the promised consideration of notoriety and spectacular and sensational temporary prominence. They had no regard for the Government, they had no regard for conscience, they had no regard for the character of any man in position, high or low, who, in a painstaking way, was trying to get at the truth to protect the good name of the innocent on the one hand and, on the other, trying to get dependable testimony to prove the fraud, if any, and to find who were actually the criminals. No name was sacred, and, if fact, no life was safe if it stood in the way of their escape.

Smoke Screen Raised.

The opposition of the crooks was conducted behind a smoke screen of calumny created for their own escape, and the real reason for the attack was in every instance withheld. The very men against whom both civil and criminal proceedings have been brought were using the ignorant and the notoriety seeker to make charges in the open that nothing was being done by the Department of Justice. The real reason for their activity was the fact that things were being done. What did any man's reputation, his character, his life even, amount to if it stood in the way of their corrupt defense? But we have gone through it all, and still we are not afraid, and we will go on.

A Congressional investigation was demanded. Why? Because they could then, as they thought, disorgainze us and compel us to produce the evidence prematurely and thus dissipate the Government's efforts to bring and try the cases in a dignified, orderly way before the courts of justice of the country. They have tried for months to force an investigation and trial of these cases before Congressional committees that have no judicial authority, and in the daily press. This we have not done. This we will never do, no matter what the temptation and no matter what the provocation, unless, under the direction of Congress, as expressed by duly authorized legislation, we are compelled to scatter to the four winds the facts and evidence of the Governement which would enable the guilty to escape civil and criminal liability.

Fraud Cases Pushed.

United States Attorneys throughout the country now have before them approximately one hundred and fifty cases dealing with fraud in war time transactions, and they are progressing with court action as rapidly as conditions permit. In Washington indictments already have been returned against thirteen men who have been charged with complicity in attempts defraud the Government at a time when all of our resources were so urgently needed for the prosecution of a war in which our sons by the millions were braving death in all its horror on the battlefields of Europe. Other indictments will follow in due course. It takes work and time, and several cases require more than a year and a half for preparation and investigation.

I should like for the American people to know how painstakingly careful this investigation is being conducted. Attorneys who neither know, nor have now, or ever have had, any connection with those involved in the cases under investigation, are endeavoring with all their skill to reach just, impartial and scrupulously honest decisions in each individual case. When these separate cases are completed they are referred to what might be termed an advisory board, or court, which is composed of three of the most eminent legal scholars in America, who, after they have passed judgment, present their findings to the Attorney-General.

Administration Accomplishments.

I have no disposition at this time to make a political speech, but, after glancing casually over the platform adopted by the Democratic Party at its convention just adjourned in the State of New York and noting therein its reference to the injunction proceedings at Chicago—a platform, I may add, which was dictated by the leader of Tammany Hall, who must be considered and conceded to be the head of the Democratic Party in the United States—I would say it would be a sorry day for this great republic when an issue was to be made in political campaigns by those who would advocate murder, disloyalty and destruction of government as a political expedient. No political party can hold its lines or its followers in this country by championing anarchy as against organized and lawful government.

I had been unable to bring myself to believe that any political party would undertake to make an issue of the injunction. This is an issue where a man or a party must stand either with those who favor the righteousness of free government, law, order and preservation of human rights, the privilege of man to work or quit work, or with those who would set aside constitutional government and in its place establish a government dedicated to the destruction of all organized society, lawlessness and riot, arson and murder.

I am not, nor have I ever been, an opponent of honestly conceived labor organizations and trade unionism. If I were a skilled worker, in mill, factory or mine, I would join a union, but I would never affiliate with a union that sets its laws and its constitution above the laws and Constitution of my country. In a great industrial nation such as ours, labor organizations are necessary, but they must be the right kind of unions under the right kind of leadership.

Labor must be constructive and not destructive. There must be loyalty to craft, to employer, to the nation, and to humanity. The radical and unscrupulous leader and those elements which make up the agitator type must go. Their activity is not confined to time of strife, however, for we have them always with us. They menace the whole system of organized labor, and for its own protection labor must take steps to eliminate them.

The preacher of violence in national life and the preacher of violence in industrial strife is doomed.

The futile law of force must give way to law and reason.

The word of labor in America must be as good as its bond. For without industrial peace we cannot attain the highest prosperity for the nation, the greatest benefits for workers and society.

If those who come to this country and become naturalized citizens, that they may enjoy the benefits the country affords to all alike, are not satisfied with our laws and our form of government, then they should as rapidly as possible denaturalize themselves and return to the country under whose laws they did not care to live, but whose theories they would attempt to exploit upon us.

I am not altogether sure but that we have reached the point where, for the safety of the country, every foreigner coming to our shores should be met at the dock and impressed with the fact that he must, before naturalization, in some effective manner prove his worthiness to citizenship in this great Republic. As it is, too many of those entering our gates are met at the port by the professional parasite and advised that the only prerequisite to American citizenship is membership in this or that organization—organizations which are dedicated to the destruction of the very freedom which the immigrant hopes to enjoy.

Injunction Proceedings.

One of the most important steps taken by the Department of Justice in the interest of the American people was that in connection with the injunction proceedings at Chicago that re-established justice and individual rights in America. The railroads of the country are compelled by law to furnish inter-State commerce for the country. It is the duty of the Government to see that this obligation is performed according to the letter of the law. The roads were attempting to keep inter-State commerce alive, but conditions had reached a point where this was made impossible through lack of skilled workers, deterioration of equipment and other conditions brought about by the strike of 400,000 members of the federated shop crafts unions.

The Government acted. It was a duty, not to labor, not to the railroads but to the American people and to the Government itself. More than 17,000 affidavits from every section of the United States concerning anarchy bordering on civil war furnished convincing proof that the people needed the protection of their Government as never before.

Bear in mind, that I did not undertake this proceeding as a partisan or as the advocate of the railroads. As between the railroads and those with whom they were in conflict, considering the matters in dispute, I was neutral, and I took no action on behalf of the Government until it became apparent to the entire country that inter-State commerce and the carrying of the mails were being interfered with to the extent that our people and our industries were being materially affected. In fact, more than 1,000 mail trains had been withdrawn from service.

Economy Observed.

Was the Government interested? The Department of Justice alone spent probably a million and a half dollars in seven weeks as economically as it could be used to keep down strife and preserve order in its neutral capacity between the contesting parties.

In the last half of August it was evident to all that the situation was growing worse, and it was solely in the interest of the entire people, the maintenance of commerce and the carrying of the mails, furnishing food and fuel, that the Government performed its duty when it brought action to restrain those who were interfering with transportation and threatening the life of the Government.

The transportation crisis through which we passed came dangerously near imposing a veto upon the economic readjustment of our natural life. When the heads of the federated shopcrafts unions called their strike the men who walked out were in revolt against a 12% reduction in wages authorized by the Railroad Labor Board, the quasi-judicial body charged by Federal law with the duty of fixing railway wages. This move was a complete renunciation of the Esch-Cummins law, which affords them special protection as to wage status by providing that all disputes concerning basic wage conditions and working rules should be referred to a Federal tribunal representing the roads, the workers and the public.

Strike Leaders Mutiny.

Thus with one bold challenge to constitutional government, the strike leaders, to all apparent purposes, renounced the protection of governmental authority when they mutinied against a decision which they declared was construed to be unfavorable to their cause.

In practically every other industry in this country and throughout the world war wage scales had been abandoned, but union leaders demanded continuation of wage inflation at the war peak.

The Government and those chosen to safeguard its integrity and constitutional rights believe that labor deserves and should enjoy an equitable wage scale.

There is no quarrel between labor and Government upon this issue.

More than forty million wage earners in this country depend upon organized government for livelihood and protection of their interest ever constitutes a source of deep concern to Government. In the industries alone some thirty millions toil in mill, factory, on public carriers and in the mines. Of this number organized labor claims a representation of five or six million.

When certain railworkers were instructed by their leaders to lay down their tools, 400,000 of the 1,600,000 men employed by the carriers walked out in defiance of the law, prepared to inflict stupendous losses upon the public. A certain conspicuous union leader immediately suggested a sympathetic or progressive strike was being considered, which would involve other crafts which had remained loyal to the carriers, themselves and to their country. Attemps were made by strike leaders at this juncture to justify tneir stand by subtle intimation to workers that further wage reductions were contemplated by the Railroad Labor Board. But fundamentally the revolt was against the 12% wage reduction.

Neither punic cunning nor the vociferous canting of those who had determined to crush any conciliatory spirit that might exist among the army of wage earners thus arbitrarily ordered into idleness could disguise the facts behind this revolt against Government.

Not a year back this same Governmental Board whose ruling now was branded as an "infamous injustice to American workmen," had, in its decision No. 2, directed a substantial increase in the wages of rail employees. The carriers submitted, though they complained that labor costs had increased 115% in comparison with a 54% increase in revenues made possible through higher rates granted by the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

From a period of distressing inflation and soaring prices the country had passed into a period of severe liquidation, and the Labor Board, in effect, through its ruling No. 1,036 of June 5, this year, had decreed that in view of reduced wages in other industries railway wages must of necessity be made to approximate them, if readjustment of our economic and industrial life was to be accomplished.

Suffering and Loss.

But the die was cast and labor's legions marched in solid phalanx from beneath the protecting bulwarks of Constitutional law at the command of their leaders.

Industrial paralysis, human suffering and irretrievable losses confronted the nation as train after train was laid off. Cessation of traffic was destroying the arteries of trade and commerce. Government, industry, society and labor itself realized that the helpless millions jammed into the great centres of population were dependent upon transportation for food—for life itself. But the upheaval went on. Sporadically tales came out of the West, the Southwest and the South and from our northern border States of derailments, maiming, sabotage and even murder.

Just a year back more than 5,000,000 men and women were walking the streets of our cities, jobless, hungry and despondent, but now they were at work, through the sound operation of constructive government. The coal strike, which had spread over five months, was nearing final settlement, and 600,000 miners and their families were about to return to work, contented. But anew, there blazed upon the horizon of a prosperous Government and a happy people a crises which stunned the nation, a crisis which threatened not only economic and industrial depression, not only a recurrence of idleness among our wage earners, but the country's transportation system upon which all elements alike must depend for orderly government and those things which must hold together the human fabric.

The Threat.

Out of Philadelphia came the mandate of one of the heads of the shop crafts in that district, and which appeared to reflect the attitude of other leaders, that, "We will tie up every train, both freight and passenger, every ferry boat and every railway shop, and not a wheel will turn anywhere."

Government was being mocked and piloried in scorn. Appeals were being made to Washington by countless thousands of American citizens. Scarsely a community in any part of this broad, free land was being spared the iron heel of terrorism. Depredation of property was in full swing, and human life was anything but sacred. All the great transcontinental systems were jeopardized, and the Inter-State Commerce Commission, after infinitely painstaking surveys had found that the rolling stock and equipment of the afflicted roads were so seriously impaired that 50% of the locomotives in use were unfit for service, and many were out of commission entirely.

The nation was in the grip of civil war. We had reached a point where loyal intelligent Americans wondered if organized government actually existed in this free land of ours—or a land presumed to be free and consecrated to observance of law. Criminals of the vilest types, apostles of the ultra-red variety and crafty power lusting missionaries of discord mingled in the attack upon life, property law and government.

Severe Action Needed.

Then when all conciliatory efforts on the part of trusted Government emissaries had failed, when court proceedings in practically every district in the United States had been instituted by the railroads to safeguard their property and prevent willful and malicious interference with the orderly operation of their lines when men were willing and anxious to work if permitted to do so, when the heads of the strikers had called upon the men who had deserted their tools and shops at their dictation to do "their damndest and then some;" when human suffering and hardships were beginning to leave their impress upon the innnocent and helpless public, when transportation was impaired 50% or more, and the country was stung to a fury, the time had arrived when national security no longer made it posible for Government to stay its hand. A decisive and firm step was essential to the preservation of American institutions, its people and the basic principles of government itself.

Moral suasion up to this point had fallen upon deaf ears. Finally both railroad executives and shop craft heads appealed to President Harding to use his good offices in an effort to adjudicate the differences between the two elements. In the most patient and painstaking way the President's great genius as a human harmonizer was put forth, but by the latter part of August his efforts had failed to receive the consideration to which they so rightfully were entitled. The President appealed to the striking workers, without denying their right to strike, though I may say on my own behalf, considering the fact they had submitted their dispute to the Railroad Labor Board, they had no moral right to at least repudiate that arm of Government by refusing to abide by its decision. Appeal to the railroad executives received no remedial response. Reconciliation appeared to be impossible between the conflicting hosts, though the Government and its highest officers had expended every ounce of energy and brain force to persuade opposing leaders to compose their differences.

Demagogues at Work.

Railroad tracks and terminal shops of the country were in control of men who were undertaking to prevent other workers performing duties necessary to the free flow of inter-State commerce. Demagogic and violently bitter disciples of force and anarchy worked in open sympathy with those who would paralyze transportation and stultify government. For no industrial dispute of mammoth scale in this country can survive without contribution of this criminal class which revels in vandalism and thrives off the bounty of strike managers, who, perhaps, oftentimes innocently are inveigled into accepting their support.

Could Government be expected to remain suplinely indifferent when its authority was challenged and threatened by chaos as deadly as armed strife itself. I say no, and every thinking man with love for his country and his fellow men, will say no as vehemently as I do. When Government falters, when its chosen leaders neither know nor respect their duty, when law and order no longer remain as the guiding principles of all peoples and all institutions, then civilization is doomed to atavastic revolt. Thus fell Rome and Athens and thus passed the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, but America was neither to succumb nor surrender to those elements which sought to destroy the traditions and ideals upon which her forefathers had builded a nation of justice to all mankind.

What was the Government to do? The only logical answer and the only effective measure possible was an appeal to the courts for a restraining order, restraining those responsible for this condition of affairs from further interference with inter-State commerce.

The injunction saves a man from becoming a criminal. It protects the rights, not only of Government itself, but of all the people, pending judicial adjudication. It was the mildest form of procedure that could have been adopted in this case.

If the injunction were not resorted to, what was the next thing the Government could do after all efforts at voluntary or peaceful persuasion had failed? Step aside and let violence continue, let the mob grow in fury and in numbers, let the leaders with torch and bomb and dagger continue destruction of life and property? Could the Government permit itself to be weakened to a point where, after commission of hideous crimes by unrestrained hordes of violators of all we hold sacred, it would find itself impotent to adopt the policy it did?

Prevention of Crime.

Is it not better to prevent a man from committing a crime than to encourage him to become a criminal? Is it not better to restrain him by the gentle hand of the law in a kindly but impressive way than to let him go along to his own destruction? Is it not better to have men again at work as they now are than confined to jails, as many of them would be had this injunction not been issued?

Another step the Government could have taken was to have called out Federal troops. That would have been a sorry day, but it would have been done had necessity compelled. Appeal after appeal had come to Washington for troops, but they were withheld. Who of you will say that it is not better to lay the hand of Government, with its persuasion, its restraint, its admonition and protection, on the shoulder of the citizen than to call out troops to shoot him down, and, as is always the case, mingle his blood with the blood of innocent bystanders and bruise the hearts of his loved ones?

Menace to Existence.

In such a situation if none of the steps referred to were taken then Government would case to exist in name as well as in fact; the people would become the prey of human vultures, anarchy would permeate the land and mob rule would become the law.

We hear quite a little about the rights of the minority. A minority in this country has greater rights and is protected to a greater extent than in any other country in the world. But a minority has no right to deny to the majority the right it claims for itself. The minority has no right to promote civil war, impoverish a nation, deprive a people of those things to which they are entitled under the law or to ignore and seek to withhold from the majority rights as equal as those enjoyed by the minority.

I hear no great cry on the part of the nation's "mentors" as to the rights of the majority. It would seem from observation that there is a broad impression on the part of the doctrinaire and their ill advised and sycophantic followers that the majority is subservient to the will of the minority and the minority is subservient to the will of the radical, and that the radical may be led by any person who comes to our shores and undertakes to lead the American people into a pathway of fire and flame and chaos, intimidation, coercion and disloyalty.

Hue and Cry Raised.

When the Chicago injunction was granted there was a hue and cry on the part of the radical element that the freedom of speech was being interfered with. It has been my privilege to read and hear, since the granting of the restraining order, great volumes of criticism, unfounded of course, which in itself would seem to indicate sufficient proof that the freedom of speech neither has been interfered with nor abridged in any respect.

It must be remembered that the freedom of speech guaranteed under the Constituion is not that freedom of speech which incites mob violence, destruction of life and property and attacks on government. That is not what our forefathers intended by vouchsafing freedom of speech and liberty of press.

May I call the attention of the law respecting citizens of this country to the fact that no frenzied voice was lifted by these same pedagogic pawns of profligacy when law abiding American citizens by the hundreds, all over the land, were dragged into the mire of the woods, stripped of their clothing and there left; when almost as many, according to prearranged schedule well carried out it seems by somebody, were tarred and feathered, when others were thrown into streams and their clothing carried off by the vandals.

Where were those frenzied voices now crying out for freedom of speech and liberty of press when the loyal engineer and his crew, in the dead of night, faithful to their service and country, pulled twelve Pullman cars across the continent only to be suddenly switched into eternity without a moment's notice by the vandal and murderer who pulled the spikes and threw the switches that murder might contribute to the cause of anarchy, and anarchy might destroy Government.

Where were these frenzied voices when tain after train, loaded with men, women and children, were ruthlessly and criminally abandoned by those in charge as a part of a conspiracy, and left in the hot sands of the Santa Fe. with food and water scarce, comforts few, fright surrounding, even birth taking place—left to the tender mercies of Providence, and the Government of the United States, if those responsible for the conspiracy were not successful in destroying it.

Where were those frenzied voices when $100,000,000 worth of produce raised in the State of California alone was left to rot because the railroads were not permitted to transport it to the consumer because of a quarrel between a small percentage of the citizenship of the United States?

Where were these frenzied voices when that horrible thing occurred at Herron, Ill., that will forever be a blot upon that community?

To Protect the Home.

We had reached the time when, if necessary, people of this country, in order to protect their homes, perpetuate their liberty and be guaranteed the right to work and earn and save, were about to be called upon to write in human blood a new Declaration of Independence and a new declaration of human rights and liberty. Men have the right to strike; surely this proceeding does not destroy that. Men have the right to work; surely this proceeding insures that. There is no involuntary servitude in this country, but slavery consists as much in depriving a man of the right to work as in compelling him to work against his will.

The fact of the matter is, that under the circumstances and evidence existing and proved in the case at Chicago, had the Attorney-General not complied with the provisions of the law by taking the action he did, he could have been impeached, and any Attorney-General failing or refusing under similar circumstances to do precisely what was done should be impeached.

There will be no backward step in the policy of the Government as at present organized. I know that, unless legislation prevents, if established policies prevail, if the courts are not destroyed, if duty is performed by those in positions of authority, all will be treated fairly in this country, labor and capital alike, as far as transportation is concerned, I think we have reached the day when it may truthfully be said that we have seen in the United States the last extensive strike involving the tying up of transportation.

A Hint to Labor.

In conclusion I want to say a word here to labor. As truthful a statement as any I have made in this address I now make. I am your sincere friend and will not deceive you, but you make a mistake when you set up rules in conflict with the rules, laws and Constitution of our common country, which rules and laws and whose Constitution are applicable to every other man in every other employment, and must, for your own security and safety, be applicable to you.

Your principal trouble lies and your greatest danger is in the radicalism and character of some of your most prominent leaders. Your security lies in the Constitution of the United States and in the laws of the United States, and in the good opinion, by you deserved, of all the American people. There is no quarrel between labor and the Government.

A few irreconcilable railroad executives, who insist upon calling themthem selves "hardboiled," might also, with considerable benefit to the country, be dispensed with. The fault is not all on one side, but at a time when strife that was almost civil war raged in this country the Government, having the right to do so, insisted upon the railroads performing their necessary functions to serve the people. Those in conflict with the railroads interfered with the performace of this service, and it was to protect the rights of all the people, strikers and employers, and every man, woman and child in the country, that the Government in its rightful capacity took a hand. I accept my full responsibility for the step taken, and though it temporarily shocked because of the sudden halt of civil war, I would, under the same circumstances, do the same thing again or feel incapable to speak for an important branch of the Government and unworthy of the confidence and trust imposed in me by the President of the United States.

Let us all love and support the Government that is alike to all of us. The picture is not all dark. The country is secure, the Government is dependable, the rights of the people are safe. The best proof of that fact was when a dignified court exercising jurisdiction with courage and fairness issued a restraining order ro prevent the destruction of Government, the taking of life and the sacrifice of property. All turned to the warning, and peace and quiet, and thought and judgment again reigned, and when I saw that, and when you saw that, well might we say in the words of another great Ohio President, "God reigns and the Government at Washington still lives."

In an address before the annual convention of the Audit Bureau of Ciculation at Chicago on Oct. 20 the Attorney-General urged the press of the country to uphold the law, emphasizing the power which the press exercises on public opinion. "No organization or combination of organizations, no matter what their pretended purpose, can be above the law," he said. "We must be one people, one union—and that the American Union," he asserted. Emphasizing the responsibility of the press to the country, the Attorney-General declared that, next to the home, school and church, the newspaper had the greatest power for good or evil.

"Whenever a newspaper ridicules a law, plays up a policy of contempt for law and its enforcement and in its news and editiroal columns fosters lawbreaking, that newspaper is doing more to destroy American institutions than a Federal Judge can do to maintain them," he asserted. Declaring the public press on the whole to be fair and honest, the Attorney-General continued:

No man in public life who is possessed of vision and realizes his responsibility to Government would favor regulation of the public press by law, but it is obvious that the power of the press must not be used to foster disrespect for our Government and disobedience to its laws.

Mr. Daugherty said that a national press founded on sincerity, justice and faith was an immutable force for good, and added: "I believe the great metropolitan journals, powerful magazines and press associations owe a duty to Government no whit less than the humblest immigrant admitted to our shores."

SAMUEL GOMPERS'S COMMENT ON ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S SPEECH AT CANTON.

Some of the remarks made by Attorney-General Daugherty in his speech at Canton, O., drew from Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, on Oct. 22 a statement, declaring that the Attorney-General has "misrepresented and falsified the facts." The labor leader also charged the Attorney-General with "particular bias" and "heated temper." Mr. Gompers criticized the procedure of the Attorney-General with respect to the war grafters and profiteers. He averred that when the Attorney-General discussed the railroad injunction he "rose to the heights of the ridiculous." Mr. Gompers said in part:

Mr. Daugherty assures us that he did not undertake the injunction proceedings "as a partisan or as the advocate of the railroads." "I was neutral," he proclaims, until it became apparent "that our people and our industries were being materially affected."

In view of the unprincipled misrepresentation contained in the balance of the address, I am inclined to believe that the Attorney General protest entirely too much. The Department of Justice, he says, spent "probably $1,500,000 in seven weeks." Mr. Daugherty says that "more than 27,000 affidavits . . . concerning anarchy bordering on civil war" were secured. He casts no reflection on the quality of these affidavits, leaving his hearers to believe that they represented the solemn truth.

As a matter of fact these affidavits were literally fished out of the sewers among strike breakers and paid agents of the most desperate character, most of whom were perfectly willing sign anything which they were paid to sign and many of whom have now disappeared entirely from the locality in which they had temporary residence when the affidavits were secured.

I have no way of knowing how much of the $1,500,000 was expended in securing this enormous number of affidavits, but I am sure that if these affidavits served any purpose whatever it was the railroads' interests that secured the benefit and not the people of the United States.

Mr. Daugherty's characterization of the strike and the strikers is so filled with hatred, exaggeration and calumny that every thinking person will understand it for what it is. The official who presides over the Department of Justice is supposed to be interested in the even-handed dispensation of justice, and he is supposed to be interested only in an impartial examination of truth.

Partisan bias, untruth, exaggerated statements and a display of heated temper could scarcely be so unfitting on the part of any other member of the Cabinet. Mr. Daugherty says the railroad strike was a "bold challenge to constitutional government;" that the strikes "renounced the protection of governmental authority;" that they "mutinied against a decision" of the Railroad Labor Board; that they "were instructed by their leaders to lay down their tools;" that they "walked out in defiance of the law;" that the strike was a "revolt against government," and that "scarcely a community in any part of this broad, free land was being spared the iron heel of terrorism." He says further that "the nation was in the grip of civil war" and that the country was "stung to a fury."

Having been a close observer of the situation at all times and having been intimately informed as to the facts, I say with all the emphasis of which I am capable that each of the above statements made by Mr. Daugherty at Canton is an absolute falsehood.

Having misrepresented and falsified the facts, naturally the Attorney-General finds it necessary to draw conclusions which are not in accord with the facts. First, the strike of the railroad shop workers was not ordered by the leaders, but was ordered by the rank and file of the membership, in every case through the medium of the referendum vote. The strike was neither a "renunciation" of the Transporation Act, a "revolt against government," a "challenge to constitutional government," nor a "defiance of the aw."

WALKER D. HINES ON OPPORTUNITIES FOR INGENUITY IN SOLVING RAILROAD PROBLEMS.

Walker D. Hines, Director-General of U. S. Railroads during the war, speaking before the Transportation Conference of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts in Boston on Oct. 17, with reference to the railroad situation in the United States took as his text "the proposition that the new difficulties in the railroad business which have been the outgrowth of the war should be regarded as new opportunities for ingenuity and initiative and not as excuses for a standstill policy." His remarks on the subject, as given in the Boston "Evening Transcript" were in part as follows:

Doubtless the thoughts of nearly all my hearers are directed principally to the present difficulties in railroad service. This, however, is a temporary emergency condition, and I believe there will be general acceptance of the view that the railroad managements are earnestly and capably grappling with this emergency.

What I wish to discuss are the more permanent features of the present situation, and the features which will continue to determine the success or failure of the railroads after the present transportation crisis shall have been met.

Labor Problem on Railroads.

First I wish to take up that greatest of all railroad problems—the labor problem. We all know that since the war nearly every business question wears a different aspect from what it did before the war. I shall not take up your time discussing how far present railroad facts are the natural outgrowth of war conditions and how far they are the special results of the policies of Federal cotrol of railroads, nor shall I discuss how far the policies of the United States Railroad Administration were right or wrong, nor how far specific provisions as to working conditions differ from those which existed before the war. I have very decided convictions on those matters, and I am prepared at all times to state the facts and the reasons for the faith that is in me, but I am convinced that practical business men care very little about discussions which are turned toward the past. They wish to look at things as they exist and to consider their bearing on the future.

As to the labor situation, we know that railroad wages have been standardized to a large extent throughout the country and that working conditions are elaborately specified by agreement with employees. We know that disputes with respect to wages and working conditions must be passed upon by the Labor Board, and that while the decisions of the Labor Board are not enforced by penalties, yet at least in broad questions of wages and working conditions the railroads are expected, as a practical matter, to abide by those decisions.

Undoubtedly all this tends to affect the degree and character of initiative which the railroad management has. We should remember, however, that for a long time the railroads have been adapting themselves to a modification of their independent initiative in dealing with these matters.

Meeting Brotherhood Strategy.

Take, for example, the train and engine men, who represent perhaps one-fifth of the railroad employees. Long prior to the war this group of employees was thoroughly organized. Every railroad company, with exceedingly few exceptions, had written agreements of working conditions with these organizations. It had come to the point where it was not practicable for a single railroad company to determine for itself what wages it would pay to these employees or what working conditions it would establish. The matters had to be settled by agreement with the employee's organization. The national character of these organizations was tending more and more toward great regional or national movements, seeking to force uniformity both in wages and working conditions. These movements culminated in the movement for the eight-hour day, and in regard to this the railroad companies had to take a united position, because they were opposing the united action of the train and engine brotherhoods. The result of this was the Adamson Act, which by law established the eight-hour day in train and engine service.

It is clear, therefore, that initiative in management had been largely modified with respect to train and engine men before the war, and yet it does not follow that initiative had been annihilated. It merely was a case of finding new ways to make progress despite new difficulties.

With respect to other classes of employees, the interference with railroad initiative before the war was not nearly so great as in the case of the train and engine men, and yet in many instances it was equally as great. For example, on many railroads the shop men had been thoroughly organized and had elaborate written agreements.

Management To-day Needs Ingenuity.

Of course, there is a much greater degree of uniformity of wages and working conditions and a much more complete organization of labor than before the war. But while these conditions tend to limit railroad initiative in the direction of independent action on the art of the any one management, they necessarily call for even greater initiative and ingenuity in order to improve existing conditions and adjust railroad practice and labor conditions to each other.

For one thing, it does not follow that conditions as they exist must always exist. It is highly probable that many modifications as to the uniformity of wages or to working conditions can be brought about by negotiations with the employees, and we hear of frequent instances of this sort. Recently various railroad companies have negotiated various agreements with their shop employees on diversified bases, and no doubt these experiments will prove enlightening both to the management and to the employees, and will tend to convince both sides that modifications in various directions are in the common interest.

Likewise, much can and will be accomplished by fair and persistent representations to the Labor Board, and it is reasonable to hope that further consideration of these problems by the Labor Board, combined with the experience of the railroads and their employees, will result in a gradual better adaptation of wage policies and conditions to the needs of the railroad situation so as better to promote the interests of both the management and the employees.

New Opportunity for Railroads.

But another and highly important field in which the opportunity for railroad initiative is almost unlimited is the field of reviewing and improving methods of railroad operation so as to adapt them more successfully to the new labor conditions. I believe this process is going on all the time on the railroads. They are naturally not content to continue to use the same operating methods which they used when labor conditions were entirely different. The railroads are continually planning their work in new ways so as to get the greatest output per man hour of labor and so as to avoid unnecessary overtime.

My observation of these matters has led me to believe that in the past the railroad managements have concentrated their attention very largely upon efficiency in the movement of trains over the road and have not given a corresponding amount of attention to the efficiency of labor in handling cars in the terminals, or to the efficiency of labor in maintaining the road, or to the efficiency of labor in maintaining the cars and locomotives. Yet only about 35% of operating expenses relates to road movement of trains and about 65% of operating expenses relates to operation in terminals and to maintenance of road and equipment. It is in the terminal work and in the maintenance work that the increased labor cost proves most burdensome. I cannot avoid the belief that great opportunities still exist for important improvements in the use of terminal labor and of maintenance labor. With such a great field of initiative so urgently in need of attention, no one should waste time in claiming that railroad managements have ceased to have initiative. Indeed, it is true even as to road movement of trains that the new labor conditions give rise to new demands and new opportunities for improvements, and my belief is that in the last year or two the railroads have made important progress in finding better ways to use train and engine labor under existing conditions.

Human Relations Underestimated.

But there remains an even greater field for effort and initiative which in my opinion has never been worked by railroad managements like it ought to have been and like it must be in the future, and that is the field of the relationship between the management and the employees. At the present time I think many railroad managements are giving serious attention to this great problem. Before the war I do not believe they gave it anything like adequate attention. Many great private industries had made far more progress than the railroads had made in developing an appreciation of the essential community of interest between management and employee. In cases where the employees were organized, the railroads were likely to deal with the organization leaders at arms length when controversy arose, and with no effort to exchange views and explanations as a current matter in advance of trouble. In cases where the employees were not organized, the managements were largely inclined to handle matters in an autocratic way, not consulting the employees in any way. In neither class of cases was there any development of a continuing and friendly consultation and exchange of views and explanations so as to give the parties an understanding of each other's troubles and reasonable expectations. The employees rarely had any explanation of the problems of the management and rarely had convincing evidence that the management was adequately alive to their problems.

In my opinion the human element is paramount in this great work. I believe a sincere spirit of a desire to promote the welfare of the employees and a settled policy to obtain through regular conferences the views of the employees as to what their welfare requires and to explain to the employees the necessities of the management, will have a progressively beneficial effect upon the efficiency of railroad labor. But the movement should find its source in a genuine desire to consider the needs of the employee, to try to understand and appeal to his point of view, and to promote his welfare as an integral part of the transportation organization.

Here again we have such opportunity and such need for new methods of dealing with a great problem that we ought not to becloud the situation by talking about the helplessness of railroad management through the lack of initiative.

New Economies Suggested.

When we turn to other phases of railroad operation, we are again impressed with the thought that the book of railroad initiative and ingenuity is by no means closed. There is an endless series of problems as to how the railroads can most successfully perform their manifold activities. Alert railroad officials have been constantly improving their practices. I believe they are only started on the road and that they can travel far before they get anywhere near the end of the opportunities for further improvement.

In the past the railroads developed extraordinary efficiency in increasing the train load and thereby decreasing the cost per ton mile. It is probably true that this particular form of economy cannot be carried much further. But this is all the more reason for concentrating more than has been done in the past upon the inquiry into other possible economies. As an illustration, I understand many railroads are finding that they can make up solid freight trains and run them over long distances instead of breaking them up at each successive terminal, and frequently they can send their freight locomotives on continuous runs over two or more divisions, and that these changes result in various decided economies, whereas in the past the locomotives had been changed at each terminal and the freight trains had been broken up and remade to a considerable extent at each terminal. Of course, in many instances no such changes in runs are practicable, but the fact that frequently they are found to be practicable suggests how much may be realized by a thorough re-examination of practices in all departments of railroad activity —not merely the road haul, but probably to a far greater extent the practices in road maintenance and in shop maintenance and the practices in terminal operation.

All these opportunities for improving operating practices ought to arouse and are arousing more than ever before the ingenuity of railroad officials, and we ought not to lull them into non-action by singing the lullaby of lost initiative.

I have tried to suggest that in the domain pertaining to operating expenses there are still vast fields for the exercise of railroad initiative. This is true as to improving the wages and working conditions which are under the supervision of the Labor Board. It is true for improving the practices which will obviate unnecessary labor cost and get a greater unit of output per unit of labor. It is true as to improving the spirit and understanding of employees, and in addition it is true practically in every phase of railroad operations.

New Ways of Developing Traffic.

I wish to suggest in addition that even with respect to the gross earnings of operating revenues, it is by no means clear that initiative is at an end. Of course, practically without exception the rates are fixed by public authority, but there still remains to the railroad managements the question of studying the traffic and seeing how it can be further developed, and even in a community as old and as long settled as New England it seems to me highly probable that a renewed study of conditions as they exist to-day may bring to light new ways of developing valuable traffic. I gather from the report of this association that renewed interest in this subject has been manifested by the New England roads, and I mention the subject simply to complete the expression of my thought that in practically every branch of railroad activity, and despite the great disadvantages which have come about and which have modified or restrained railroad initiative in some directions, there exist on every hand opportunities for studying anew the railroad problem in the new phases which it now presents and for exercising fresh ingenuity and initiative which will give promise of continuing to make the private operation of railroads a success.

But there is still another sort of initiative with respect to the railroad business, and that is the initiative which must come from the public. I believe the public appreciates more than ever it has before that railroads are essential to the public welfare, and that they must be fairly supported in order to live. The Transportation Act expressed this idea of initiative on the part of the public because it placed upon the Interstate Commerce Commission for the first time in the history of railroad regulation the affirmative duty of seeing that railroad rates as a whole were sufficiently high to yield a fair return upon the aggregate investment in railroad property, at least under conditions of normal business. But this is not the only sort of initiative which the public ought to take and which you gentlemen as leaders of public opinion ought to stimulate.

Commutation Rates Too Low?

Let me mention just two illustrations of what I have in mind: One is the question of passenger commutation traffic. I know it has been seriously argued that some forms of commutation traffic in New England are performed for rates which yield less than their cost. I do not know whether this is true or not. But since the argument has been so seriously urged, I mention it as an example. If it is a fact that the New England railroads are actually losing money in performing this commutation service, it is a situation which the public owes it to itself to take the initiative to correct, because it is the public which will suffer from the error. It is just as much the public's interest to see that traffic is not carried at unremunerative rates as it is to see that it is not carried at rates which are excessive. If the public wishes to build up the New England railroads it can well begin by putting an end to local conditions which make them lose money.

Do Not Subsidize Motor Trucks.

Again, I understand that motor trucks are making very serious inroads on railroad traffic. I would be the last one to urge any effort to thwart a modern development like the motor truck. To the extent that it demonstrates its practicability and efficiency, the public is entitled to have the benefit of it and ought to give it all proper encouragement.

But if, for example, it is a fact, and I do not know whether it is or not, that the motor trucks do not pay for the damage they do the public highways, the public certainly ought to take the initiative to correct this situation by imposing proper taxes on the motor trucks. The public ought not to subsidize them, with the result of helping to break down the steam railroad system, which is essential to the public welfare. The steam railroad not only furnishes its own highway but pays heavy taxes upon it, and it is only fair that a new and competing means of transportation should at least make good the damage which it does to the highway it uses. If after it does this it sustains itself and gives the public a useful service, so much the better, and if as a result the steam railroad must lose some traffic, it must adjust itself to that condition and, if necessary, revise its method of operation. But certainly the public ought not to give a subsidy to a new form of transportation when the result will be unduly to injure an old form of transportation which is absolutely essential to the public welfare.

In conclusion let me emphasize that the railroad situation calls for renewed initiative on the part of railroad management and on the part of the public. Your association has set an admirable example in your study of these matters in putting forward your views as to what the public interest requires. I believe the railroads have shown pronounced effectiveness in meeting the new difficulties which confront them. We are living in a new world since the war. Let us have a world of new and confident purpose to find new ways to make our railroads succeed.

ITEMS ABOUT BANKS, TRUST COMPANIES, ETC.

A New York Stock Exchange membership was reported posted for transfer this week, the consideration being stated as $92,000. The last previous transaction was for $93,000.

A New York Curb Market membership was sold this week for $11,000, a new high record price. The last previous sale was for $10,000.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Corn Exchange Bank of this city will be held on Nov. 23 to vote on the proposal to increase the capital from $8,250,000 to $9,075,000. The new stock is to be offered to stockholders at par in proportion to their present holdings.

The directors of the Irving National Bank and of the Columbia Trust Co. of this city, have voted to recommend to their respective shareholders a plan for consolidation of the business of the two institutions. This merger, while important because of its size, is particularly noteworthy as a logical development in the combination of the specialized services of both institutions which for the convenience of their customers will cover the metropolitan district through established offices in important locations in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx. Under the plan, the consolidated institution will operate under a State charter and be known as the Irving-Columbia Bank & Trust Co., with a capital of $17,500,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $10,500,000. Of the capital, $12,500,000—or, share for share of its present capital stock—will be contributed by the Irving and $5,000,000—share for share of its present capital—by the Columbia; the surplus and undivided profits being contributed on the same pro rata basis by each institution. The Irving National Bank was originally organized as a State bank in 1851 and for over 70 years has specialized in commercial banking. During the past 20 years it has steadily expanded under its present management until its deposits in the last published statement showed $240,000,000. Its offices in Manhattan are located at

Broadway and Eighth St.
Fifth Ave. and 32d St.
92 West Broadway.

and in Brooklyn at

350 Fulton St.
Flatbush and Linden Aves.
New Utrecht Ave. and 53d St.

The Columbia Trust Co., organized in 1884, has—in addition to furnishing full banking facilities—devoted its efforts largely to upbuilding its trust department, which at present, is one of the most important in the United States. Its deposits likewise have grown to large figures, amounting in its last statement to over $90,000,000. It maintains offices in Manhattan at

60 Broadway
Park Avenue and 48th St.
125th St. and 7th Ave.

148th St. and 3d Ave.

The plans under consideration provide for the maintenance of 14 offices and the retention of the present official and clerical staffs of both institutions. Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Board, and Harry E. Ward, President of the Irving National Bank, will hold the same offices in the new company. Willard V. King, President of the Columbia Trust Co., who contemplated retiring on account of his health, will be Chairman of the Advisory Board in charge of the office at 60 Broadway, the present headquarters of the Columbia Trust Co.

The New York State Superintendent of Banking has approved a certificate of incorporation for the Maritime Trust Company of America, which will have its headquarters in this city. A charter will be issued to the company upon completion of its organization. It is planned to create a bank with which shipping, export, coal, oil, manufacturing and foreign trade interests will be especially identified. Those interested in the formation of the company are H. H. Raymond, President of the American Steamship Owners' Association and Clyde Steamship Lines; Fank C. Munson, President of the Munson Lines; W. H. La Boyteaux, President of Johnson & Higgins; R. Stanley Dollar of San Francisco, Vice-President of the Robert Dollar Co. and President of the Admiral Oriental Lines; Clifford D. Mallory, President of C. D. Mallory & Co., Inc.; Homer L. The Manufacturers' Trust Co. is running a series of "Boost Your City" articles in its "Quarterly Bulletin." The first number of this series appears in the October issue of the bank's publication, and pertains to the Police Department of New York City. A complete outline is given of the departmental organization and a synopsis of the work of each branch. Similar articles are to appear in future numbers of the magazine regarding other departments of our city government, such as Fire, Health, Charities and Finance. Copies of this magazine will be sent on request to interested business executives and institutions.

According to press dispatches from Cincinnati on Oct. 10, appearing in the New York daily papers, the bank on Sept. 28 was robbed of cash and bonds amounting to $222,004 by five men who drove up to the bank in an automobile, herded the employees and a few depositors who were in the bank at the time into a rear room and rifled the safe. Two branches of the Bank of Italy—one in San Francisco and the other in Chico—have been established, pursuant to authorization from the Federal Reserve Board and the State Superintendent of Banks. The addition of these branches gives the Bank of Italy 59 banking offices in 42 cities. In San Francisco the bank's new quarters are in the Excelsior Park district, in which community many of the customers of its present Mission Branch reside. The Chico branch resulted from the conversion of the Butte County National Bank, previously affiliated with the Bank of Italy. The bank was one of the oldest and strongest institutions in that section of California, with resources of more than $2,500,000. No change is contemplated in its personnel. The Excelsior branch in San Francisco will be operated under the supervision of W. A. Newsom, manager of the Mission office, while the officers of the Chico branch will be W. J. Bank clearings continue to reflect very satisfactory increases over a year ago. Preliminary figures compiled by us, based upon telegraphic advices from the chief cities of the country, indicate that for the week ending Saturday Oct 28, aggregate bank clearings for all the cities in the United States from which it is possible to obtain weekly returns will show an increase of 25.8% over the corresponding week last year. The total stands at $8,025,722,950, against $6,378,301,185 for the same week in 1921. This is the thirty-first successive week in which our weekly aggregates have shown an improvement as contrasted with last year. Our comparative summary for the week is as follows:

a No longer reports clearings. * Estimated.

Complete and exact details for the week covered by the foregoing will appear in our issue of next week. We cannot furnish them to-day, inasmuch as the week ends on Saturday and the Saturday figures will not be available until noon to-day, while we go to press late Friday night. Accordingly in the above the last day of the week has in all cases had to be estimated.

In the elaborate detailed statement, however, which we present further below, we are able to give final and complete results for the week previous—the week ending Oct. 21. For that week the increase is no less than 31.3%, the 1922 aggregate of the clearings being $9,240,309,790 and the 1921 aggregate $7,038,014,196. Outside of this city the increase is only 23.5%, the bank exchanges at New York having recorded a gain of 37.8%. We group the cities now according to the Federal Reserve districts in which they are located, and as was the case two weeks before the noteworthy feature of the return is that every one of these Federal Reserve districts records an increase as compared with the corresponding week last year. In the Boston Reserve District the increase is 37.5%, in the New York Reserve District (including this city) 37.6% and in the Philadelphia Reserve District 33.0%. The Cleveland Reserve District shows a gain of 8.3%, the Richmond Reserve District of 29.3% and the Atlanta Reserve District of 16.3%. In the Chicago Reserve District the improvement is 24.7%, in the St. Louis Reserve District 26.0% and in the Minneapolis District 12.6%. For the Kansas City Reserve District the total runs 8.1% ahead of last year. The Dallas Reserve District and the San Francisco Reserve District also both record increases, the former revealing a gain of 29.5% and the latter of 24.0%.

In the following we furnish a summary by Federal Reserve districts:

THE ENGLISH GOLD AND SILVER MARKETS.

We reprint the following from the weekly circular of Samuel Montagu & Co. of London, written under date of Oct. 12 1922:

GOLD.

The Bank of England gold reserve against its note issue is £125,598,875, as compared with £125,598,395 last week.

A fair amount of gold came on offer and was divided between the United States of America and India.

The Transvaal gold output for September 1922 amounted to 747,089 fine ounces, as compared with 752,490 fine ounces for August 1922 and 691,096 fine ounces for September 1921.

The Reichsbank has fixed the purchase price of the 20-mark gold piece at 6,500 paper marks.

Information as to the present stocks of gold held by the Soviet Government, and the channels through which its original stock has been dissipated is necessarily conjectural. The following comments in the "Times" upon a statement of the Soviet Commissar Preobrazhensky throw some light upon the matter:

"The Soviet Commissar Preobrazhensky states in the 'Pravda' that the total of Russia's gold reserve at the present time does not exceed two hundred million gold rubles (£20,000,000). Reliable authorities here calculate that the amount is considerably less; they estimate that on Sept. 1 it was somewhere near thirty-five million gold rubles (£$3,500,000). In November 1917 the Soviet Government received from the Provisional Government about 1,200 million gold rubles (£120,000,000). This great sum has been used for foreign agitation, the purchase of war materials abroad, and various other purposes. The German newspaper 'Rigasche Rundschau' states that a great proportion has gone to pay for war materials bought in Germany. The Lettish newspaper 'Jaunakas Sinas' claims to have proofs that over five million gold rubles (£500,000) have been used for agitation purposes in Latvia alone."

SILVER.

This week the market shook off the inertia which had been a feature for many weeks, and silver came on offer from China, India, and the Continent. It is evident that the only real absorption in present conditions can come from Far Eastern countries. Hence when buying is poor from those quarters, sellers must hold off, hoping for an improvement in such demand, or prices must fall. The inactivity of late has been owing largely to supplies not being pressed. Now, however, that the Eastern countries have turned into sellers, the sole purchasers are bears, who, naturally, will be slow to cover whilst prices seem upon the slide.

The production of Canada during the first six months of the year has been about 8,500,000 ounces. If this rate be continued, the output will show the substantial increase of 4,000,000 ounces for the year. We hear that the production of Mexico during the same period was 37,000,000 ounces, and a fresh annual record is therefore likely. The United States output is also increasing, so that a world's total of at least 175,000,000 ounces may be expected. If the amount obtained from demonetization and from partial demonetization be added, the combined supplies available are not likely to be far short of the 226,192,923 ounces which formed the record world production in 1911. This year some 60,000,000 ounces will be bought under the provisions of the Pittman Act, but, considering that European purchases for coinage have now ceased, and that the world's luxury trade—into which silver largely enters—is in bad fettle, it is astonishing that prices should have kept up as well as they have done of late.

STOCK OF MONEY IN THE COUNTRY.—Further below we give the customary monthly statement issued by the U. S. Treasury Department, designed to show the general stock of money in the country, as well as the holdings by the Treasury and the amount in circulation on the dates given. The method of computing the figures has been changed with the idea of eliminating duplications, especially in arriving at the amounts of money in circulation. Under the new form the per capita circulation Oct. 1 1922 is found to be $41 04, whereas by the old method the amount would have been $50 38. The change dates from July 1 1922 and the notice issued in connection with it by the Treasury Department was given by us in publishing the statement for that date in our issue of July 29 1922, page 515. The money and circulation statement in its new form follows:

CIRCULATION STATEMENT—OCT. 1 1922.*

* The form of circulation statement was revised as of July 1 1922, so as to exclude from money in circulation all forms of money held by the Federal Reserve banks and Federal Reserve agents, whether as reserve against Federal Reserve notes or otherwise. This change results in showing a per capita circulation on Oct. 1 1922 of $41.04, whereas under the form of statement heretofore used it would have been $50 38. For the sake of comparability the figures for Oct. 1 1921 and April 1 1917 have been computed on this statement in the same manner as those for July 1 1922.

a Does not include gold bullion or foreign coin outside of vaults of the Treasury, Federal Reserve banks and Federal Reserve agents.

b These amounts are not included in the total since the money held in trust against gold and silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890 is included under gold coin and bullion and standard silver dollars, respectively.

c The amount of money held in trust against gold and silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890 should be deducted from this total before combining it with total money outside of the Treasury to arrive at the stock of money in the United States.

d This total includes $19,427,220 of notes in process of redemption, $180,926,624 of gold deposited for redemption of Federal Reserve notes, $2,703,744 of lawful money deposited for redemption of Federal Reserve bank notes, $14,471,657 deposited for redemption of national bank notes, $27,830 deposited for retirement of additional circulation (Act of May 30 1908) and $6,828,273 deposited as a reserve against postal savings deposits.

Note.—Gold certificates are secured dollar for dollar by gold held in the Treasury for their redemption; silver certificates are secured dollar for dollar by standard silver dollars held in the Treasury for their redemption; United States notes are secured by a gold reserve of $152,979,025 63 held in the Treasury. This reserve fund may also be used for redemption of Treasury notes of 1890, which are also secured dollar for dollar by standard silver dollars, held in the Treasury. Federal Reserve notes are obligations of the United States and a first lien on all the assets of the issuing Federal Reserve bank. Federal Reserve notes are secured by the deposit with Federal Reserve agents of a like amount of gold or of gold and such discounted or purchased paper as is eligible under the terms of the Federal Reserve Act. Federal Reserve banks must maintain a gold reserve of at least 40%, including the gold redemption fund which must be deposited with the United States Treasurer, against Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation. Federal Reserve bank notes and national bank notes are secured by U. S. Government obligations, and a 5% fund for their redemption is required to be maintained with the Treasurer of the U. S. in gold or lawful money.

WEEKLY RETURN OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

The following is the return issued by the Federal Reserve Board Friday afternoon, Oct. 27, and showing the condition of the twelve Reserve Banks at the close of business on Wednesday. In the first table we present the results for the system as a whole in comparison with the figures for the seven preceding weeks and with those of the corresponding week last year. The second table shows the resources and liabilities separately for each of the twelve banks. The Federal Reserve Agents' Accounts (third table following) gives details regarding transactions in Federal Reserve notes between the Comptroller and Reserve Agents and between the latter and Federal Reserve banks. The Reserve Board's comment upon the return for the latest week appears on page 1883 being the first item in our department of "Current Events and Discussions."

Bankers' Gazette

Wall Street, Friday Night, October 27 1922.

Railroad and Miscellaneous Stocks.—The downward movement of stock quotations, which had been in progress during the previous ten days or two weeks, received a temporary setback on Wednesday when announcement was made that the Pennsylvania Railroad Directors had restored the dividend rate on its shares to the old long standing figure of 6%. Penn. shares at once advanced 1¾ points, or at the rate of 3½%, and the entire railway list was sympathetically affected. This recovery was of short duration, however, and on Thursday the market again became weak with the result that the entire list of stocks traded in, with the exception of Penn., added an average of from 2 to 5 points to its previous decline. Among the exceptional features are Mex. Pet., down 11 points, Standard Oil of N. J., which lost 9 and Bald. Loc., Crucible and Standard Oil of Cal., which are 6 to 6½ points lower than last week; while the railway list shows an average loss of about 2 points.

There is nothing in the industrial or financial situation to account for the depression mentioned. It is the inevitable result, doubtless, of the feverish and, in some cases, wholly unwarranted advance in prices which has been in progress for some time past. which, will soon have run its course.

The report of car loadings for the third week in Oct. shows that the number has been exceeded but few times in the history of railroading in this country and that the number loaded with general merchandise surpasses all records. The foreign exchanges have been depressed all week, but spot cotton has sold in this market well above 24 cents, as against 16½ earlier in the year, and the cotton growing States are reported to be experiencing remarkable prosperity.

The following are sales made at the Stock Exchange this week of shares not represented in our detailed list on the pages which follow:

FINANCIAL REPORTS.

Baltimore & Ohio RR.

(Results for September and 9 Months ended Sept. 30 1922.)

An official statement in connection with the September 1922 earnings, states in brief:

The statement of net railway operating income for September and the 9 months reflects the severe losses incident to the shopmen's strike, coupled with the abnormal situation in the bituminous coal fields, where activities were largely suspended from April to September inclusive. The coal situation had become so critical that upon the resumption of operations by the mines, it was essential that everything possible be undertaken to expedite the movement of coal and this was done during August and September, necessitating the diversion of a large tonnage of high-class traffic with consequent lessened net.

The operations for the first 6 months of the year were most encouraging, as notwithstanding the large decrease in coal traffic, because of the coal strike, the gross earnings were about $98,700,000 and with an operating ratio of 78.74, there was realized a net railway operating income of $14,580,295, an increase over same period of 1921 of $6,949,830. In the ensuing three months the strike of the shopmen, and the resulting conditions prevailing, bore with particular severity on the Baltimore & Ohio resulting in an actual deficit in net railway operating income of $2,089,074. notwithstanding the company maintained operations to a basis of about two-thirds of normal. Therefore, for the 9 months the net railway operating income is $12,491,221, or little more than one-half the amount there was every reason to anticipate would be realized based on the operations of the first 6 months and after making allowance for the lessened revenue incident to the 10% reduction in all freight rates effective July 1.

There has been charged out in September substantially all abnormal expenses and charges growing out of the strike, so that the net earnings of the remaining months of the year should be in normal relation to the business handled.

Based on the operations for the first half of the month, it is estimated the gross earnings for October will approximate $19,000,000, and that the net railway operating income will be in excess of $3,000,000, against a deficit in September of $2,660,000.

The company's shop forces are now on an effective basis, and the condition of equipment being rapidly improved. Business is offering in large volume and there is indication that it will so continue throughout the year.

RESULTS FOR SEPTEMBER AND NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPT. 30.

Third Avenue Railway Co., New York.

(Annual Report—Year Ended June 30 1922.)

President S. W. Huff, New York, Oct. 18, wrote in subst.:

Entire System Included.—The company and its subsidiaries, which comprise the Third Avenue System, are treated in this report as a system and the statements are consolidated statements, with inter-company charges and credits eliminated.

Results.—The surplus for the year was in round figures $207,000, against a deficit the previous year of $876,000, or an increase in income of over $1,084,000. This betterment by more than $1,000,000 is due not only to an increase in receipts of nearly $700,000, but also to a decrease in operating expenses of approximately $400,000.

Interest on Income Bonds.—At the end of the first six months of the year, although an appreciable surplus had been earned for the first time since July 1918 (no interest having been paid upon the 5% Adjustment bonds since 1917), directors felt that the situation was not sufficiently stabilized to justify them in authorizing the payment of more than 1¼% upon these bonds (V. 114, p. 948). But at the end of the second 6 months' period earnings and the general situation seemed such as to justify the payment of 3¾%, making the total payment 5% for the 12 months' period (V. 115, p. 1101). There remains 21¼% interest still unpaid upon the Adjustment bonds. This accumulated interest must first be paid before there can be a dividend upon the stock.

Extent of System.—There is incorporated in the report a map showing the extent of the system, including as it does some of the most important surface lines in Manhattan, all of the surface lines in the Bronx and all of the surface lines in the southern portion of Westchester County, extending through Hastings on the Hudson, to Scarsdale in the centre and to Mamaroneck on the Sound.

Lines Abandoned.—The map also shows the lines which have been abandoned or discontinued during the last 5 years. Some lines, by reason of the shifting of business and population and others by reason of their being paralleled by subway or elevated lines, had become unprofitable and a serious drain upon the resources of the system. Where these lines were also found to be unnecessary for the convenience of the public, they were abandoned from time to time, with the permission of the P. S. Commission and the Transit Commission. In cases where the entire operation was unprofitable and none of the lines seemed worth saving, operation was discontinued as a whole. The abandoned lines are:

(1) The East Belt line of the Belt Line Ry. Corp., operated in Manhattan along the waterfront of the East River from the Battery northward, a distance of 3¾ miles, was abandoned June 3 1919. On March 24 1921 the West Belt line of the same company, extending from the Battery along the Hudson River front a distance of 4½ miles, was abandoned. These two lines, operated by storage battery cars, had for years been operated at a loss. Trucking on these streets made the speed with which the cars could be operated so slow as to make them unattractive for passenger service.

(2) The Jerome Avenue line of the Union Ry. had an elevated extension of a subway line constructed over practically its entire length. This line, formerly one of the heaviest, never contributed anything to the net earnings because passengers were being carried a greater distance than was profitable with a 5-cent fare. The time had come when for the third time the track and paving must be reconstructed on two-thirds of the line, at a cost of about $400,000. Coupled with this was the fact that the through travel had been diverted to the elevated line and there was very little local travel. The result was that the line was being operated at a loss of about $100,000 per year. The line, approximately 4¾ miles long, was abandoned on Sept. 1 1921.

(3) The Sedgwick Avenue line of the Union Ry., about 1¾ miles in length, operated along Sedgwick Ave. between the Harlem River and the high ground immediately back of the river. There was very little travel on the line and no prospect of its development in the future. On Sept. 8 1921 the southern portion of the line was abandoned and a shuttle car began operation on the north end.

(4) In the town of Hastings there was a single track line of something over ¾ of a mile in length, operating to Uniontown. This line had been in operation for about 15 years and the track had been worn out, and yet it had never paid one-half of the cost of operation. The Commission authorized the abandonment of all the trackage in the town of Hastings on April 24 1919 and this track was removed. At a later date a new franchise was granted for the remaining trackage in Hastings and this is now in operation.

(5) The Union Ry. operated a line along Hunt's Point Ave. to Hunt's Point on the Sound, about ¾ of a mile southeast of Randall Ave. This line was abandoned July 16 1921. The Union Ry. also operated a line along Liggett and Randall Aves. This line was also abandoned July 16 1921.

(6) The Mid-Crosstown Ry., Inc., operating a line across Manhattan westward on 29th St. and eastward on 28th St. had been showing a deficit of about $50,000 a year practically ever since its purchase, which deficit had been carried by the Third Avenue Ry. It was operated with storage battery cars, and there being no prospect of its being able to meet operating expenses, operation was discontinued on Aug. 8 1919.

(7) The Pelham Park & City Island Ry., Inc., operating from City Island through Pelham Bay Park to Pelham Bridge Road, 2 9-10 miles, operated by storage battery cars, showed an annual deficit of from $10,000 to $15,000. Operation was discontinued Aug. 8 1919.

(8) The Third Avenue Bridge Co. was organized to operate across the Queensboro Bridge, with track arrangements on Manhattan Island. Operation became unprofitable and was discontinued on Aug. 31 1919.

(9) Other short pieces of track have been abandoned or discontinued. Some of this trackage has not been operated for years and it has not formed any substantial part of the system.

Results from Abandonments.—It is estimated that by the abandonment and discontinuance of lines there has been saved an operating loss of at least $250,000. In addition there has been saved a cost of reconstruction of from $750,000 to $1,000,000, yet no great hardship has been imposed upon the traveling public. In fact, in several cases there was not even a protest against the abandonment. In the case of one of the longest and most prominent lines, the leading civic association of the borough advocated its abandonment, taking the broad ground that it was unfair for the traveling public offering sufficient travel to justify lines in their own vicinity to be penalized either in reduced service or in increased fare to enable the company to furnish service at a great loss to a few people who might be accommodated without inconvenience by using other lines.

In the abandonment and discontinuance of these lines, due consideration has been given to the nature of the franchises. Some of the franchises were liberal in their terms but the prospect of building up profitable travel so hopeless as to make them of little or no value, while other franchises in themselves were so exacting as not to justify making any sacrifice to retain them.

Physical Condition.—The physical condition of the property has been steadily improving. The cars are being maintained at a high state of efficiency and the reconstruction of worn-out track has progressed to such an extent that it is felt that the deferred maintenance has been fully taken care of and that the property is in an up-to-date operating condition. The engineers of the Transit Commission reported the property as being well maintained.

Unification Plan.—There has not been any change in the general unification plan suggested by the Transit Commission (V. 113, p. 1431, 1434, 1541, 1646).

Valuation of Transit Commission.—The valuation of the property recommended to the Transit Commission by the Valuation Bureau of the Commission was in the opinion of the directors absurdly low. The Transit Commission, however, has not yet promulgated its final valuation and this valuation when made will not be a valuation for rate purposes, but a valuation upon which you will be invited to sell your property. Any transfer of the property must be the result of a voluntary sale by the company.

For the above reasons, it did not seem to the directors that they would be justified in incurring the expense of having made an elaborate valuation of the property before the Commission at this time, but the officers of the company, upon the invitation of the Transit Commission, discussed fully the recommended valuation of the Bureau of Valuations, and, it is believed, showed that they were far short of the real value of the property. [For tentative valuation of traction properties in N. Y. City by Transit Commission see V. 114, p. 803, 1244 to 1252.]

American Sumatra Tobacco Co. & Subsidiaries.

(Report for 6 Months ended July 31 1922.)

William A. Tucker, acting President, New York, Oct. 20, wrote in brief:

Results.—Operations for the six months ending July 31 have not resulted in a profit, as the past fiscal year had to bear the full burden of the business deflation, owing to the fact that the tobaccos on hand were of the old crops which carried the high war cost and had to be sold on a greatly depressed market.

Inventories.—Inventories as of Jan. 31 1922, amounting to $4,612,060, have been reduced through sales to $1,838,461 as of July 31 1922, and tobaccos remaining on hand have all been marked down to present market levels.

Assets.—Current assets as of July 31 1922 amounted to $9,959,764, as against current liabilities on the same date of $1,393,445 (exclusive of the balance of the company's outstanding 5-Year gold notes due June 1 1925, amounting to $5,813,800).

Sale of Consolidated Cigar Corp. Stock.—There will be realized from the sale of the company's Consolidated Cigar Corporation Common stock (V. 115, p. 990, 762, 548) the approximate net amount of $1,700,000, which will be applied toward the purchase and reduction of the company's Gold Notes.

Liabilities.—Current liabilities, which amounted to $5,645,655 as of July 31 1921, were reduced to $3,624,544 as of Jan. 31 1922, and were further reduced to $1,393,445 as of July 31 1922.

Outlook.—The 1922 crops are all harvested in good condition and satisfactory results are hoped therefrom.

Hydraulic Steel Co., Cleveland.

(Annual Report for Year ended June 30 1922.)

President James H. Foster, Oct. 2, wrote in substance:

Results.—The operating loss for the fiscal year was $856,274. The profit and loss at each of the plants was as follows:

Canton plant	(loss)$674,382	Hydraulic plant	(loss)$69,520
Steelcraft plant	(loss) 196,487	Welding plant	(profit)84,114

Sale of Canton Plant.—We have sold the Canton plant and have closed the Steelcraft plant, thus cutting off the two biggest factors of loss. These transactions were concluded prior to July 1 and the June 30 statement reflects the loss involved, including a liberal reserve for any further losses in connection with the two plants which we have disposed of.

Two Plants Now in Operation.—From June 30 1922 forward operation is confined to the hydraulic plant and the welding plant. These two plants did a combined business of less than $300,000 per month for the year ending June 30 1922 and showed a profit of $14,594. For the first two months of the new fiscal year, viz., July and August, the two plants combined had an average of nearly $500,000 per month, but earnings were only slightly in excess of the note interest, due to keen competition in prices.

Business at the welding plant is satisfactory both in volume and profit. The hydraulic plant has been deficient in volume, due to the fact that during the war period hydraulic was compelled to turn away a substantial percentage of its regular customers to meet the demands of the Government. In the last few months hydraulic has recovered a number of its old customers and has added new accounts, which include Peerless Motor Car Co., Willys-Overland Co. and Cleveland Motor Car Co. The restoration of our old accounts, the gain in new accounts and the new business taken over from the Savage Arms Corp. (mentioned below) should correct the deficiency in hydraulic's volume.

Acquisition of Sharon Pressed Steel Business of Savage Arms Corp.—An important negotiation was closed Sept. 27 1922 by which we took over all the pressed steel business of the Sharon plant of the Savage Arms Corp. The business transferred to us is listed at about $1,000,000 per year, and we will commence to realize on it Jan. 1 1923. We did not buy any part of the plant or machinery of the Savage Arms Corp., but took over from them the contracts, drawings, dies and minor equipment on terms that are most favorable.

$3,000,000 Loss on Sale of Canton Plant—Financial Condition.—At the beginning of the last fiscal year we were not in strong financial condition, owing $2,830,000 to banks. The sale of the Canton plant was effected at the loss of nearly $3,000,000 and caused a deficit in our balance sheet. It enabled us, however, to pay off our banks and to reach the present sound financial condition which the statement discloses.

Outlook.—Our losses have been heavy, but the company has been brought safely through a critical situation. From now forward the conduct of its operations will be along the lines in which the company has been uniformly successful.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co.—Reorganization Plan Being Formulated.—Obituary.—

Committees representing B. R. T. stock and 7% gold notes of 1921 have formulated independently tentative plans for reorganizing the B. R. T. system. Joint negotiations are expected to begin soon and it is hoped to announce reorganization plan about first of next year. It will attempt to place the system on a sound permanent basis to meet the demands of future construction and equipment requirements which agreements with the city entail.

First consideration of the reorganization will be to take care of $57,230,000 3-year 7% notes on which interest payments have been in default since Jan. 1 1919. Generally believed this will be done by exchange of long-term bonds for existing notes which will provide also for taking up remaining matured and unpaid interest coupons after partial payment in cash has been arranged.

Taking up of $12,000,000 B. R. T. receiver's certificates outstanding will be the second essential. While no decision has been reached as to how this is to be accomplished, it is thought not unlikely that the new issue of securities underlying the notes may be created and offered the public. Cash in receiver's hands will be used to retire part of the certificates but it is unlikely that further substantial purchases can be made since $6,000,000 have been retired by the receiver the past year.

Existing long term underlying bonds will in all likelihood be left undisturbed. Necessity of raising additional funds "possibly amounting to $10,000,000," it is assumed, will be met by calling on stockholders to purchase new securities in form of Preferred stock or adjustment income bonds—("Wall Street Journal").

It is stated that service is to be resumed on the Park Ave. line in Brooklyn, and also a part of the Marcy Ave. route, which was abandoned during the street car strike of 1920.

Evansville & Indianapolis RR.—Final Valuation.—

The I.-S. C. Commission has fixed a final valuation as of June 30 1915 on the property wholly owned and used to be $2,250,000.

This is the first case in which the Commission has fixed the so-called final value of the property of any carrier, tentative valuations having been made in the case of various roads. Commissioners Eastman, Potter and Cox dissented from the findings.

Commissioner Eastman objected to the fixing of a final value of any railroad at this time, saying: "The report does not indicate in any way the method or process by which that value was determined, and yet this is the thing of crucial importance in our valuation work. Fundamental questions of law and public policy are involved, many of which have been argued before us in congested cases, no one of which has yet been decided."—V.113, p. 1052.

Agreement with City.—In 1921 a settlement was effected with the City of New Orleans, by which a definite basis was agreed upon between the company and the city governing their mutual relations.

Under this settlement a sum of $44,700,000 was agreed upon as the value of the properties in the system for purposes of the settlement as of Dec. 31 1920, to be increased by future investments in the property. The city agreed, effective Oct. 1 1922, to permit such rates for the various public services as would enable the company to earn 7½% return on values as determined from time to time, after operating expenses, taxes and reserve for renewals and replacements. The agreed rate base is now in excess of $51,000,000 after allowance for earnings invested in the property since Dec. 31 1920.

On this rate base the present allowed return is $3,825,000 after renewal and replacement reserve appropriations at the rate of $1,200,000 per annum, which are now being set up. This rate is equal to more than 3¼ times the interest on the $12,000,000 1st & Ref. Mtge. bonds and the underlying bonds.

In addition to the allowed return on the rate base, the settlement provides for indeterminate permits; for the approval by the Commission Council of the City of the issue of securities; for an option to the city to purchase any or all of the three departments of the company at the current rate base valuations; and for the sstlement of various other points to be considered in a comprehensive understanding between the city and the company.

Rates.—The agreement fixes a 7-cent street railway fare, a gas rate of $1 30 per 1,000 cu. ft., and a maximum electric light base rate of 9 cents per kilowatt hour for a test period of 12 months from Oct. 1 1922, with a readjustment of rates after that period as operating results may make necessary, either to give the company the allowed 7½% on the agreed rate base or to reduce the return to that basis.

Purpose.—Of the proceeds, approximately $2,500,000 will be available for improvements and additions and working capital, the balance being used for paying off obligations assumed by the new company.

Annual Renewal and Improvement Fund.—Mortgage will provide for an annual renewal and improvement fund, beginning 1924, equal to 5% of all underlying bonds and 1st & Ref. Mtge. bonds from time to time outstanding (less certain deductions, &c., as outlined in the mortgage), such fund to be expended for additions or improvements to the mortgaged property, against which expenditures no bonds can be issued; for repairs, renewals, replacements and maintenance; or for the purchase or call of 1st & Ref. Mtge. bonds.

Mortgage Provisions.—Mortgage will provide for issue of bonds of various series without a fixed total amount or up to such maximum amount as may be designated by the company prior to the execution of the mortgage or as may be found necessary or desirable by reason of statutory provisions. In addition to the present $12,000,000 issue, $11,867,000 may be certified against property now owned, subject only to earnings qualifications, but of such $11,867,000, not exceeding $3,000,000 may be issued before the Gen. Lien 4½s, which mature in 1935, are paid off.

A total of $11,133,000 of bonds may be certified for the purpose of refunding a like amount of underlying bonds. Additional bonds may be certified at not exceeding 80% of the cash cost or fair value, whichever is less, of permanent additions, but only when annual net earnings have been not less than twice the annual interest charges on all bonds of this and underlying issues outstanding, and the bonds applied for (or, at the company's option, 12% of such amount).

Subject to this requirement as to earnings, bonds may be certified against deposit with the trustee of an equal amount of cash to an amount up to $3,000,000 or 10% of all 1st & Ref. Mtge. bonds then outstanding, whichever is greater.

Directors.—R. S. Hecht, Chairman & President; J. D. O'Keefe, Lynn H. Dinkins, J. P. Butler, Hugh McCloskey, D. D. Curran, Charles J. Theard, W. Irving Moss, A. M. Lockett, Harold W. Newman, T. F. Officers.—R. S. Hecht, Chairman and President; A. L. Kempster, V.-Pres. & Gen. Mgr.; J. H. DeGrange, Sec.; A. B. McCoard, Gen. Aud.; and H. A. Ferrandou, Treasurer.

Under the terms of the settlement it is provided that two-thirds of the board of directors shall live in New Orleans and that the President shall also be a resident of that city.—V. 115, p. 1731, 1632.

The proceeds of other $25,000,000 bonds was applied to the retirement of a like amount of 10-year 7% Coll. Trust bonds, called for redemption on Sept. 1 1922.

Rapid Transit in New York City.—Traction Situation.—Further details regarding rapid transit matters may be summarized breifly as follows:

(1) A resolution endorsing the plan of Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, providing for the issue of revokable permit to continue in operation municipal bus lines whose suspension is threatened by court action, was adopted by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment Oct. 16.

(2) Justice Mullan, on application of Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, granted a stay in the execution of the injunction order suspending operation of buses under city supervision pending decision on the city's appeal. Judge Mullan makes the Transit Commission a party to the action and no further action will be taken until opportunity has been given bus operators to obtain a legal grant from the city and certificates from the Commission.

(3) The Transit Commission, on resuming its investigation of general conditions of street railways, directed its inquiry to the end of including in its transit plan provisions for bus line operation. The immediate purpose of the Commission is to equip itself with such information as it will require in granting certificates of convenience and necessity for continuing operation of lines whose suspension is threatened by court injunction.

(4) Transit Commission investigation of the operation of buses under the present system would indicate several irregularities and in some instances graft revelations. Also investigation shows bus overloading on larger scale than by the privately owned traction companies.

(5) The Transit Commission announced Oct. 13 the final selection of two new subway routes: (a) An extension of the Broadway B. R. T. from 59th St. and 7th Ave. up Central Park West, 7th Ave. and St. Nicholas Ave. to Washington Heights. (b) A Staten Island tunnel under the Narrows from the present terminus of the 4th Ave. subway at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, to Rosebank, Staten Island.

The Washington Heights extension was not included in the Commission's program of last May (V. 114, p. 417). It was originally planned to extend the B. R. T. system in Manhattan up 7th Ave. only as far as 155th St., but the Commission's final decision will carry it up St. Nicholas Ave. for connections with the proposed 8th Ave. trunk line and the existing Interborough subway at 168th St. and Broadway.

(6) Nine bids were received by the Transit Commission Oct. 26 for the construction of the Flushing extension of the Corona line of the Queens Borough subway, together with a ramp approach to the drawbridge which will span Flushing Creek. The bids ranged from $1,635,990 to $2,740,000. The highest bidder was T. A. Gillespie & Co., and the lowest received from the Oak Dale Construction Co., Inc.

(7) Transit Commission Chairman McAneny, in making public estimates of cost of city's transit plan (V. 115, p. 1100), prepared by the Commission's engineers, states that on financial considerations alone, the plan is impossible. In criticising Mayor Hylan's estimate of $600,000,000 as the total cost to the city, Mr. McAneny points out that the cost of recapturing the subway lines of the B. R. T. and the Interborough would be $164,000,000. The cost to the city of the contemplated exchange of Lexington Ave. line for Interborough's Broadway-Bronx line would be $24,000,000, and the total cost of new construction and equipment would be $875,900,000, making a grand total of $1,063,900,000.—V. 115, p. 1100, 1632, 1752.

Southern Pacific Co.—Hearing Nov. 21.—

A hearing will be held by the I.-S. C. Commission on Nov. 21 on the application of the company for permission to retain control of the Central Pacific Ry. (See also V. 115, p. 1839.)

In a statement issued to the press under the heading "What Ripley Said" the company says:

"Those who want to see those parts of the Southern Pacific System standing in the corporate name of the Central Pacific separated from the rest of the lines lay much emphasis on the report of Prof. Wm. Z. Ripley to the I.-S. C. Commission, wherein he recommended the separation of the railroad properties. The Commission did not accept Professor Ripley's report, but instead prepared its own tentative plan for grouping of the railroads under the Transportation Act of 1920. The Commission's tentative plan would permit the Southern Pacific to retain the Central Pacific.

"However, even Professor Ripley himself in his report made some statements that can well be considered by California shippers and travelers. Referring to the effect upon local transportation in California of the disorganization incident to the separation of these properties, Professor Ripley said:

"'This accounts in part, perhaps, for the attitude of the California Railroad Commission, which has resolutely set its face against the proposal. The president of the Commission in 1913, Mr. Eshleman, testified not only that the separation would tend to increase rates where double service was substituted for single service, but also that these lines, separately owned and managed, could not furnish as good service as is now rendered under single management. The acquisition of the Central Pacific by the Union Pacific would result in breaking up a single system of railroads in this State into two dis-associated and incomplete systems, neither of which would be adequate conveniently to serve the traffic needs of the State of California. There is force in this objection.'" See also V. 115, p. 1839, 1732.

Union Pacific Asks Commission to Dismiss Southern Pacific's Application.—

The Union Pacific RR. has petitioned the I.-S. C. Commission to dismiss the application of the Southern Pacific Co. to acquire control of the Central Pacific Ry., on the ground that the Commission is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the application. The Union Pacific also petitioned the Commission for leave to intervene in the case.—V. 115, p. 1839, 1732.

Third Ave. Ry.—Status—Annual Report.—

President S. W. Huff under date of Oct. 21, sent a letter to the security holders of the companies of the Third Avenue Ry. system, giving a brief history of some of the conditions that have confronted the companies during the 5-year period that he has been President.

The annual report for the year ended June 30 1922 is given on a preceding page.—V. 115, p. 1101.

Trenton & Mercer County Traction Corp.—Notes.—

The Board of P. U. Commissioners of New Jersey has authorized the company to issue $36,000 6% serial promissory notes. To secure the notes a chattel mortgage issued to the Mechanics National Bank of Trenton, N. J., was also authorized.—V. 112, p. 2750.

United Rys. & Elec. Co. of Balt.—Regular Div.—

A quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share (1%) has been declared on the Common stock, payable Nov. 15 to holders of record Oct. 28. A like amount was paid on the Common stock on Aug. 15 last, when payments on the issue were resumed.—V. 115, p. 647.

United Rys. Co. of St. Louis.—Outlook for Reorganization.

A dispatch from St. Louis states that the committee representing security holders has announced that in its judgment a successful plan of reorganization requires that the property be given a valuation of about $75,000,000 by the Missouri P. S. Commission and that a new long-term franchise be obtained from the city. The dispatch continues:

"The P. S. Commission is expected to announce its findings on the valuation in the near future. The company will apply either for a franchise running 50 years, or for the enactment of legislation conferring upon the company the right to use the streets for an indeterminate period. Should the latter plan be adopted the city will be given the right to take over the property at any time in consideration of reimbursing the security holders on the basis of a definite valuation.

"The reorganization plan further provides for a new bond issue of about $15,000,000 to be applied toward retiring $6,000,000 underlying bonds, $4,300,000 receivers' certificates and $4,700,000 for improvements and extensions. A second bond issue of probably $30,000,000 would be issued in exchange for other outstanding obligations. In addition to the above bonds, there will also be issued Preferred and Common stocks necessary to carry out the plan."—V. 115, p. 1534, 989.

Western Maryland Ry.—Equipment Trusts.—

The company has applied to the I.-S. C. Commission for authority to issue $450,000 5% equipment trust certificates, to be issued by the Commercial Trust Co., Philadelphia, and sold to J. S. Wilson & Co. of Baltimore at 97¼. Proceeds are to be used in the purchase of 10 freight locomotives from the Baldwin Locomotive Works. See offering in V. 115, p. 1733, 310.

INDUSTRIAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

The following brief items touch the most important developments in the industrial world during the past week, together with a summary of similar news published in full detail in last week's "Chronicle" either under "Editorial Comment" or "Current Events and Discussions."

Steel and Iron Production, Prices, &c.

The "Iron Age" Oct. 26 said in brief:

RR. Orders.—"The bulk of the new business, particularly in the heavier rolled products, is still coming from the railroads, which, while pressing car builders for deliveries, are holding out little hope of better service to steel mills. Fresh inquiries from 7 railroads have added fully 20,000 cars to the lists under negotiation and the year promises already to exceed the average of the preceding 10 years by 40%. There are new inquiries for 224 locomotives.

Labor.—"Labor conditions are not uniform. At Pittsburgh the supply of common labor is slightly better, in view of the turning of some men to indoor work for the winter. Reports of further steel mill wage advances are without confirmation. Chicago reports that not only are iron and steel works laborers scarce but the production per man is declining, while at the same time some industries are taking labor away from others by bidding up wages.

Prices.—"The price situation in finished steel is summed up in the statement coming from various market centres that plates, shapes and bars are more generally quoted at 2c., Pittsburgh. Consumers are more pointedly seeking lower prices, and some especially competitive business in bars went at 1.95c. The extent to which 2c. has been done on plates is a matter of comment. Car works have had further concessions.

"Sheet prices have eased off to the extent that independent mills which lately were about $3 a ton higher are now quoting the Steel Corporation's schedule of 3.35c. for black and 4.35c. for galvanized. Demand has fallen off and a number of sheet mills can now make better delivery promises.

Coal.—"Inability to accumulate coal reserves for the winter causes concern to the mills. The amount now in storage would carry them through, but a few days of severe weather and the chances are small of getting together an adequate stock before winter sets in.

"Coke has yielded further, going as low as $8 for prompt delivery late last week, but $8.50 to $9 is the range on contract furnace coke for delivery to the end of the year.

Pig Iron Prices.—"The buying of 15,000 tons of basic by an Ohio steel company was the chief transaction of a quiet week in pig iron. At Chicago the market seems to be fairly firm at recent quotations, but in Pittsburgh and the East foundry grades are weak and in line with the decline in coke prices have receded from $1 to $2. Decided softness developed at Buffalo. The tendency in foreign iron is also downward, and there is no difficulty in getting prompt delivery, though there are still complaints of congestion at some railroad centres, especially in the East. Foreign iron is pressing for sale at the Eastern seaboard, German iron being offered at new low prices without sale."

Coal Production, Prices, &c.

The "Coal Trade Journal" Oct. 25 reviews market conditions as follows:

"The current trend of the spot market is moving downward at an accelerated pace. Compared to quotations for the preceding week, changes appeared in 56.3% of the spot prices. Of these changes, 89.4% represented reductions, ranging from 10 cents to $1 per ton and averaging 48.5 cents, as compared with 32.8 cents the week preceding. Advances ranged from 10 to 50 cents and averaged 29.3 cents, as compared to 53.5 cents the preceding week. The average minimum dropped from $3.90 to $3.68 per ton and the maximum from $4.48 to $4.23.

"Market conditions were most complicated in the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati-West Virginia areas because of transportation difficulties. In central Pennsylvania car supply was the cry. At the Southern piers the downward movement in prices appears to have been checked. In some parts of the Middle West, notably Saline County, Ill., and Indiana, there was a welcome improvement in transportation service. Domestic demand in that section and throughout central Ohio is particularly keen.

"Lake shipments, which reached their peak in the week ended Sept. 24 when 1,409,648 tons of cargo coal were dumped, have been gradually declining. During the week ended Oct. 15 cargo dumpings dropped to 1,052,043 tons, and business the first two days of last week was 16% under the figures for the week preceding. The total dumpings are approximately 8,000,000 tons behind last year. Anthracite loadings for the Lakes last week approximated 104,800 tons. Dock interests are very much disturbed over the failure to receive promised allotments of hard coal."

The United States Geological Survey Oct. 21 reported in brief as follows:

"Complete returns on coal production in the third week of October show an increase to about 10,200,000 tons of soft coal. Production of anthracite has been at about the same rate as during the preceding week and will be at least 2,000,000 tons. Present indications are, therefore, that the total of all coal raised this week is about 12,200,000 tons.

"The number of cars loaded on Monday, Oct. 16, as reported by the railroads, was 41,201 cars, establishing a new record for this year. On Tuesday loadings declined to 31,330 cars, and on Wednesday to 29,996. These were, however, the highest loadings reported on any second and third working days of a week since the close of the strike. On Thursday there was a further decline to 28,784 cars. Full returns on loadings for the week are expected to indicate production of 10,200,000 tons.

"Transportation remains the limiting factor in the current rate of production. Since the first of September no other causes have appreciably restricted the rate of output.

plan of readjustment of debt and capitalization of the company has been declared operative. The plan has received the approval of a large majority of the stock and substantially all of the creditors of the company, including over 83% of the debenture bonds (see advertising pages).

The holders of debenture bonds who have not yet deposited their bonds are given further opportunity until Nov. 6 to deposit under the reorganization plan, with the option to convert their debenture bonds into stock of the company at $5 per share. This option will expire, however, on Nov. 25 1922. A substantial proportion of the depositing bondholders have already elected to accept stock.

In view of the general acceptance of the plan by the stockholders and bondholders it is contemplated that the reorganization will be put through at once. It is reported that the company's business has shown considerable improvement, especially in its shipping, and the advance in sugar prices has resulted in the company's realizing a better result from the first year's operation of its sugar mill than was expected at the beginning of the season. Atlantic Gulf & West Indies S. S. Lines.—Status.

Hayden, Stone & Co. of New York and Boston, in their weekly market letter dated Oct. 20, say in substance: "The results obtained during the past 18 months have been satisfactory. In 1922 there will, undoubtedly, be a deficit after interest and liberal depreciation charges.

"The bank debt, which has been cut to $1,000,000, has recently been renewed. Tanker debt has this year been substantially reduced and there are no pressing maturities in this connection. Despite the extraordinary slump in world demand for tanker tonnage the company has continuously had 7 or 8 of its 12 tankers in operation and is earning the interest on tanker debt despite the abnormally low rates obtainable.

"The Mexican oil investment has paid back to Atlantic Gulf over $2,000,000 of advances, is paying interest on its bonds and has no arrears of interest on these bonds. Another year of earnings equal to the past 12 months would see the Atlantic Gulf investment in Mexico pretty well liquidated.

"The company has a cash balance of $3,500,000, compared with $2,047,000 as of Dec. 31 last. It has a paid up investment of $1,500,000 in the Agwi Petroleum Corp., Ltd., of England.—V. 115, p. 1636, 1324.

Auto Sales Corporation.—Earnings.—

The corporation reports for the six months ended June 30 1922, gross earnings of $847,297 and net profits before Federal taxes of $10,934.—V. 114, p. 2721, 413.

Babcock & Wilcox Co.—German Co's Cap. Increased.—

The recently added 10,000,000 marks of new capital stock of the Babcock & Wilcox Corp. of Berlin and Oberhausen for the purpose of increasing the company's working capital, have just been introduced to trading on the Berlin Stock Exchange through the Deutsche Bank, according to a report received by the Foreign Department of Moody's Inverstors' Service.

The present capitalization aggregates 20,000,000 marks, which compares with an original capital of only 2,000,000 marks.

Dividend record: 12½% in 1917; 12½% and 5% extra in 1918; 12½% in 1919; 12½% and 7½% extra in 1920 (all made on a capitalization of 5,000,000 marks). In 1921, 12½% and 7½% extra were paid on a capitalization of 10,000,000 marks. The turnover for the past year amounted to 169,000,000 marks, as compared with 68,000,000 in 1920, and 24,000,000 in 1919. Orders booked during the first six months are materially in excess over the corresponding 1921 period.—V. 115, p. 1324.

Bethlehem Steel Corp.—Dividends Declared—Earnings Improved—Lackawanna Merger Complete—Labor Shortage—New Directors.—The directors Oct. 26 declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1¼% on both classes of Common stock, payable Jan. 2 1923 to stockholders of record as of Dec. 15 1922. Dividends of 1¾% for the current quarter were also declared on the new 7% Cumulative Preferred stock, issued for the purchase of the Lackawanna property or in exchange for the 7% Non-cumulative Preferred stock, on which dividends had been declared in Jan. 1922 for the entire year.

Moses Taylor, H. G. Dalton, Oliver Jennings and Alvin Untermyer have been elected to the board, filling the vacancies occasioned by the resignations of Messrs. Thayer, Mathews, Ward and Ryan.

Digest of Interview with President Grace.

Earnings for the third quarter, although not sufficient to cover dividend requirements, were substantially greater than either the first or second quarters. Due to the marked improvement in earnings for the third quarter and the continued increasing volume of business, together with the strong cash position of the corporation and the surplus earnings accrued during the past years, the directors felt justified in declaring the usual dividends.

The gradual increase in business throughout the quarter is being maintained during the current month to a point where the steel plants of the corporation as a whole are running at a greater rate of production than at any time during the year. A decided improvement had been made in railroad service, evidenced principally in the better movement of coal and increased car supply for the shipment of finished materials.

The growing shortage of labor, particularly in the unskilled class, is becoming a very serious matter in the steel industry, causing in many instances curtailment in operations and delay in construction work. This is due largely to the present immigration laws, results of which this year will show a decrease rather than an increase in the working class. Industry in the United States cannot continue to grow and prosper as it has in the past without a substantial yearly supply of new labor. Mr. Grace said he strongly favored a selective system of immigration, safely protecting the United States against the importation of undesirables, but a system which would admit desirable workmen, particularly from the Central European countries. This would be an effective way of helping conditions in these countries, while at the same time helping ourselves.

The reorganization of the Lackawanna properties has been completed and are now being directed and operated in every respect as one of the Bethlehem properties. The directors and management are most enthusiastic as to the opportunities afforded in this consolidation of properties for more economical manufacture and the larger field for the distribution of products.

Work has already begun on the modernizing and rounding out of the Lackawanna plant and when finished will provide up-to-date facilities for the production of a complete line of the heavier rolling mill products such as merchant bars, sheared and universal plates, structural shapes, rails, sheet bars, billets, blooms, etc., together with a number of specialties, giving the property a large diversified line of output rather than depending so largely on rails as has been the case in the past.—V. 115, p. 1735, 1636.

Borne, Scrymser Co.—To Increase Stock and Declare 400% Stock Dividend.—The stockholders will vote Nov. 22 on increasing the capital stock from $200,000 (par $100) to $1,000,000 (par $100). If the increase is authorized, it is the intention to declare a 400% stock dividend.

President Orville G. Waring Oct. 25 says:

The company was organized in 1893 with a capital stock of $200,000 and this capitalization has never been increased. Due to the reinvestment of a portion of the company's earnings and the growth and successful conduct of its business, this capitalization is disproportionate to the present value of its net assets.

If the proposed increase in capital is authorized by the stockholders Nov. 22, the directors contemplate at an early meeting thereafter the declaration of a stock dividend of 400%, thereby distributing to stockholders the entire amount of the proposed increase.—V. 115, p. 1214.

Hood Rubber Co., Watertown, Mass.—Sales—Earnings.

A published statement, pronounced correct for the "Chronicle," says:

"For the first nine months of 1922, sales were approximately $18,100,000, compared with $17,218,416 in the corresponding period of 1921, with tonnage of shipments running much farther ahead of last year. The volume of unfilled orders compares favorably with the amount standing on the books a year ago. Sales of tires are about 25% in value of total sales, footwear holding the lead as the company's principal line of products. Tires have gained a little over footwear in tonnage in the last two years, but drastic price reductions have resulted in a relative loss in value compared to footwear.

"On Sept. 30 last bank loans were $2,442,000, compared with $3,585,000 on March 31 last, a reduction of $1,143,000. By March 31 next it is expected that bank loans will be under $1,000,000.

"Earnings are running well in excess of interest charges and all dividend requirements. A stormy winter, normally to be expected following two open winters, would materially assist in maintaining sales and earnings at a high rate.

"The management has no present plans for expansion or financing. The company is now operating on a thoroughly normal basis, with all post-war deflation problems well behind.—V. 114, p. 2365.

There is an apparently insatiable demand for closed cars. We are at present devoting over 60% of our total production to the enclosed type. Charles G. Greenshields has been elected President, succeeding A. E. Dyment.—V. 113, p. 2510, 1682.

Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd., Eng.—

The shareholders were to vote Oct. 20 on increasing the capital of the company to £4,000,000 by the creation of 1,000,000 new Ordinary shares of £1 each, such shares to rank pari passu in all respects with the existing 2,750,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each.

Secretary A. Ogle, Oct. 12, says: "The important developments which have recently taken place, and the further developments which are pending, will involve considerable additional capital outlay. In particular, the substantial business both at home and abroad in broadcasting, though adding materially to the company's revenue, will call for considerable finance, at least for some little time to come. Directors therefore propose that additional funds should be obtained by the creation of £3,000,000 short term convertible debenture stock, of which it is intended to issue £1,500,000 forthwith, the balance remaining available for issue as circumstances may require.—V. 115, p. 1737.

Marland Oil Co.—President on Dividend.—President E. W. Marland says:

Persistent rumors have been circulated that the company will pass or reduce its December dividend. These rumors have not emanated from the officers or directors, and are entirely irresponsible. The executive committee was directed by the June meeting of the directors to declare the regular dividends of $1 a share quarterly until otherwise ordered by the board. I do not think it advisable to change our dividend policy, and in my opinion the December dividend will be earned and paid to the stockholders of record Nov. 30. Eastern directors who have lately visited our plants and properties agree with this policy.—V. 115, p. 1329, 314.

Mexican Petroleum Co., Ltd., Del.—Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. Offers to Exchange Stock—Status, &c.—Report for Nine Months—Obtains Permits to Drill in Juan Felipe Mexican Field.—

For offer of Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. to exchange stock, &c., see that company below.

The report for the nine months ended Sept. 30 1922 is given under "Annual Reports" above.

The company has obtained permits to drill in Juan Felipe and has already started development work. All attempts by other companies to acquire permits in that territory have been canceled. This is an important development, and in connection therewith President E. L. Doheny says in part:

"Juan Felipe is a great hacienda of approximately 19,000 acres. The company leased this property in 1906 from all of the owners, which comprised many of the families and descendants of the people who bought this hacienda about 100 years ago. At about the same time (1906) and in the years immediately following the company acquired by purchase the fee rights of various owners, amounting to approximately two-thirds of the entire hacienda. The company had possession of this property during all the years from 1906 down to the present time, with the consent of the co-owners, of which, of course, their ownership was by far the largest. It drilled one successful well on the property in 1914, which has ever since been shut in.

"When the production from the fields to the north, in Amatlan and elsewhere, commenced to wane the Government was interested in stimulating development of the undeveloped prospective areas. It immediately became cognizant of the fact that there were many areas included in large haciendas that had been acquired by oil developers prior to 1917, and that the adverse claims of minority owners prevent the development of these lands. A decree was, therefore, issued in Sept. 1922 providing that if the owners of three-quarters of any hacienda should make application to the Government for permits to drill, that by giving proper security for the delivery to the minority owners of their just participation in the result of the development, such permits would be granted.

"This decree applies to all haciendas, of which there are many with prospective oil values. By virtue of this decree the company has obtained permits on Juan Felipe and has already started developments, and all other attempts by other companies to acquire permits there have been canceled. The probabilities are that new oil pools of considerable extent will shortly be obtained on this property."—V. 115, p. 1737.

At the continued hearing on the company's reorganization before Judge Anderson at Boston, Attorney P. L. Stockpole, preresenting four banks which are the largest creditors of the company, read a supplementary petition in which the reorganization managers of the company have accepted certain modifications and amplifications of the reorganization plan as suggested by Henry A. Wyman, special master, in his report. These include the following:

(1) The time in which shareholders may subscribe under the plan is extended until Jan. 1 1923, provided shareholders subscribing shall pay not exceeding 3% interest from July 15 1922 to dates of payment on their respective subscriptions.

(2) 5,000 shares of Common stock which under the plan were "reserved for the use of the reorganization managers in meeting expense of reorganization by sale or otherwise" shall not be so used, but shall remain subject to issue for purposes of the new company.

(3) The allowance for expenses and compensation of receivers in Massachusetts and California and for their counsel and incidental items shall not exceed $25,000.

(4) Expenses and fees of reorganization managers and counsel up to the time when the property is taken over by new corporation shall not exceed $2,000, with a representation by the reorganization managers that compensation for further services shall not exceed $3,000 additional.

Judge Anderson has signed a decree ordering the sale of all the assets in accordance with the plan drawn up by the reorganization managers, Albert J. Meserve and Philip L. Reed. Packard Motor Car Co.—Resumes Dividends on Common Stock—Extra Dividend—Stock Off List.—

The company has declared an extra dividend of 2½% and a quarterly dividend of 2½% on the outstanding Common stock, par $10, both payable Oct. 31 to holders of record Oct. 25. This is the first distribution on the Common stock since Oct. 30 1920, when 2½% was paid.

The Common stock was ordered dropped from the list of the Detroit Stock Exchange Oct. 25, the Board of Governors holding that the Exchange had not been given sufficient notice in the declaration Oct. 24 of a dividend of 5%, payable to stock of record Oct. 25.

The suspension, announced as temporary at the opening of the Stock Exchange Oct. 25 was made permanent when the company declined to advance the record date to Oct. 26.—V. 114, p. 2832.

Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co.—Offer to Mexican Petroleum Co. Stockholders (Both Pref. and Common) to Exchange Their Stock for Pan American Class "B" Common Stock—Stock Dividend of 25% Declared—Cash Dividends on Class "A" and Class "B" Common Increased.—The directors Oct. 23 adopted a resolution to the effect that an opportunity be extended by this company to all holders of Common and Preferred stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co., Ltd., of Del., to exchange their stock at any time between Oct. 26 and Nov. 8 1922 (both dates inclusive) for Class "B" Common stock of the Pan American Co.

A cash dividend upon the Common stock and Class "B" Common stock of this company (including all Class "B" Common stock issuable in exchange for stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co. deposited and including stock issued as a stock dividend as above specified) of $2 per share for the quarter ending on Dec. 31 1922 was declared, payable on Jan. 20 1923 to stockholders of record on Dec. 31 1922.

The resolution also provides: (1) That for each share of the Common stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co. deposited for exchange there will be issued 2½ shares of Class "B" Common stock of the Pan American Co; (2) That for each share of the Preferred stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co. deposited there will be issued 1 1-10 shares of the Class "B" Common stock of the Pan American company.

Deposits of Common and Preferred stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co. must be made within the period above specified, and as follows: In New York City at the office of the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co., 120 Broadway, or at the office of the Guaranty Trust Co., 140 Broadway, or at the office of Blair & Co., Ltd., 24 Broad St.; in Chicago, at the office of Blair & Co., Ltd., 105 South La Salle St.; in Los Angeles, Calif., at the office of the Pan American Petroleum Co., Secuirty Bldg.; in London, England, at the office of Blair & Co., Ltd., 2 Austin Friars.

[The New York Stock Exchange has authorized the listing, upon official notice of issuance, not to exceed $20,000,000 additional (auth. $70,000,000] Class "B" Common stock, par $50, to be issued in exchange for Common and Preferred stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co., Ltd., of Del., making the total amount applied for $40,099,400.]

The consolidated profit and loss account for the 9 months ended Sept. 30 1922 and a consolidated balance sheet are given under "Annual Reports" above.

Analysis of Proposal as Outlined by Chairman E. L. Doheny.

Because of the foregoing offer, it seems proper that an analysis explaining the offer and making clear the advantages of the exchange should be furnished.

The quoted prices of the respective stocks may or may not be on a parity during the period the offer obtains, so that it is impossible to make a comparison of the stocks on the basis of the market value. The action of the board, however, in declaring a stock dividend of 25% on the stock of the Pan American company, and of increasing the cash dividend 33 1-3%, creates immediately a substantial disparity in the earning values of the respective stocks in favor of the stock offered in exchange for your stock.

The following gives an illustration of this: Present dividend, Mexican Petroleum Co., Ltd., of Del., $12 per ann.; present authorized dividend, Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co., $8 per ann.; 2½ shares at $8 per ann., equals $20 per ann.; stock dividend at 25% on 2½ shares is ⅝ of a share, the dividend on which at the rate of $8 per ann. would be an additional $5 per ann., making a total return of $25 per ann. on the amount of Pan American company Class "B" Common stock, which is offered in exchange for stock of the Mexican Petroleum Co., Ltd., an increased dividend earning of $13 per share per annum.

The offer of 1 1-10 shares of Pan American company Class "B" Common stock for each share of Mexican Petroleum Co. Preferred stock, noncumulative and non-participating, which has a restricted earning of $8 per share, admits of the following analysis: The stock offered in exchange therefor is entitled to earnings of $8 80. Such stock is entitled to a stock dividend of 25%, the cash dividend on which will be $2 20 per ann., making a gross dividend earning on the stock which is offered for the Pref. stock of $11 per ann. In other words, you are invited to exchange your Mexican Petroleum company Pref. stock for a quantity of stock which will have $3 per share per ann. greater earning power.

Oil Land Holdings—Production of Properties, &c.

The Pan American company has a broader basis of values beneath its stock than has the Mexican Petroleum company. This is due to the fact that at the present time it owns 75% of the stock of the Mexican Petroleum company and will, after this offer has been consummated, own all, or nearly all, of the stock of that company.

It owns besides the largest and best fleet of ships, with one exception, operating under the American flag. It also has very substantial oil land holdings and petroleum production in the United States, especially in California, which add greatly to its earnings and prospects.

The companies' production of oil is necessarily limited by the sales, as well as by the facilities for handling, refining, storing and pipe line capacity. From the California fields we have an actual available production of 21,000 bbls. daily. Owing to the recent reduction in the prices for oil in that State we have curtailed or shut in this production approximately 6,000 bbls. per day.

The actual available production of oil from our Ebano fields in Mexico is approximately 6,000 bbls. per day, all of which is being sold and delivered to the Mexican Government for use on its railways.

The available production of oil from the fields of subsidiaries, the Huasteca and Tuxpam Petroleum companies, is not easily determinable, because it is so greatly in excess of the takings from their wells, and we have had no reason for making recent estimates of their various capacities. The wells of these two companies are largely shut in, and there is being taken from each of the various wells the aggregate quantities of oil deemed to be wise, and which always supplies the full capacity of our pipe lines, our refineries and of our markets. There is sold besides, at the wells, 10,000 bbls. per day to one of the large refining companies.

The average takings from these wells is about 135,000 bbls. daily, which amounts weekly and monthly to approximately one-half of the total light oil production of Mexico.

Our refineries have a capacity of 130,000 bbls. per day, our pipe lines have an equal capacity, and our storage seldom has vacant space for more than two or three days' accumulation of oil. From this field we now have over 8½ million barrels of oil in storage.

Relative production from wells thus far this year, compared same period of 1921.

Salt Water Stories—Drilling of Wells.

In view of last year's stories of "salt water invasion" which, according to the self-styled experts, limited the lifetime of the Mexican oil fields to a very few weeks, the above table must be very comforting to you, especially when accompanied by the following information:

We are drilling wells which nearly always develop into gushers, and which give proof of the richness and greatness of our oil areas. Of these wells, the two latest to be completed are Chapopote No. 2 and Chapopote No. 5. The former was said by our Gen. Supt., V.-Pres. Wm. Green, to be the greatest well that he ever saw. In view of the fact that he brought in our Cerro Azul No. 4, which had a measured production of 261,000 bbls. daily, the above statement has considerable meaning. Of Chapopote No. 5, which was finished this month at a shallower depth than No. 2, V.-Pres. Green wires: "Five should be better than 2, if a better well is possible."

These two wells, and the wells in Tierra Blanca and Cerro Azul, in view of the great production already obtained and still being obtained from the Toteco field, which furnishes a basis for calculation of the oil values in these newly developed pools, convinces your management that we have an assured lifetime of many years for the full capacity of our facilities.

We now have in course of construction or drilling, 22 wells on your properties, including 3 wells drilling in Cerro Viejo, in which latter we own one-half interest with the Aguila Co.

Our Ebano field with its undiminished production over a period of 16 years, and its vast area of unprospected territory, adds to these assurances. Last week we had notice of a new well, No. 21, with a capacity of 950 bbls. daily, and yesterday another well, Chijol No. 14, was brought in, yielding 600 bbls. daily.

Our wells in California are very long lived, and when they have settled down to a steady production may be calculated on to produce indefinitely.

Outlook.—Thus the present outlook for your companies, with their actual production of approximately 155,000 barrels daily, a potentail production very much larger, and a market continually increasing, justifies the prediction that the earnings should not become less in the near future, but may be relied upon to maintain the respectable average of the present year.

Earnings & Surplus.—The monthly earnings thus far in 1922 average $6,900,000. It is in contemplation of this physical condition of your companies' properties, and of its financial resources, that the directors of the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. have decided to declare a stock dividend of 25% out of surplus, and to increase the cash dividend by 33 1-3% beginning with the present quarter.

The surplus as of Sept. 30 1922 was $42,509,869, and the combined current assets amounted to $47,869,935. There is $26,997,060 cash on hand.—V. 115, p. 1318.

The stockholders will vote Dec. 21 on increasing the authorized Capital stock from $7,500,000 (par $50) to $12,000,000 (par $50).

Thomas H. Watkins, Oct. 20, says:

The proposed increase is recommended so that if hereafter additional stock is required for a stock dividend or if for any other purpose an increase in the actual capital is desired there will be authorized stock available. The directors have given some consideration to the declaration of a stock dividend but no determination to declare such a dividend has been reached nor is it now proposed to issue additional capital stock for any other purpose. Therefore, while the board recommends that the proposed increase be authorized it gives no assurance that any further action will be taken if such authorization is given.—V. 114, p. 2023.

Portland (Ore.) Flouring Mills Co.—Sperry Flour Co. to Acquire Property—Holders of First 'Mtge. 8% Bonds to Receive Preferred Stock of Sperry Flour Co., Par for Par.—

Default having been made on the interest due Aug. 1 1922 on the $3,000,000 1st mtge. 8% bonds, a bondholders' committee, consisting of Allen Chickering and Dean Witter, San Francisco David Babcock, Los Angeles, and Wallace McCamant, Portland, Ore., was formed to protect their interests. The committee had the power to adopt a plan of reorganization or sell the mortgaged properties. The bondholders were requested to deposit their bonds with the Bank of California, National Association, at any branch in California, Washington or Oregon or at Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, Los Angeles.

A report of the committee Sept. 22 to the bondholders' says in substance:

On July 24 1922 a committee was formed to protect the interests of the holders of the 1st Mtge. 8% bonds which were in default as a result of severe losses sustained by the company and its subsidiaries.

As provided in the deposit agreement the committee has power to adopt a plan for reorganization or readjustment of the debt represented by the bonds which plan shall be submitted to the bondholders. As further provided, the committee is empowered to fix a time during which the bondholders who have deposited their bonds under the terms of the agreement may withdraw their bonds under certain conditions, which time for withdrawal is fixed to terminate Oct. 22 1922. [Advices from San Francisco state that up to Oct. 18 about $2,633,000, or 88% of the bonds had been deposited.] Bondholders who do not withdraw their bonds prior to this date shall be deemed to have approved and assented to the plan.

After careful study, the committee reached the conclusion that an outright sale of the properties, would far better serve the interests of the bondholders than would a reorganization.

Negotiations which were commenced with the Sperry Flour Co., of Calif., have now resulted in an agreement between the bondholders' committee and Sperry Flour Co. whereby the latter will exchange for the properties of Portland Flouring Mills Co. $3,000,000 Sperry Flour Co. 7% Cumul. Pref. Sinking Fund stock, provided it is authorized to increase its capital stock to this extent by its stockholders.

This will give every holder of $1,000 Portland Flouring Mills Co. bonds, 10 shares (par $100) Sperry Flour Co. Pref. stock. [Suit to foreclose the mortgage has been instituted. V. 115, p. 1739.]

The Sperry Flour Co. 7% Cumul. Pref. stock proposed to be issued, shall be preferred both as to assets and dividends and be on a parity with $600,000 Sperry Flour Co. Pref. stock now outstanding. Dividends will be cumulative from Jan. 1 1923 and shall be payable quarterly beginning April 1 1923. Stock shall be redeemable at 105. A sinking fund to retire the stock shall commence to operate not later than three years from date of issuance and to be in such annual installments as to retire the issue within 25 years.

No additional preferred stock having priority or on a parity with this stock may be issued nor any bonded debt created on the properties of Sperry Flour Co. (including those to be acquired from Portland Flouring Mills Co.), excepting the existing $5,500,000 Sperry Flour Co. 1st Mtge. 6% bonds without the consent of the holders of two-thirds in amount of this issue. [For annual report of Sperry Flour Co. see under "Reports" above.]—V. 115, p. 1738.

Standard Oil Co., New Jersey.—Denies Tax Evasion By Standard Oil.—Secretary Mellon Corrects Representative Frear's View That Stock Dividend Violated Law.—Full Tax Paid On Earnings.—

Denial of the charge that the company had escaped payment of Federal taxes through accumulation of a surplus large enough to enable it to declare a 400% stock dividend was made Oct. 20 by Secretary Mellon, in an official communication to Representative James A. Frear of Wisconsin. Representative Frear wrote to the Secretary last week, calling attention to the large stock dividend that had been declared by the company and pointing out that other companies were declaring large stock dividends. He wanted to know whether the Treasury Department had invoked the Revenue Act of 1921 to reach holders of "surplus when held for escaping taxation." Mr. Frear feared that the company had been evading taxation and seemed to think that Section 220 of the Revenue Act of 1921, to which his attention had been called, was applicable to the situation. For reply of Secretary Mellon see under "Current Events" above.—V. 115, p. 1740, 1438.

"The new company has been incorporated as provided by the plan, and will be prepared shortly to issue its Preferred stock on the basis of 4 shares, par $25, for each one share of the Preferred stock of the old company, par $100, and 4 shares of its Common stock without par value for each one share of the Common stock of the old company, par $100, to such of the stockholders as have deposited their stock.

"As the plan contemplates that as soon as the exchange of stock has been made and the new company becomes the owner of the old stock, the necessary corporate action shall be taken to transfer all of the property, &c., of the old company to the new company, the directors have declared out of the earnings of the company, the usual dividend of 15% on the Common stock and 4% on the Preferred stock, payable Jan. 15 1923 to stockholders of record Oct. 31 1922, in order that there may be no interruption of dividends because of the transfer of the property, and you are accordingly being advised of the board's action. Inasmuch as the present company ceases to function on Oct. 31 1922, no dividends thereafter will be declared and paid on the stock of the old company.

Utah-Idaho Sugar Co.—Par Value of Common Stock Reduced from $10 to $6 per Share—Tentative Balance Sheet.—
A recent circular to the stockholders states:

At the stockholders' meeting Oct. 3 there were represented 1,413,864 shares of Common stock and 260,481 shares of Preferred stock. All stock present, with the exception of 383 shares, was voted to amend the articles of agreement, reducing the par value of the Common stock from $10 per share to $6 per share, thus reducing the total authorized capital from $30,000,000 to $20,000,000, divided into 500,000 shares Preferred at $10 and 2,500,000 shares Common at $6. Of the total authorized capital of $20,000,000 there are 206,000 shares of Preferred and 127,000 shares of Common unissued. The total amount of stock outstanding being $17,238,000.

You will recall that our last annual statement (V. 114, p. 1900; V. 115, p. 1741) showed a deficit of $4,500,000. In addition to extinguishing this deficit it was deemed advisable to make a reduction in the book value of some of our plants and permanent assets, amounting to $2,200,000 and $1,330,000 in another item which had been carried as an asset for some time, has been written off. After these changes the company has a surplus of over $2,000,000. After all of the above deductions, the books now show the Common stock to be worth $6 85 per share.

We believe the figures now set up are conservative, and think they honestly represent the value of your property, and while there is no immediate prospect of paying dividends, this change in the par value of the Common stock, which extinguishes the deficit and makes all necessary reductions in the company's property, will enable and justify the directors paying dividends as soon as money can be accumulated for this purpose.

Loan and Merchandise Account.— On April 1 1914 the merchandis account was $5,215,055 and the loan was $1,952,000.

On April 1 1919 the merchandise account was $7,405,466 and the loan was $3,495,000.

The cost of a watch movement is roughly nine-tenths labor and one-tenth material.

In the opinion of the executive officers this increase in inventory was chiefly due to the making of a better class of watch requiring more labor, and to the greatly increased cost of labor due to war conditions. In their then opinion the inventory and debt were at their peak. Accordingly $3,000,000 6-Year 6% Debenture notes were sold; and this provision for the debt was believed to be sufficient. However, both the debt and inventory went on increasing and on March 1 1921 the inventory amounted to $11,411,186 and the debt to $8,240,500.

Further Debts Incurred.—In April 1921 the sale of the company's paper began to fall off, and in July additional credits of $1,250,000 were obtained from a group of Boston banks, which in the opinion of the brokers selling the company's paper would be sufficient to enable them to sell its notes. The sale of paper, however, fell off still more, and in Sept. it became evident that further financing would be required. An arrangement was made with the group of banks to supply further funds of $1,580,000 secured by a pledge of the company's receivables and the placing of the control of the company in the hands of the banks, who nominated G. K. Simonds as Managing Director, and in 1922 he was elected President. Of this additional credit only $777,500 was used.

Reduction in Inventory and Loans.—$800,000 of the debt has been paid off by reductions in inventory. Further reductions of inventory were necessitated by deflation in values, so that on Sept. 1 1922 the inventory amounted to $7,628,961 and the loans to $7,372,500.

Reorganization Fails.—Evidently a reorganization of the company was required, and a plan was drawn up and underwriting secured early in the summer, but it did not meet the unanimous approval of the directors and has since lapsed. A committee was appointed to consider another plan, which proved impracticable, and some of the banks are unwilling to extend the present arrangement.

CURRENT NOTICES.

—In forecasting the effect of the new tariff on commodity prices, H. M. Jacoby of H. M. Jacoby & Co. states in a bulletin issued by the firm: "The immediate effect should be a stiffening of prices, reflecting hurried buying in anticipation of higher prices; a speeding up of industry; a stronger stock market to register these tendencies; higher money rates—though not excessive—to finance a higher price level. The ultimate effect should show an exact reversal of these happenings: A continuation of the wave of deflation, with lower commodity prices, lower stock prices and very cheap money. It will be difficult to foretell when the ultimate effects will make themselves felt. Merchants who wish to follow a wise inventory policy will have a good barometer in the stock market. As to securities, the immediate effect may register a preference for industrials, particularly stocks; for short-term notes and generally for high-yielding bonds. The ultimate effect would be by a break in industrial stocks, registering in advance lower commodity levels; and a subsequent acceleration in the upward movement in bonds."

The Commercial Times.

COMMERCIAL EPITOME.

Friday Night, Oct. 27 1922.

American business continues to expand, with wholesale and jobbing branches leading. The big industries and general business are in the best shape seen for two years and a half. In some parts of the country there have been summer temperatures for the moment, and these have, naturally, hurt retail trade to a certain extent. But in the East, and in fact over most of the country, weather conditions have been seasonable, or very close to it. In New York the thermometer within the last 24 hours has been as low as 34 degrees, which is perhaps a trifle extreme for this time of the year. But it helps business. At the South general trade is better, with cotton selling at 24 to 25 cents. Farmers there for months past have been paying off debts on the strength of cotton prices of $100 to $125 a bale. The South is in the best shape for years past, after having marketed half or nearly half of 10,000,000 bales of cotton at prices much higher than were looked for last June. The rise within a month has been nearly $20 a bale.

The buying power of the South is something very different from that of the great grain belt of the West, which still suffers from prices far below the cost of the things which it has to buy. But in general the condition of things in this country is improving. The supply of coal is increasing, and soft coal prices have latterly declined. At the same time steel and iron are lower, with some momentary falling off in the demand. But railroads are buying cars and locomotives on a large scale. It is significant, too, that car scarcity is still complained of. That of itself is a sign of rising trade, although the scarcity may also be attributable to other causes. Unfortunately, it hampers the movement of the grain crops. Yet the car loadings make an interesting exhibit, showing an increase over the preceding week, while not much below the high total of two years ago. The output of soft coal is increasing.

Conspicuous in the rising tide of business in this country are the textile trades. They outdistance everything else. This applies not only to cotton, but to wool and silk. Many New England cotton mills are running at 100% and night shifts are reported at some of the Southern mills. Mail order business is increasing, and one Chicago concern reports sales this month 10% larger than those of September. Building materials are in good demand. Lumber output is at a new high record. Some leading bankers predict an increasing business in commodities generally and higher prices. There is even talk of a certain degree of inflation, which would be regrettable. But money is very plentiful in this country, and it is going to be used on a larger scale later this year, but more particularly, in all probability, in 1923. It is noticed, too, that speculation is increasing. Trading in Wall Street is large, and in cotton there has been a widespread speculative interest as prices have mounted towards 25 cents per pound. Memberships in the New York Cotton Exchange have risen to $28,000, which is the highest ever known. Early in this century they used to sell at $10,000. Within a short time the rise is $6,500. Even "Curb" seats, it is noticed, are up to $11,000, which is a straw, in its way, showing the direction of the wind. But, of course, speculation in a sense is merely the shadow of trade. What is of most interest is the steady increase in commercial business throughout the country. Advances in prices for commodities, it is noteworthy, are more numerous than declines. The grain markets are higher than a week ago. Although French exchange touched a new "low" on Thursday, it was higher to-day, with other foreign currencies. And sterling rates have latterly been especially strong. Increasing attention is being directed to European finances, and it is perhaps significant that the United States is to have an unofficial observer at the Near East Peace Conference.

This country labors under the disadvantage of a shortage of production, a shortage of cars, a shortage of labor and lessened buying power of the grain belt. The labor shortage attracts more and more attention. As for the supply of cars, the demand in excess of the supply in the latest figures, those for Oct. 15, is stated at 156,309.

The immigration problem is rapidly assuming a position of importance, particularly with reference to industry and employment, says the weekly Radio Review of Industrial Conditions of the National Industrial Conference Board. The effects of cutting off a source of labor on which we had been accustomed to rely for many years are stated. Under the restriction laws it recalls the number of immigrants from any country is fixed at one-third of the pre-war average. In practice an even smaller proportion has actually been admitted. The number of aliens arriving has been greatly reduced and the number of those departing has been much increased. For the 12 months ending June 30 last the number of aliens arriving in the United States totaled 310,000, while the number of aliens departing reached the large total of 206,000. The effect on the labor supply of this country, particularly upon the supply of unskilled labor, is likely to be far-reaching, especially if the number of aliens departing continue so large. Not only has net immigration been largely reduced, but the character of the immigrants has changed very definitely. Fewer and fewer skilled workers are arriving. A larger and larger proportion of women and children—non-wage earners—is observed. The national groups from which our industrial workers are drawn actually show a surplus of emigrants, while the non-industrial types show an increase.

Officials of the Amoskeag Mills at Manchester, N. H., conferred with a committee of strikers on the 25th inst., looking to a settlement of the strike. No statement was issued. At the same time it is said that the workers are gradually drifting back to work. Amoskeag Mills have resumed operation in another department and now have employed 3,578 people in the entire plant. The weavers of Rochester, N. H., mills, who recently struck, returned to work on Oct. 23 at a small advance in wages on the 54-hour week. Labor leaders assert that 40,000 textile workers are still out in New England. Some call this too high.

At Elizabeth, N. J., the Singer Manufacturing Co., makers of sewing machines, employing 9,000 operatives, beginning next Saturday, will be operated on Saturday mornings. This will be the first time since the war ended that work has been done on Saturdays. It will increase the weekly working time to 49½ hours. Even during war times the company worked only 55 hours a week. Shortly after the war the time was cut to 8 hours a day for five days a week, and wages were reduced 20%.

Bituminous coal prices have been cut $1 50 to $2 25 in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Chicago reported that egg speculators are being caught between surplus supplies of millions of dozens of eggs and lower prices. It is estimated that each of Chicago's approximately 3,000,000 inhabitants will have to eat an egg a day until next Jan. 1 to wipe out the surplus that is being increased by arrivals of 300,000 dozen weekly. Speculators are said to have been holding eggs at a loss of 3 cents a dozen, with 19,000,000 dozen more eggs in storage than at this time last year. Storage eggs, which last year brought 30 cents a dozen by the case in the commission district, have latterly been selling for 26 cents. Fresh eggs, which sold for 55 cents last year, were quoted the other day at 37 cents.

LARD quiet; prime Western, 11.35@11.45c.; refined to Continent, 12.75c.; South American, 13c.; Brazil in kegs, 14c. Futures fluctuated within narrow limits early in the week but declined later. Trade was dull though Liverpool cables were firm, hogs up 10c., and receipts smaller than last year. Also some Continental buying was reported. Nobody took it seriously, however. Cash and export business was plainly not up to expectations. Outside packers sold later. Hogs still fell. Liverpool lard cables, however, were 6d. higher on the 24th inst. New York cleared about 5,000,000 lbs. of lard and 2,500,000 lbs. of bacon, the bulk of which was for the Continent. Prices later fell with hogs lower, cash and foreign trade light, heavy liquidation of October lard, and Liverpool down 6d. Business with the Continent is held up by difficulties in financing it. It wants a good deal of lard. Loose lard in tierces is at a discount that is a feature. To-day prices were easier. The net changes for the week show a decline of 20 to 47 points, the latter on October.

COFFEE on the spot, firm; No. 7 Rio, 10¾c.; No. 4 Santos, 15@15¼c.; fair to good Cucuta, 14¾@15¼c. Futures have latterly advanced in spite of talk of a big crop. As a matter of fact Rio receipts have been small and shorts have covered. Yet September coffee has lagged and it is suggested that perhaps the new Brazilian Government which comes into office on Nov. 15 may ease the restrictions on marketing the crop. Meantime, there has been some short covering in December. On the other hand, there has been more or less hedge selling of the later months. It has been mainly a small trading market, lacking features of special interest. Later in the week coffee was steady with the tone somewhat better, owing to covering of hedges. Yet there is some apprehension reported in London over the financial situation in Brazil, and the decline in Brazilian exchange, supposedly having some connection with the interest on foreign loans. Prices advanced later on a rise of 100 to 225 reis in Brazil and an advance of 1-16d. in Rio exchange on London. Cost and freight offerings advanced. The trade bought December and March. Refined generally 7c., with a moderate trade. To-day prices advanced quite noticeably on March, with reports of a sharp advance at Rio and Santos. Some have an idea that the Brazilian Government will give prices a lift. The net changes for the week show a rise of 40 points.

SUGAR.—Spot raws have been rather more active at 3¾c. c. & f. on the basis of 96-degrees centrifugal. October-November shipments have been offered at 3¾c. and this price has been obtainable for nearby sugar. Early in the week some 70,000 bags sold at that price. January new crop was sold here to the amount of 15,000 bags in the middle of the week for January, February and March delivery, it seems, at 3.15c. f. o. b. Cuba. It is said that earlier in the week operators bought at 3.10c. for January and 3c. for March delivery. Refiners sold somewhat more freely at 6.80 to 6.90c. Some contend that refiners are none too well supplied with raw material beyond this month and the early part of November. Receipts at Cuban ports for the week were 22,889 tons, against 8,463 in the previous week, 4,563 last year and 1,672 two years ago; exports for the week were 51,441 tons, against 42,261 in the previous week, 10,755 last year and 4,394 two years ago; stock, 254,122, against 282,674 in the previous week, 1,163,000 last year and 307,666 two years ago. No centrals were grinding this or last week, as against one last year and none two years ago. On Oct. 24 cables from Europe reported sales of Peru at 17s. 7½d. and at 17s. 9d. c. i. f. to the United Kingdom, equal to basis of about 3.25c. to 3.30c. f. o. b. Cuba. Later in the week the sales at 3¾c. were estimated at nearly 150,000 bags for October-November delivery. This absorbed most of the offerings, it was stated, at 3¾c. Refined, 7c. To-day sugar was steady with a better demand reported for refined. Exports of sugar show a noteworthy increase from the United States. The total from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 this year was 803,560 tons, against 385,753 tons during the same time last year. Cuba has exported this season 4,781,999 tons, of which 3,642,294 tons have been taken by the United States, 160,057 tons by Canada and 667,849 tons by the United Kingdom. The sales of Cuban raw here of late are estimated at 300,000 bags for October and early November shipment at 3¾c. c. & f. Refined was quoted as high as 7.10c. to-day less 2%. Futures were without marked change to-day, December falling 2 points. For the week there is a net advance, however, of 7 to 12 points.

OILS.—Linseed in rather better demand and firmer. Most of the business is in small quantities. Car lot orders are very small. PETROLEUM.—Gasoline lower. On the 25th inst. the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey cut export prices 1½c. per gallon. Stocks of gasoline are large, and it would not be surprising to see a cut in New York and New Jersey tank wagon prices. The consumption is very light, and no improvement is looked for until next spring. Much of the export business now being done is supposed to be against old contracts. Crude oil rather easier. Stocks are large and production continues to increase. Kerosene in good demand and firm. Export business has increased and the outlook is much improved. Gas oil quiet. Bunker and fuel oil dull. New York prices: Gasoline, cases, cargo lots 28.75c.; U. S. Navy specifications, bulk, 15.50c.; export naphtha, cargo lots, 18c.; 63-66 deg., 21c.; 66-68 deg., 22c.; kerosene cases, cargo lots, 16½c.; refined petroleum tank wagon to store, 15c.; motor gasoline garages (steel barrels), 24c. The Atlantic Refining Co. to day cut the price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon in its territory to 21 cents tank wagon basis.

RUBBER easier in sympathy with London. Reports of a hitch in the restriction plans were received from London and they had a certain depressing effect. Smoked ribbed sheets and first latex crepe spot, 21¾c.; Nov., 21⅞c.; Dec., 22c.; Jan.-Mar., 22¼c. In London on Oct. 24 rubber weakened, apparently owing to reports that ratification of the restriction scheme had been postponed by the Legislature of the Federated Malay States. For Plantation standard sheets 12⅛d. was accepted for spot and nearby delivery. In London on the 25th inst. the market was quiet and easier. At one time buyers would not buy at over 11¾d. But at the closing 12d. was paid, or a decline of ⅛d. from Monday's price.

HIDES have been steady. Frigorificos have been rising. The demand was better. Supplies in some cases are small or moderate. Native steer hides are not plentiful. Frigorifico hide stocks in the River Plate are said to be depleted. Choice Bogota hides here are in only fair supply. In the River Plate section 4,000 Anglo frigorifico steers sold, it seems, at $60 37½; 4,000 La Blancas, October salting, at $60 25, and 4,000 La Plata steers, Oct. 23 salting, at $60 50, or equal to 23 15-16c. to 24c. cost and freight. Common dry hides are rather quiet on the basis of 20½c. per lb. for choice Bogotas. Earlier in the week sales in the River Plate section were reported of 2,000 Sansinena Uruguay steers at $61⅛, or 24⅛c. sight credit; 4,000 Ang o South American steers at $61⅜; 300 Montevideo city Mataderos steers at 19⅝c., and about 1,700 cows at 14 3-16c. Chicago reports that this week over 150,000 hides were sold. Latest at 21c. for butt brands, 23c. for native steers, and 20c. for Colorados. One lot of 35,000 butt brands was sold by one of the packers. Here hides are very quiet. Packers offer koshers at 20½c. for butt brands and 19½c. for Colorados. Reports from the River Plate section state higher prices are asked which check trade, last transactions being equivalent to 24c. c. & f. for frigorificos steers. A sale was reported here of 1,000 Bogotas at 20½c. for interiors and 19½c. for coastal sections.

OCEAN FREIGHTS have been quiet but steady. Grain tonnage firm. Flour tonnage went at 22c. a 100 to Alexandria. West India time charters were more active and steady.

Charters included flour from Montreal to Alexandria, 22c. early Nov.; 30,000 qrs. grain from Atlantic range to west coast of Italy, 17c. first half Nov.; one round trip 1,145-ton steamer in West Indies trade, $1 25, delivery north of Hatteras end of Oct.; one round trip of 1,169-ton steamer, same trade, delivery north of Hatteras and re-delivery in Gulf of Mexico, $1 30; one round trip in West Indies trade, 826-ton steamer, $1 50 prompt; time charter, 6 months' period, 1,920-ton steamer, $1 35, delivery in Cuba; one round trip in West Indies trade, 1,920-ton steamer, $1 40 prompt; six months' time charter, 1,214-ton steamer, in West Indies trade, $1 35; barley from San Francisco to two ports east of United Kingdom, 38s. 1½d., Nov.-Dec.; coal from Sydney, C. B., to Montreal, 70c., free loading and discharge, end of Oct.; seven months' time charter, 1,089-ton steamer, in West Indies trade, $1 25, prompt delivery; grain from Montreal to West coast of Italy, 22c., Nov. 1-15; one round trip in West Indies trade, 1,905-ton steamer, 90c. prompt; coal from Atlantic range to Sagua, Cuba, $2 50; lumber from St. Andrews Bay to Portland, $11; grain from North Pacific to United Kingdom, 36s. 3d. first half Dec.; usual European options, except Marseilles; seven months' time charter, 1,480-ton steamer, in West Indies trade, $1 35, Jan. delivery at Cuba; grain from Gulf to Bordeaux-Hamburg range, 3s. 3d. first half Nov.; lumber from Gulf to River Plate, 165s. TOBACCO has been in moderate demand. There is an absence of life and vim in the trading here and holders for the moment are certainly not at all aggressive. The crop was large, and many buyers seem to be holding aloof, apparently expecting easier quotations later on, even though prices for the most part seem steady enough at the moment.

COPPER rather quiet of late but firm. Electrolytic, 13⅞@14c., though one producer is understood to be selling freely at 13¾c. for the remainder of the year. Consumers' stocks are believed to be small.

TIN higher with London. Spot, 35⅞c. As to the strength of the London market, some say that if it is on the idea of an increased American consumption, bulls there are mistaken, as there is little likelihood of any increase in the demand here for some time to come. Others are not so pessimistic. Lead more active and firmer; spot, New York, 6⅞c.; East St. Louis, 6½c. Offerings for November delivery are small. London has latterly advanced. Zinc higher on a stronger statistical position and a good spot demand. London has also advanced. Spot New York, 7.35@7.40c.; East St. Louis, 7.00@7.05c.

PIG IRON has been quiet and weaker at Pittsburgh and in the East, on foundry grades. They dropped $1 to $2 with coke lower. Buffalo has been quite weak. Foreign iron prices drifting downward. Prompt delivery is an easy matter nowadays. A notable transaction has been the purchase of 15,000 tons of basic by an Ohio steel concern. Otherwise the market has been slow. Birmingham seems to expect lower prices. One maker there is said to have reduced his qotations from $30 base to $28. Pittsburgh is selling only small lots, the demand being light.

STEEL is moving into consumption somewhat more freely owing to better railroad conditions. But the improvement in trade is only slight and prices are more or less irregular, with pig iron lower. Consumers want delivery of steel on old contracts at lower prices. Premiums for prompt delivery are a thing of the past. That of itself is suggestive. Piling up of stocks continues. Most of the business is in railroad equipment material. At the same time the improvement in railroad service to the steel mills is not marked, and it is hinted may not be so for some time to come. Railroads want a large number of cars, and locomotives. Orders for both are accumulating rapidly. Meanwhile Chicago complains of a scarcity of labor, and also of inefficiency of the average worker. Some industries in want of labor are bidding up wages. At Pittsburgh the labor supply has increased somewhat. The labor question is evidently going to be a thorny one for the various great industries of the country, steel by no means excepted. Plates, shapes and bars are more readily obtainable at 2c. Pittsburgh and consumers are none too anxious to pay that. They show it plainly. And it is said that bars in some cases under sharp competition have dropped to 1.95c. The mills seem especially glad to accept 2c. for plates. Independent mills which recently quoted $2 a ton above the steel corporation's price are now meeting its rate of 3.35c. for black and 4.35c. for galvanized, with the demand smaller and deliveries therefore more prompt. At the same time the fuel question is causing more or less uneasiness. Mills are anxious of course to accumulate suitable coal reserves for the winter. Apparently it is not going to be any too easy to do so just now. The demand for pipes at Youngstown is said to be increasing. And according to some reports Pittsburgh of late finds trade in sheets rather better. Coke has dropped to $8 prompt with $8 50 to $9 quoted on contract furnace for delivery for the rest of 1922.

WOOL has been in fair to good demand and firm. The tendency is towards higher rather than lower prices. In London early in the week prices were not so firm, but they rallied later. Carpet wool in considerable quantity is on the way to New York from China. China wools are noticeably strong. Ohio and Pennsylvania fine delaine, 56@57c.; XX, 47@48c.; ½ blood, 51@52c.; ⅜ blood, 47@48c.; ¼ blood, 42@43c.; pulled, scoured basis, A super, clean, 95c.@$1 00; B super, 90@92c.; C, 65c. Montevideo very firm and in good demand, with 54c. per lb., duty paid, quoted on Montevideo 2s, while for 4s out of bond 40c. a lb. is being asked. Fifty-sixes in bond, 36c. to 37c.; 60s in bond, 58c. Cape wools wanted if good; best combing Capes $1 15@$1 25. Short combing Capes $1 10@$1 15, nad clothing Capes 85c.@$1 05. Arrivals of mohair clip bought at Texas auctions are awaited; quoted 75c. to 80c. The auctions, it is said, were excited. The clip, it is said, practically sold, mostly, it appears, to the mills.

In Boston, domestic Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces: Delaine unwashed, 56c.; fine unwashed, 48@49c.; ½ blood combing, 51@52c.; ⅜ blood combing, 48@49c. Mohairs: Best combing, 60@65c.; best carding, 50@55c.

The Boston "Commercial Bulletin" Oct. 28 will say:

The wool market has been a bit less active this week, due more to the lack of suitable stocks than to any diminution of interest on the part of the mills. Prices are very firm and in some instances have shown further slight advance. The cloth market is very healthy and a good demand for clothing is reported both at retail and wholesale.

In Sydney recently Duncan Carson said that the pastoral industry displayed a wonderful recovery in results during the year just closed. Some 1,930,596 bales of wool were received into Australian stores, as against 1,467,757 bales during the previous 12 months. The bulk of this was disposed of at a high range of values, particularly for Australian merino wool, which is gaining a wider demand. Inquiry from the East shows a special expansion. During the past season Japan bought 90,467 bales in Sydney, compared with pre-war purchases of about 25,000 bales. Italy took 36,387 bales, three times her pre-war quantity. Great Britain bought a total of 417,277 bales and the Continent, which supplied the greater part of the competition prior to the war, also absorbed big weights. Belgium bought 87,258 bales, or nearly double the total taken in 1913-14. Local mills were also important factors in absorbing the clip. They purchased about 50,000 bales at the Sydney auctions during the past season, and their continued prosperity gives every promise of expansion.

At Bradford tops and yarns last week were strong and more active. Prices were mostly below parity, with present wool level but are gradually rising. The British Australian Wool Realization Association reports its wool in stock and afloat on Sept. 30: Australian merinos, 107,859 bales; crossbreds, 578,763 bales. New Zealand merinos, 2,484 bales; crossbreds, 499,977 bales. South Africa, 11,382 bales. One-half of the Australian and all the New Zealand and South African grades belong to the British Government, the other half being the property of the Australian "Bawra". In Sydney, Australia, on Oct. 19 demand good with English and Continentals the chief buyers. Compared with Oct. 6, well grown merinos good quality and condition free or nearly free advanced 5 to 7½%; crossbreds fine, 7½ to 10%, and medium 5%; coarse, unchanged. Merinos were sold up to 32¾d. Poorly grown wool carrying burr was not wanted. The fourth series at Sydney will begin Oct. 30 and continue to Nov. 3, with offerings of 61,000 bales.

In London on Oct. 20 the joint offering was 11,500 bales. Demand active, with British, Continental and America the chief buyers. Prices firm. Sydney, 1,129 bales; greasy crossbred, 16d. to 27d.; scoured, 11½d. to 32½d. Queensland, 423 bales; greasy merino, 22d. to 32d. Victoria, 1,798 bales; greasy crossbred, 12½d. to 27d.; comeback, 17½d. to 26½d.; scoured, comeback, 22d. to 44½d. Adelaide, 524 bales; greasy crossbred, best, 20d. New Zealand, 4,240 bales; greasy crossbred, best, 21½d.; slipe, 9½d. to 25d.; scoured merino, 43½d. to 53d. Puntas, 3,469 bales; greasy crossbred chiefly to the Continent at 10% above September values. In London on Oct. 23, the joint offering was 16,400 bales. Attendance smaller. Selection less attractive. Prices rather weaker. British and Continental buyers divided the offerings. Several withdrawals owing to price restrictions. Sydney, 3,261 bales; greasy merino, 25d. to 35d.; greasy crossbred, 8d. to 19d. Victoria, 2,574 bales; scoured merino, 36d. to 43d.; greasy crossbred, 9½d. to 22d. Adelaide 1,190 bales; greasy crossbred, best, 20d. New Zealand, 2,745 bales; greasy crossbred, best, 23½d. Victorian offerings included slipe merino combing, which realized 38½d.

In London on Oct. 24 12,400 bales were offered, comprising more than 10,000 bales of New Zealand grades, chiefly greasy slipe crossbreds. Yorkshire was the largest buyer. America bought a fair quantity of medium to fine greasy. Prices firm, except for scoured, which were rather irregular. Best greasy sold at 21d.; slipe, 24d., and scoured, 34½d. Sydney, 830 bales; greasy merino, 23d. to 33½d.; greasy crossbred, 6¼d. to 14d. Queensland, 280 bales; scoured merino, 23½d. to 49d.; comeback, 17½d. to 27d. Cape, 243 bales; snow white, 28½d. to 42d. At Brisbane, Queensland, the wool auction opened on Oct. 24 with the attendance large. Good buying of scoured at higher prices. They sold up to 52½d. Offerings mostly sold. Compared with Sept. 20, merino super greasy advanced 10%, greasy skirtings 10% and greasy lambs 15%. Medium and inferior were down 10 to 15%.

In London on Oct. 25 11,950 bales were offered. Good demand from British, Continental and American buyers. Prices firm. Victoria contributed 3,300 bales, chiefly greasy crossbred and comeback, for which there was sharp rivalry in the bidding by British and American buyers. Best lots sold at 25d. and 26d., respectively. For New Zealand grades, 5,247 bales of greasy and slipe, there was a keen demand. America took a fair quantity of both; greasy, 7d. to 21d.; slipe, 6½d. to 23d. A small selection of merinos was included in the Victorian offering. Greasy sold at 26½d. to 37d., and scoured 36½d. to 53½d. Sydney greasy went at 25½d. to 33½d., and Queensland at 23½d. to 29d. The sales close to-day.

In London on Oct. 26 the seventh series of Colonial wool auctions this year came to an end with a joint offering of Realization Association and free wools of 9,150 bales, or for the series 140,000 bales. British purchasers have taken 76,000 bales, the Continent 50,000 bales, and America 8,000 bales. Compared with September prices merinos advanced 10 to 15%, fine crossbreds 15%, medium crossbreds 15 to 20%, coarse crossbreds 10%, Capes 5 to 10%, and Puntas 10%. The day's offerings all sold at full prices. Victoria, 3,431 bales; greasy crossbred, 10¾d. to 26d.; comeback 17d. to 28d. Sydney, 1,115 bales; greasy crossbred, 8¾d. to 22½d. New Zealand, 1,400 bales; greasy crossbred, 6¾d. to 17½d. Puntas, 2,952 bales; greasy crossbred, 9½d. to 18d.

Friday Night, Oct. 27 1922.

THE MOVEMENT OF THE CROP, as indicated by our telegrams from the South to-night, is given below. For the week ending this evening, the total receipts have reached 297,539 bales, against 326,020 bales last week and 250,881 bales the previous week, making the total receipts since Aug. 1 1922 2,070,922 bales, against 2,052,952 bales for the same period of 1921, showing an increase since Aug. 1 1922 of 17,970 bales.

Speculation in cotton for future delivery has been active and generally at higher prices, though on Thursday and to-day there was a setback on not unnatural realizing. The high point up to Thursday was 24.40c. for December, which marked a rise since late in September of nearly 400 points. An outstanding feature has been an increase in speculation. Heretofore big trade buying has rather thrown speculation into the shade. As usual, the outside public waited until the big advance had made considerable progress before it took hold. But as the rise gained momentum outside buying increased, and it is now a much broader market than it was recently. Still, it has not exactly reached the proportions of an old-fashioned bull market so far as magnitude of trading is concerned. At the present time spot cotton is said to be selling in parts of North Carolina at 25 cents, and in the interior of Texas at 24¼c. at a time when the New York quotation for middling on the spot was 24c. Spot cotton has recently advanced more rapidly than futures, though latterly futures have been moving upward at a rapid pace. "Feeling for the top" has been a feature among the local traders, but the experiment has usually been unsatisfactory, as the price mounted from a "new high" to new "high." It moved rapidly up to the 23c. level and early this week ran above 24c. In fact, on Wednesday, as already stated, it touched 24.40c. for December, or 98 points higher than the closing price last Friday. The Census Bureau figures that day put the total ginned up to October 18 at 6,962,034 bales, whereas previous estimates had been 7,000,000 to 7,500,000 bales. It is true that during the same time last year the total was 5,477,397 bales, the year before 5,754,582, and in 1919, 4,929,104 bales. The ginning of close to 7,000,000 bales this year is very generally taken to mean 70% of the crop, which is commonly estimated at about 10,000,000 bales. Some estimates are much lower; some are as high as 10,500,000 bales, as for instance that by a North Carolina statistician. The excess of ginning this year over last year is taken to mean simply that the crop matured at an unusually early date and has been picked, ginned and marketed with unusual celerity under the stimulus of prices which have seemed in the main satisfactory to farmers. Mill "calling" and other trade buying has figured very largely in the trading here, but Wall Street, uptown traders, the West and scattered speculative interests here and there have also taken the buying side, encouraged by the recent rapid rise. It appealed to those who like quick action in a market. They have certainly been getting it in cotton. Liverpool has bought to some extent, and also Japanese interests. At times it would appear, too, that the Continent has bought, even if not on a very large scale. And there was talk that Germany can increase its purchases if it sees fit to do so. Liverpool's tone has been in the main firm until within two days, and its spot sales day after day of 10,000 bales have been a stimulating factor. Now and then have come reports, too, that Manchester's home business was better and that its sales of goods to China were the largest for some time past, even if its foreign trade in other directions was not satisfactory. On this side of the water cotton goods have been active and rising. In Worth Street prices have risen daily under the spur of a stronger demand. The talk here is that American sales of goods to the Far East and South America are increasing very noticeably, whereas recently there were cancellations. Also, while some time ago these foreign buyers were in no hurry for their goods, and in fact, it appears, stated that deliveries in three or four months would do, they are now calling for deliveries in a month. In other words, things are looking brighter in the trade for both the raw and manufactured material. Not a few of the mills in New England are said to be running at 100%. South Atlantic mills are in some cases running night and day. Birmingham reports that night shifts in some cases have been started there. That is something new.

Spot markets have naturally attracted a good deal of attention. The sales at Southern points which were recently 50,000 to 60,000 bales a day, it is true, have generally fallen below 40,000 bales this week. But the demand has been steady and if the sales have decreased somewhat, offerings have also fallen off as a rule. It was said in a dispatch on Thursday from New Orleans that the Dallas Farm Bureau was offering some 60,000 bales of co-operative cotton, and appeared to be satisfied with ruling prices, but this was promptly and sharply denied in dispatches from Dallas, which took occasion to add that declines in futures would not be followed by spot cotton. And reverting to futures, big offerings here have been absorbed with an ease at times which has excited general wonder, and of itself has made a deep impression. It naturally tended to confirm bullish ideas on the situation. It may be noted as a straw showing the rise in speculation here that New York Cotton Exchange memberships have latterly been quoted at $28,000 to $30,000, against the previous high of $26,000 in December 1919.

Yet there can be no doubt that the constant buying for a rise for a month past and the rise of fully $20 a bale has been accompanied by a decided increase in the long interest. In other words, the technical position has latterly been weakened. The short side has been terrorized by the great advance. Shorts have been ruthlessly eliminated. And naturally, there has been a good deal of profit taking. Talk of a reaction is still in the air. It has impressed the rank and file. On Wednesday and Thursday long selling was very noticeable. It is true that on Wednesday the price for all that reached a new "high," but on Thursday the effect was more perceptible. The advance was halted. Profit-taking was noticeable not only in New York, but also in New Orleans and Liverpool. In truth, all three markets acted a little tired. Manchester was quiet. And on Thursday spot markets fell 25 to 35 points here and at the South. But all this counted for less as a matter of fact than the weakened technical position. Yet, with it all there has been a strong undercurrent of bullish sentiment based on supply and demand, present and prospective. To-day prices declined some 30 points and recovered fully half in most cases before the close, though the ending was barely steady. Wall Street, it is estimated, sold 40,000 to 50,000 bales. There was a good deal of other scattered selling. Liverpool was under the influence of profit-taking as well as New York and New Orleans. Spinners' takings fell off for the week, and are still running far behind last year, though well above those of two years ago, and of every week for a month past with the exception of last week. Spot markets held up pretty well. The decline in futures was considered as due more to an overbought market than to anything else. The technical position is undoubtedly weaker than it was, but on reactions sold-out bulls take hold again and the trade keeps buying. Final prices show a rise for the week of 32 to 36 points, which marks a reaction from the high point of the week of about 65 points. Spot cotton closed at 23.90c., a net rise for the week of 45 points.

Flour has been steady, with a moderate business. As wheat has fallen, the demand for flour has naturally been less urgent. Flour receipts here, too, have increased somewhat. On the 23rd inst., for instance, they were 64,000 sacks, nearly half of which was for domestic trade. It is believed that receipts will soon begin to increase. It is natural to suppose so; cars have been in transit for New York for many weeks. There may be some congestion, however, for some time to come; it is feared so, especially after the Canadian ports are closed and shipments to American ports increase. Under the circumstances, a normal movement of flour to the seaboard is not expected for some little time to come unless there are unforeseen developments which may tend to facilitate it. New export business as a rule has not been active; far from it. Latterly it has been light. The question of transportation is still a baffling one. It is said, however, that big shipments will be made to Greece. Most of the demand is from Mediterranean ports, especially from Alexandria and the Near East. Buying for these markets, it appears, was recently quite large, of Canadian flour, with a certain quantity of the lower grades of American flour. Corn flour has also been wanted to some extent for export. The shortage of cars, however, will throw a good deal of the October business over to November. American consumers, by the way, are inclined to buy quite a little Canadian flour. They bid as high as $1 a barrel over the price of American springs and hard winters, it seems.

It is said that sales have been made of fully 200,000 barrels of Canadian flour to Greece during the past few days. Because of congested traffic conditions it is being shipped through Montreal, Portland and New London. Constantinople is also buying flour quite freely, and recently a large business has been done with Alexandria.

Wheat was at one time firmer early in the week, then it declined, and on the 25th inst. it rallied after an early decline. On the whole there has been considerable liquidation. Yet, with it all there has been at times a certain undertone of firmness. Many are looking for higher prices. Now and then the firmness of December has accentuated this idea owing to the shortage of cars. That was still an outstanding feature, despite reports now and then from the West that the supply will soon increase. The receipts at primary points early in the week were larger. And it is a fact that the visible supply in this country last week increased 1,747,000 bushels as against a decrease in the same week last year of 208,000 bushels. But the increase raises the total to only 35,158,000 bushels, or some 30,500,000 bushels less than that of a year ago. The total then was 55,687,000 bushels. And some of the cable dispatches intimate that French imports this season will have to be larger than was at one time expected. Also, there has been a fear that frost in Argentina had damaged the crop. Europe, it is believed, will want a good deal more wheat than at one time seemed likely. Unfavorable reports about Germany's financial position and talk of its entering a formal plea of bankruptcy have had little, if any, influence. Stocks of wheat afloat decreased last week about 2,000,000 bushels. Greece and Portugal, it is understood, want American or Canadian wheat. Portugal will allow the importation of 1,125,000 bushels of foreign wheat. The Greek Government wanted offerings of 1,500,000 bushels. Later this was postponed. In the main export business has been small. India, it seems, has an exportable surplus of about 40,000,000 bushels. Frost reports from Argentina were denied later. Chartering of vessels to take new wheat from Argentina and Australia to Europe has begun. America will, of course, have competitors in European markets, as always. It remains to be seen, however, whether this will obviate the necessity of liberal European buying in this country. Some think the strength of December is a suggestive hint of what is coming. Prolonged drouth in the Missouri River section had some effect here on the 25th inst. It is said to be the worst since 1894. Seeding there, it seems, has been much delayed, and germination is reported to be poor. Winnipeg was firm, and contrary to expectations, Liverpool advanced, even if not very much. Dry weather in connection with the new winter wheat crop in this country has come to the front as something of a feature, coupled with the firmness of foreign markets.

On the 26th inst. prices dropped in Chicago, but rallied later. Winnipeg advanced 3c Cash wheat was firm everywhere. Commission houses bought futures more freely. Winnipeg reported the near months the strongest, despite recent falling off in export demand.

Broomhall says that the demand for foreign wheat is now somewhat quieter, owing to millers' requirements for immediate shipment being apparently filled. Offerings of native wheat are now larger than heretofore, and parcels of good milling quality are obtainable at 40s. per 504 lbs. Continental countries have bought occasionally, but the quantities taken for future delivery are insignificant. Germany reiterates that economic conditions are disastrous, and that the declining exchange rate forces bankruptcy, as being is being entirely stopped. Continued fine weather in Europe is favoring sowing of winter grain. The acreage to wheat in France is expected to show some increase this fall. In Poland wheat surplus this year is nil. In India conditions are about unchanged and sowing of wheat in the United Provinces and the Punjab is progressing favorably. Some authorities put the exportable surplus of old wheat still in that country at over 40,000,000 bushels. Exports are now permitted there and 32,000 bushels are expected to clear this week.

To-day prices advanced 2 to 3½ cents, the latter on December, with Liverpool up and the cash situation very firm. It is said that some 2,000,000 bushels were sold late on Thursday for export, more than half Manitoba, but including considerable American. Winnipeg has advanced in the face of contract deliveries of 1,168,000 bushels. Liverpool advanced 1¼d. On reactions sold-out bulls take hold again at Chicago. Final prices show an advance for the week amounting to ¾ to 2¼c., though it should be noted that December, which closed at 114¾c. to-day was up to 115⅛c. earlier.

Indian corn was rather firm for a time on the 24th inst., but turned and fell ¾ to 2½c. on that day. This was accounted for by big selling, together with larger receipts at primary points, and reports that importers in Europe were trying to resell below the American parity. Also, the technical position in Chicago had been weakened on the recent advance. The market looked to be rather "long." The quality of the crop is said to be in the main excellent. On the other hand, despite the increased receipts, the American visible supply fell off last week 583,000 bushels in rather sensational contrast with an increase in the same week last year of 2,350,000 bushels. The total is now only 9,153,000 bushels, against 19,667,000 a year ago. Later it was said that hedge selling was small where there was any. Shorts covered on a fair scale. The weather has been good for curing the new crop, but hedge selling has not been a feature. Not a few here think that farmers will take their time in selling, as corn has a very good feeding value.

With cars still scarce, cash corn became stronger on Thursday. Offerings were small. Opinions are very generally bullish. To-day prices advanced 1½ cents, partly in sympathy with a rise in wheat, although prices are braced by the strong cash situation coincident with continued car shortage. For the week prices show no material net change, however. December is up ⅛c., while May is actually ½c. lower than a week ago.

Oats advanced somewhat early in the week in response to the firmness of corn, though the trading in oats was not active and receipts at primary points increased somewhat. The visible supply in the United States decreased last week 1,072,000 bushels, against 931,000 last year. This brought the total down to 35,774,000 bush., against 68,956,000 a year ago. Later came liquidation coincident with long selling of corn and wheat. Oats have shown no marked features or individual tone whether of strength or weakness, but have simply reflected to a certain extent the state of things in corn or wheat. The West reported a moderate export demand. It was not perceptible here.

To-day prices advanced ¾ to 1c., with December leading. For the week the changes are irregular, however, and not marked. December winds up ⅛c. higher, while May is down ⅜c.

Rye was firmer early in the week, with reports of 800,000 bushels sold for export late last week. The visible supply in the United States decreased only 280,000 bushels last week, however, against 403,000 bushels last year and the total is still 9,275,000 bushels, against 5,516,000 a year ago. Later a pressure to sell developed, despite reports of further large European buying and some actual purchases, it appears, by Germany. Sympathy with a decline in wheat was noticeable, though cash markets were steady. Offerings were small, owing to the car shortage, so that on the 25th the export sales were estimated at only 100,000 bushels.

At the West on the 26th inst. Eastern houses were trying to buy cash rye, supposedly for export. On that day exports were reported of 300,000 bushels; also, 400,000 bushels were reported sold for winter storage at 4½c. over Chicago May, equal to about 15½c. f. o. b. at Baltimore.

To-day prices advanced ¾ to 1¼c., with December the most conspicuous factor. For the week prices show a rise of ⅞ to 1⅜c., the latter on December. Cash and near deliveries meet with the best demand.

WEATHER BULLETIN FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCT. 24.—The general summary of the weather bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture, indicating the influence of the weather for the week ending Oct. 25, is as follows:

COTTON.—Recent weather conditions have been favorable for satisfactory development of late cotton bolls in North Carolina, especially in the upper clay soil sections; the crop has been mostly picked from the lighter soils. The weather was generally favorable throughout the belt for outdoor work and picking and ginning, where not completed, made satisfactory progress.

Harvest was about completed in Texas, except in the extreme west and northwest, and was nearing completion in Oklahoma. The cotton crop had been gathered and mostly ginned in Louisiana, while picking was nearly completed in Arkansas. It was practically all gathered in Georgia, and was nearly all in in Tennessee, except on lowlands.

CORN.—Husking continued rapidly with favorable weather conditions in practically all corn districts. Cribbing was under way in Kansas and Missouri, but it was rather too warm in Iowa for cribbing in large quantities, although the warm, dry weather dried the corn rapidly. Late corn made slow growth in Mississippi, because of lack of moisture.

WHEAT.—Little change was noted during the week in weather and soil conditions as affecting fall-seeded grains. As a rule soil continued in satisfactory condition from lower Missouri and central Mississippi valleys eastward, and early seeded wheat in this area has come up to a good stand generally and was growing nicely, except that it continued too dry in Tennessee and parts of Kentucky. Wheat seeding had been practically completed in Ohio and Indiana, but some remained to be done in Illinois and more moisture was needed in central portion of State for proper germination.

Sowing was finished in Missouri, where much wheat was up and doing well and small grains were making good growth in Iowa. Further rainfall occurred in eastern Kansas, where seeding was practically finished and stands satisfactory. It continued dry in western Kansas and wheat needed moisture. Soil entirely too dry for wheat throughout nearly all other sections of Great Plains and in Rocky Mountain and Plateau districts. Rains during week in northern Idaho were beneficial and light to moderate showers were favorable in most parts of Oregon and Washington, but more rain was needed in those States.

OATS.—Soil conditions were favorable for seeding winter oats in South Atlantic States, except where too wet in a few localities, but moisture was needed in Arkansas, the central Gulf States and much of Texas.

The statements of the movement of breadstuffs to market indicated below are prepared by us from figures collected by the New York Produce Exchange. The receipts at Western lake and river ports for the week ending last Saturday and since Aug. 1 for each of the last three years have been:

THE DRY GOODS TRADE.

New York, Friday Night, Oct. 27 1922.

Owing to continued good demand and the well sold position of mills, rising prices have been very general in markets for dry goods during the past week. Buyers as a rule have displayed less resistance to upward revisions, and have placed orders for goods on a liberal scale for both nearby and deferred delivery. The price advances, particularly in cotton goods, are said to have been more pronounced and more general than at any time since the upward movement began, with still higher levels predicted. Among the factors responsible for the general rising tendency and activity, is the increased strength of raw materials, together with the rapidly expanding demand for additional supplies with which to replenish depleted stocks. Raw cotton during the week reached new high levels for the movement, raw wool continues to show decided strength, while raw silk prices in Yokohama have been firmly maintained. Trading in print cloths and gray goods has continued active, and sales would no doubt have been of much larger volume had mills been willing to sell as far ahead as many buyers wished to contract for. Despite the rapid advancing movement in textiles, trade has steadily increased in practically all markets, with demand for seasonal lines stimulated by the cooler weather. Several leading merchants, however, are said to be making efforts in a quiet way to check the rising tendency of prices, as they question the purchasing power of the country on a higher price basis at the present time. They appear to be more inclined to withhold their lines from sale until it can be more firmly established that the higher prices can be maintained in consuming channels. On the other hand, many lines are claimed to be below the immediate cost of replacement in producing centres and pressure to secure a more profitable price level, particularly for future delivery, continuous from mills.

DOMESTIC COTTON GOODS: There has been no abatement in the demand for domestic cotton goods during the past week. In fact, the buying appears to have been on a more active scale, with the tendency of prices continuing upward. The rapid advance in unfinished cotton cloths has forced further upward revisions on many lines of finished cottons, including blankets, flannels, bleached goods, colored cottons, print cloths and sheetings. With demand maintained, and raw material holding around present levels, still higher prices are predicted, particularly for goods which have not been brought in line with current replacement costs. Jobbers appear to be more confident of a steady business for the winter, and are entering the markets on a more liberal scale. Advances have been steadily occurring on colored goods and cheviots, domets, chambrays, denims, tickings and other lines have reached a level nearer a parity with cotton than they have for some time past. Wide sheetings, sheets and pillow cases have been well taken, and several agencies are said to have nothing to offer this side of February. The heavy line of the cotton goods industry continues in a very strong position, as auto fabric purchases have not been completed, while duck is firmly maintained, with some of the largest manufacturers in better shape than they have been for months past. Sales of print cloths and gray goods have been heavy during the week at advancing prices, with buyers in many instances more concerned over getting prompt or nearby deliveries than they have been over the higher prices. Print cloths, 28-inch, 64 x 64's construction, are quoted at 8c., and the 27-inch, 64 x 60's, at 7½c. Gray goods in the 39-inch, 68x72's, are quoted at 11c., and the 39-inch, 80 x 80's, at 13¾c.

WOOLEN GOODS: Demand for woolen goods has been stimulated during the past week by the advent of another cold spell. Sales have increased throughout the country, and reports concerning the retail distribution in general have been more encouraging. Manufacturers of heavy underwear have been so much encouraged that they are sending out salesmen to seek fall 1923 business. Reports from out-of-town jobbers who cater to trade in the South and Southwest are being received to the effect that business is excellent. Not only is buying of good volume, but of a continuing character. In fact, jobbers report that they are experiencing more difficulty in securing wanted merchandise in sufficient quantity than they are in obtaining orders. The feature of the market for men's fabrics is the tremendous demand for overcoatings, the fancy plaid backs being easily in the lead.

FOREIGN DRY GOODS: Trade in linens has been well maintained, including both dress goods and housekeeping lines, and prices have been firmly maintained. Dress linens especially have been well ordered, with some of the commitments calling for deliveries up to next March. Handkerchief linens have also been in active demand for both nearby and deferred delivery, and arrivals from abroad are being rapidly distributed. Retailers' stocks have not been large and they are now replenishing them for the holiday trade and for the usual Thanksgiving sales. The raw material situation abroad continues very firm, and any further marked increase in the demand for linens, it is believed, would no doubt result in higher prices. Quietness has prevailed in the market for burlaps, and in the absence of demand, prices developed an easier undertone. Light weights are quoted at 6.35 to 6.40c. and heavies at 8.15 to 8.25c.

Anne Arundel County, Md.—Bonds Refused.—In a situation somewhat similar to that surrounding the refusal by Baker, Watts & Co., of Baltimore, to accept $300,000 bonds of Washington County on the ground that entries in the Senate "Journal" do not show that the Act authorizing the issue was passed in accordance with Constitutional requirements, which the Supreme Court decided, invalidated the Act, Frank B. Cahn & Co., of Baltimore, have refused to take the $50,000 bridge bonds awarded to them by Anne Arundel County on Aug. 29 (V. 115, p. 1120). The Baltimore "Sun" reviews the situation in the following manner:

The bill authorizing the bond issue was offered in the Senate by Senator Brady. It passed that body and also the House, the latter tacking a minor amendment to it. It was discovered that the Senate's final action on the bill upon its return from the House was not properly journalized and the attorneys for Frank B. Cahn & Co. notified the Board of County Commissioners that the journal did not show a yea-and-nay vote on the passage of the bill as amended. Legal action was deferred pending the decision in the Washington suit.

The "Sun" expresses the opinion that the decision of the Appellate Court invalidating the Washington County issue virtually settles this situation.

Arizona.—Constitutional Amendments Defeated by Voters.—At a special election held Sept. 12 the voters defeated the following proposals to amend the Constitution of the State:

An Act proposing to amend Article IX of the Constitution so as to provide that all revenues of every kind collected for State purposes shall be paid into the State treasury; to increase the debt limit of the State from $350,000 to an amount equal to 4% of the assessed valuation of the State, the provision being made that all debts must be authorized by a majority of the electors.

An Act proposing to amend Section 10 of Article VII of the Constitution relative to nomination of candidates for office.

An Act proposing to amend Section 11 of Article VII of the Constitution relative to general elections.

An Act proposing to amend Section 3 of Article XII of the Constitution relative to county officers.

An Act proposing to amend Section 1 of Article V of the Constitution relative to Executive Department.

An Act proposing to amend Section 21 of Subdivision 2 of Article IV of the Constitution relative to terms of members of the Legislature.

An Act proposing to amend Article XIV of the Constitution relative to corporations other than municipal.

An Act proposing to amend Section 5 of Subdivision 2 of Article IV of the Constitution relative to the Legislature.

Measures Before Voters Nov. 7.—The voters will decide on three measures, two initiated by the people, proposing amendments to the Constitution, and one referendum ordered by the Legislature, asking the repeal of an initiative measure approved at the general election in 1916, on Nov. 7.

The first measure (an initiative) proposes to add to Article IX a new section, to be known as Section 5-A, so as to authorize the issuance of bonds, for paving a highway from the Hassa-Yampa River to the Colorado River, in an amount not to exceed $2,500,000.

The second, also an initiative, would amend Article XI of the Constitution. This section relates to the educational system of the State.

The third, a referendum, asks for the repeal of an initiative measure favorably voted upon at the 1916 general election entitled "An Act relating to the preservation of fish and game and amending Paragraphs 654 and 670, Title 18 Penal Code of the Revised Statutes of Arizona, 1913."

Calcasieu Parish, La.—Court Holds that Lake Charles Voted Illegally on Parish Question.—On Oct. 13 a decision in which it was held that the city of Lake Charles under a charter provision had no legal right to vote in the election held on June 13, at which $2,750,000 bonds for the construction of a ship channel from Lake Charles to the Sabine River were voted—V. 114, p. 2849—was handed down by Judge Cline of the Fifteenth Judicial District Court. The constitutionality of the Act of the 1921 Legislature, under whose authority the election was called, was attacked by the Union Sulphur Co. of New Jersey, but the Court upheld the law in all questions raised by the plaintiff. We quote from the New Orleans "Times-Picayune," which reported the decision in its issue of Oct. 14:

Judge Jerry Cline of the Fifteenth Judicial District Court of Lousiana, for the Parish of Calcasieu, sitting in Lake Charles to-day, after having the case under advisement for nearly two weeks, handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff, in the case of the Union Sulphur Co. of New Jersey against the police jury of Calcasieu Parish, in which the plaintiff attacked the constitutionality of Act 68 of the State Legislature of 1921, under which the jury called a parish-wide tax election for June 13 to vote taxes, incur debt and issue bonds to the amount of $2,750,000 for the construction of a ship channel from Lake Charles to the Sabine River south of Orange, Tex. The plaintiff also denied the right of qualified tax-paying electors of the city of Lake Charles to participate in the election, on account of a provision in the charter of the city, adopted by the State Legislature of 1868 exempting the city from all parish taxation, except for the maintenance of the parish court house and jail.

Judge Cline rejected all the contentions of the plaintiff company relative to legislative and constitutional laws of the State under which the deep water election of June 13 was held, but upheld the claim that Lake Charles had no right to participate in the election, declaring that he was compelled to follow the rulings of the State Supreme Court in a Lafayette case.

Defendant attorneys asked for a new trial and were refused. They were given until Nov. 10 to prepare transcripts for an appeal to the State Supreme Court Cleveland, Ohio.—Annexation of West Park To Be Voted On.—Whether or not the city of West Park is to be annexed to the city of Cleveland will be decided at the general election to be held Nov. 7. The City Council of Cleveland on July 17 passed an ordinance providing that the voters of Cleveland pass on the proposed annexation. The question will also be placed before West Park citizens for approval or rejection.

Haileybury, Ont.—Municipality in Financial Difficulties as Result of Fire.—A fire which wiped out the place recently has put the town in a difficult position as far as its finances are concerned, according to the "Financial Post" of Oct. 13. Nothing definite has yet been done to aid the municipality, which at the time of the fire had a total debt of $218,169, of which $28,517 was for local improvements and $97,371 for water-works, leaving a net debt of $92,281, but the "Post" is of the opinion that the Provincial Government, following precedent, will extend aid in some form, as was done in the case of the municipalities of Cochrane, Ont., Fernie, B. C., and Campbellton, N. B. The most recent report is that the Province, according to semi-official opinion, will not pay off any part of the town's debt, but will probably carry the obligation for a period of about five years by paying the interest.

Massachusetts (State of).—State Income Tax Law Upheld.—The U. S. Supreme Court on Oct. 16, according to the Boston "Herald," dismissed a suit brought from the Massachusetts Supreme Court by William W. Knight, seeking to revise the decision of the latter, which held that revenue from income taxes were general State funds and could be used for educational purposes. The plaintiff, who brought suit in the fall of 1919, contended that the Act passed at the 1919 session of the Legislature, directing the Treasurer and Receiver-General of the Commonwealth to set aside and pay to the cities and towns funds derived from income taxes so as to care for salary increases given to teachers, imposed a public charge upon a special class of property and upon persons not specially benefited by the services realized, and that for this reason the Act constituted taking property without due process of law. The Supreme Court of Massachusetts decided against the plaintiff, and held that income taxes were general State funds, as was reported in our issue of Nov. 22 1919, p. 2003, and this decision is now affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Mississippi.—Voters to Pass on Constitutional Amendments.—A concurrent resolution passed by the 1922 Legislature, proposing to amend Section 135 of the constitution so as to abolish the office of County Treasurer, is to be placed before the voters for ratification or rejection at the election on Nov. 7.

A second concurrent resolution passed by the 1922 Legislature, proposing an amendment to Section 170 of the State constitution, prescribing the jurisdiction of boards of supervisors over roads, ferries and bridges, will also be on the ballot.

Missouri.—Measures Before Voters.—Nineteen proposals, three to amend the constitution, two initiative and fourteen referendum propositions, will be submitted to the voters on Nov. 7. These measures are summarized below, in the order in which they appear on the ballot.

No. 4. This is one of six consolidation bills enacted by the last Legislature suspended by referendum petitions. This bill would create a State Department of Labor.

No. 11. A Workmen's Compensation Act passed by the last Legislature, referred to the voters by petition circulated by labor leaders.

No. 12. The County Unit Bill, referred to the voters by a petition of the people, which would make the county the unit of school taxation and administration instead of the small districts, as is now provided by the law.

No. 13. A bill passed by the 1921 Legislature, referendum on which was ordered by petition of the people, abolishing justice court system in cities of from 100,000 to 300,000 population and creating a municipal court.

No. 14. This Act, suspended by referendum, would abolish the present eight justice courts in Kansas City. In their place would be established a municipal justice court of only five judges, qualified lawyers, who would sit in one place and conduct the justice courts as the circuit courts now are. This measure affects only Kansas City.

No. 15. An Act passed by the 1921 Legislature, and placed on the ballot as a referendum by petition of the voters, would limit the power of the County Court to appoint additional justices of the peace.

No. 16. A referred bill to abolish office of constable in cities from 100,000 to 300,000 population and vesting the ditties in the newly created office of constable.

No. 19. An initiative measure sponsored by the Republican State Committee for a Senatorial redistricting of the State.

Nebraska.—Voters to Pass on Referendum Measures.—In accordance with petitions filed on July 25 1922 by C. A. Sorenson, asking that bills numbered House Roll 617, House Roll 62, part of House Roll 193 and Senate File No. 305, be referred to the people at the next general election, the voters on Nov. 7 will be asked to pass on these measures.

House Roll 617 (Chapter 235, Laws of 1921) is an Act defining unlawful interference with the right of any person to work and to enter upon and pursue any lawful employment, and defining unlawful interference with the right of any person, firm or corporation to engage in and pursue any lawful business or occupation, and prohibiting such interference, and providing a penalty for the violation thereof.

House Roll 62 (Chapter 85, Laws of 1921) provides for exceptions from the operations of primary elections, fixes the time and place for holding primary elections, provides for the holding of political conventions in the State of Nebraska and counties thereof, and fixes the time therefor; provides for the election of delegates to said convention; amends Chapter 90 and all sections thereof of the Session Laws of Nebraska for 1919, and Sections 2138, 2141, 2151, 2152, 2153, 1254, 2199, 2207 and 2208 of the Revised Statutes of Nebraska for 1913, as amended by Chapter 90 of the Session Laws of Nebraska for 1919. In the ballot title proposed by the District Court of Lancaster it is said:

"This Act provides for the selection of delegates to county, Congressional, district, State and national conventions by caucuses and conventions instead of at primary elections; changes the date of primary election from July to August except in Presidential years; removes the prohibition against recommendations by conventions of aspirants for the party nominations at the subsequent primary election and permits the selection fo a national party committeeman at the party conbention instead of at a primary election, as the law now provides."

The part of House Roll No. 193 (Chapter 302, Laws of 1921) referred to the voters requires that before a bank may be chartered it must be shown that its establishment will be for the public convenience, advantage and necessity.

Senate File No. 305 (Chapter 93, Laws of 1921) amends Sections 2179, 2180 and 2186, Revised Statutes of Nebraska for 1913, so as to provide for the registration of all voters in the State other than in cities having over 7,000 population, now otherwise provided for. If this measure becomes law, voters may register at any time before election with the County Clerk, with any judge of election, with precinct and deputy assessors, or, if absent, by mail upon affidavit before any officer authorized to administer an oath, or they may register with the judges of election on election day. To cast his ballot the voter must have been registered 30 days prior to the election. Until the voter changes his residence no registration would be necessary.

Nevada.—Measures on Ballot.—Two amendments to the Constitution, proposed by the Legislature, will be submitted to the voters for approval or rejection on Nov. 7. The first would amend Section 20 of Article 4 of the Constitution which prohibits the Legislature from passing certain local or special laws in certain cases. The second would amend Section 12 of Article 4 of the Constitution by providing, in case of death or resignation of any member of the Legislature, for the appointment of his successor of his same political party by the County Commissioners of the county for which he was elected, only in cases where no general election takes place between the time of such death or resignation and the next succeeding session of the Legislature.

The people will also be asked to choose between two divorce laws. One was initiated by petition. The other was suggested by the Legislature as a substitute for the initiative, and carried the referendum provision.

North Dakota.—Initiative Measure to Be Submitted to Vote.—There is to be placed before the voters at the general election on Nov. 7 a measure, initiated by a petition, and entitled: "An Act declaring the purpose of the State of North Dakota to supervise and regulate the marketing of farm products; preventing unjust discrimination, fraud and extortion in the marketing of same; establishing a system of grading, weighing and measuring farm products; defining the scope and manner of such supervision and the powers and duties of the persons charged with same; providing for licensing buyers, solicitors, and warehouses handling such farm products; and making an appropriation therefor."

Oregon.—Seven Constitutional Amendments and Two Laws to be on Ballot.—The voters on Nov. 7 will approve or reject nine measures which are to be on the ballot. Of these, seven are proposals to amend the Constitution of the State. The two proposals to amend the Constitution outlined below were submitted to the voters by the Legislature:

Amendment Permitting Linn County Tax Levy to Pay Outstanding Warrants.—Purpose: To amend Section 10 of Article XI of the Constitution so as to require the annual levy of a tax of two mills on the dollar on all taxable property of Linn County, Oregon, until all warrants of the county outstanding Dec. 31 1921, are paid with legal interest and permitting such levy to be made in excess of the limitations fixed by Section 10 of Article XI.

Amendment Permitting Linn and Benton Counties to Pay Outstanding Warrants.—Purpose: To amend Section 10 of Article XI of the Constitution so as to require the annual levy of a tax of two mills on the dollar on all taxable property of Linn County, Oregon, until such time as all warrants of said county outstanding Dec. 31 1921 are paid with legal interest and to permit an issue of bonds by Benton County when authorized by a majority vote of the people of said county voting thereon, in the amount of said county's warrants outstanding Dec. 31 1921, for the payment of which no funds were then available.

The five proposed amendments to the Constitution summarized below were placed on the ballot by initiative petitions:

Initiated by the Oregon Single Tax League: Single Tax Amendment.—Purpose: To amend Section 1 of Article IX of the Constitution of the State of Oregon to read as follows: From July 1 1923, to and including July 1 1927, all revenue for maintenance of State, county, municipal and district government shall be raised by a tax on land irrespective of improvements therein or thereon, and thereafter the full rental value of land, irrespective of improvements, shall be taken in lieu of all other taxes for the maintenance of government, and for such other purposes as the people may direct.

Initiated by G. G. Green, West Linn, Oregon: Salmon Fishing and Propagation Amendment.—Purpose: Making unlawful the use of seines, traps and fishing wheels for catching salmon in any waters of the State or over which it has concurrent jurisdiction; requiring 50% of salmon spawn to be planted in the river from which it is taken not less than twenty miles from its mouth, except where a dam or falls is within such distance, then as near as practical to such dam or falls; and providing a penalty from $100 to $1,000, or imprisonment in the county jail from sixty days to one year, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Initiated by the Atlantic-Pacific Highway and Electrical Exposition: 1925, Exposition Tax Amendment.—Purpose: To authorize the city of Portland to raise $3,000,000 by levying and collecting a special tax of $1,000,000 each year for three years beginning not later than 1924, and expend the same as authorized by the voters of said city at any general or special election, to pay the expense of holding an exposition in the year 1925 or as soon as possible thereafter to advertise the resources, products, commerce, industries and general advantages of the State of Oregon and city of Portland, and validating any preceding or concurrent city legislation carrying same into effect.

Initiated by State Taxpayers' League of Oregon: Income Tax Amendment.—Purpose: To require that one-half of the tax levy for State expenses each year be levied on net incomes of natural persons and corporations beginning with 1924, the annual rate of income tax to be fixed by dividing the amount of tax required by the total net amount of all incomes subject to such tax; providing personal exemptions of from $800 to $1,000 for unmarried persons and from $1,000 to $1,500 for married persons and $200 additional for each dependent, also life insurance, gifts, bequests, devises and inheritances, and charitable corporations exempted by United States Income Tax Law.

Initiated by J. F. Albright, Oregon City, Oregon: Interest Rate Amendment.—Purpose: To provide that the legal rate of interest in this State shall be 6% per annum and no more on all moneys after the same shall become due, but on contract the rate of 7% per annum, and no more may be charged by express agreement of the parties, which rate shall be inclusive of all brokerage and commissions; and that no laws of this State relating to interest or usury are repealed or abrogated by this amendment, except in so far as the rate of interest is modified thereby.

The other two measures are bills initiated by petitions, and may be described as follows:

Initiated by Ira B. Sturges, Baker, Oregon; Dr. Robert C. Ellsworth, Pendleton, Oregon, et al.: Compulsory Education Bill.—Purpose: Requiring any parent, guardian or other person having control, charge or custody of a child over eight and under sixteen years of age, from and after Sept. 1 1926, to send such child to a public school during the entire school year, excepting: (a) children physically unable; (b) children who have completed the eighth grade; (c) children between the ages of eight and ten living more than one and one-half miles, and children over ten years of age living more than three miles from a public school, except when transportation is furnished; (d) children taught by parent or private teacher.

Initiated by the Oregon State Grange: Income Tax Bill.—Purpose: Levying graduated, annual taxes on incomes of all residents of the State and all non-residents receiving incomes from sources within its jurisdiction; corporations, joint stock companies and associations to pay on their net incomes not otherwise taxed hereunder; corporate bonds declared interests in corporations; natural persons to pay on net income of their business not otherwise taxed hereunder, or exempt, except pensions, inheritances, insurance to amount of $10,000 not received during insured lifetime; making certain exemptions from personal incomes and exempting mutual savings, building and loan, religious, charitable, &c., associations; provides manner of enforcement; and appropriates $50,000 for expenses.

Parkrose Water District, Ore.—Suit Against District Filed.—As was contemplated, a suit contesting the legality of the election at which the Parkrose Water District organization was authorized and $50,000 bonds for installing a water system were voted (V. 115, pp. 1238, 1763 and 1863) has been filed in the Circuit Court at Portland, the charge being made that an expense item of about $1,400 incurred prior to the election has been illegally made a lien against the property of the district, and that the laws under which the district was organized and the bonds authorized are unconstitutional. The Portland "Oregonian" in its issue of Oct. 18 had the following to say about the case:

In a suit filed yesterday in Circuit Court by James W. Rouse legality of the election which created the Parkrose Water District was questioned, and it was asked that the "pretended" commissioners be enjoined from issuing bonds or placing any sort of a lien against property of the district. The commissioners are named as defendants in the suit along with the Parkrose Water District. The men thus named are Frank Harpke, Tracy A. Wood, Harlan J. Miller, A. M. Pullen and L. W. Palmer.

The complaint sets forth that an expense of about $1,400 was incurred prior to the election which created the water district and alleges that it is illegal to include this charge in any sort of a lien against property of the defendant or other residents of the district. The complaint attacks the State laws under which the district was created and authorized to issue $50,000 in bonds on July 7 1922, charging that they are unconstitutional. It is asked that acts of the County Clerk in connection with the election be declared null and void.

It is understood that the district is now at the point of floating the bonds which would make possible installation of a water system in Parkrose.

San Francisco, Calif.—Proposed Charter Amendments On Ballot Nov. 7.—Included in 22 proposed charter amendments, is one adding to Article XII, a new Section, to be known as Section 18, giving to the City and county power to purchase any part of the Market Street Railway Company's property situated within the counties of San Francisco and San Mateo, the provision being made that indebtedness created for the purchase shall not in any year exceed the income or revenue provided for that year, unless the debt be authorized by a two-thirds vote of the qualified electors. It is also provided that debt incurred for the purchase is not to be subject to Section 9 of Article XII, which limits the debt of the city to 15% of the assessed valuation of property.

Another amendment, adding Section 19 to Article XII, provides that the 15% limit on bonded debt contained in Section 9 Article XII shall not include any indebtedness created in the construction, completion or acquisition of public utilities for furnishing and delivering electric energy produced by the Hetch Hetchy project.

As a result of the recent decision of the Appellate Court that the city must return to taxpayers special emergency taxes levied in the reconstruction of the city following the fire of 1906 (V. 115, p. 457), the Board of Supervisors has placed on the ballot an amendment to the charter proposing to make it the duty of Supervisors to refund to property owners taxes which have been declared illegally collected by the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of California, and authorizing the Supervisors to levy a tax sufficient for refunding the taxes illegally collected.

The purchase, outside the city and county, of land for a tuberculosis hospital and the power to construct and maintain such a hospital are provided for in another amendment.

Proposals to install voting machines, in the event that the State Legislature returns them to legal favor, to establish a Bureau of Supplies in charge of a purchaser of supplies to do the city buying, to give the city the power to establish a free port should Congress approve the foreign trade zone act, are also to be voted upon.

Other amendments provide for increasing the salaries of police judges and elected city officials except the mayor and the supervisors, and the creation of a Public Service Commission, which would take the control of the Hetch Hetchy and the Municipal Street Railway away from the Board of Public Works.

South Dakota.—Voters to Pass on Nine Measures.—At the Nov. 7 election the voters will have submitted to them for approval or rejection nine measures, four offered by the Legislature and five initiated by petitions.

The following four proposed amendments to the Constitution are submitted by the Legislature:

An amendment to Section 2 of Article XXI of the Constitution which would authorize the Legislature by a two-thirds vote of the members of each branch to fix the salaries and compensation of all State officers, and would prohibit certain expense allowances now granted to State officers.

An amendment to Article III, Section 1 of the Constitution relating to the initiative and referendum. The effect of the proposed amendment is to require initiative and referendum petitions to be subscribed by not less than 15% of the qualified electors of the State instead of 5% as the Constitution now provides, and also to add a proviso, the effect of which will be to prohibit the giving, offering or promising of any valuable consideration by any person, firm or corporation for securing signatures to any initiative or referendum petition.

An amendment of Section 1, Article IX of the Constitution relating to the changing of county boundaries. This amendment would remove the restrictions now placed upon the Legislature as to the area of counties, both new and organized, and would also eliminate the provision that the Legislature may change the boundaries of organized counties only when approved by a majority vote of the electors of the counties affected, and would substitute the following: "The Legislature shall provide by general law for organizing new counties, locating the county seats thereof, and changing county lines."

An amendment of Section 10 of Article XI of the Constitution, relating to revenue and finance. Section 10 of Article XI of the Constitution as it now exists, limits the power to levy special assessments against abutting or contiguous property for local improvements to the corporate authorities of cities, towns and villages. The purpose of this proposed amendment is to add a proviso, extending such authority to the State, county or other taxing district, through its proper authority, to levy and collect special assessments upon land lying along the banks of any river, and other lands subject to damage by such river for the purpose of protecting such lands against damage by erosion or flooding.

The five bills initiated by petition of the people to be voted on are summarized below:

An Act relating to the manufacture, distribution and sale of electric current for heating, lighting and power purposes by means of a State constructed, owned, maintained and operated hydro-electric power plant and transmission system. The purpose and effect of this measure is that, upon its becoming a law, the State of South Dakota will be authorized to construct, own, maintain and operate hydro-electric plants and transmission systems for the manufacture, distribution and sale of electric current. Such power plants are to be located on the Missouri River at such points as the Commission shall determine, and the project for first development shall be located about four miles above the city of Mobridge, Walworth County, at a point designated as the "Mobridge site." It will enable the State to sell and distribute such electric current to any public or municipal corporation and to any private corporation, association, partnership or person for its or his own use or for distribution. The affairs of the hydro-electric power plant and transmission system will be conducted and controlled by a Commission known as the South Dakota Hydro-Electric Commission, consisting of three members to be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The measure, upon becoming a law, will authorize the issuance of bonds of the State at such times and in such amounts as the Governor may deem expedient, at a rate of interest not exceeding 5%, to obtain sufficient funds for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating said hydro-electric power plants and transmission system, but bonds shall not be sold in excess of $200,000 until the Commission has secured tentative contracts for the sale of not less than 30,000,000 kilowatt hours of current. The credit of the State is pledged for the payment of bonds issued and provision is made for the levy of a tax for this purpose in case the net earnings of the plant, after ten years expiration, are found not sufficient to provide an adequate sinking fund to retire the bonds at maturity.

An Act to repeal Sections 10226 to 10234, inclusive, of the South Dakota Revised Code of 1919, relating to the State Sheriff. The purpose of this measure is to abolish the office of State Sheriff and the State Constabulary, as created and regulated by Sections 10226 to 10234 of the Revised Code of 1919. Under these sections of the statute as they now exist, the Governor is authorized to appoint a State Sheriff who is at the head of the State Constabulary and together with all of the sheriffs and deputy sheriffs of this State make up or constitute the State Constabulary.

An Act repealing Section 3853 of the Revised Code of 1919, relating to theatrical and other performances on Sunday. Section 3853 of the 1919 Revised Code prohibits the performance on Sunday of any exhibition for amusement where an admission fee is charged.

An Act relating to the Bank of South Dakota, declaring the purpose of the State of South Dakota to engage in the banking business and to establish a system of banking under the name of the Bank of South Dakota. Washington (State of).—To Vote on Nine Measures.—There will be nine measures on the ballot at the Nov. 7 election on which the electors will be asked to vote "for" or "against."

Among them are three amendments to the Constitution suggested by the Legislature. The Acts proposing the amendments are entitled:

"An Act amending Sec. 4 of Article VIII of the State Constitution by providing that payments from State appropriations should be made within one calendar month after the end of the next ensuing fiscal biennium."

Two bills, initiated by petition, to be voted on, are summarized below:

An Act providing for the repeal of Chapter 174, Laws of 1921, which is entitled: "An Act providing for the levy and collection of an annual poll or capitation tax, and providing penalties, and declaring that this Act shall take effect immediately."

An Act amending Sections 5066, 5068, 5076, 5103, and repealing other sections so as to provide for a current State School Fund sufficient to produce $30 for each child of school age for the distribution of State and county school funds to school districts upon the equal basis of attendance and teachers employed and fixing the maximum annual tax levy of school districts, except for bonded indebtedness, at 1.7% of the assessed value of the taxable property

The remaining four propositions are all Acts of the Legislature referred to the voters for their approval or rejection. These may be described as follows:

An Act to amend an Act (Chapter 117, Laws of 1911), entitled "An Act relating to public service properties and utilities, providing for the regulation of the same, fixing penalties for the violations thereof, making an appropriation, and repealing certain acts," by repealing Section 105 and by adding to the law a new section, to be known as Section 74a, so as to provide for the issuance of certificates of necessity and convenience by the Director of Public Works to public service companies in cases where similar service is being rendered the localities proposed to be served by other public service companies.

An Act amending Section 4509 of Remington & Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes, so as to provide that parents or guardians may forbid physical examinations of their school children in districts of the first class except when such children show symptoms of contagious or infectious diseases and that vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall not be made a condition of attendance or employment in such schools except of persons suspected of having or who have been exposed to contagious diseases.

Washington County, Md.—Bond Issue Invalid, Appellate Court Decision.—The Act authorizing the issuance of the $300,000 school bonds which the attorneys for Baker, Watts & Co. refused to approve after the bond firm had been successful in competitive bidding for the issue (V. 115, p. 899, 1119), was declared unconstitutional in an opinion handed down in the Appellate Court on Oct. 26, according to the Baltimore "Sun." Suit, it is stated, was brought in the Circuit Court of Baltimore by the county to force the bond house to carry out its contract to purchase the issue. Baker, Watts & Co., it is said, refused the bonds on the ground that the journal of the Senate does not show that the Act authorizing the bond issue was passed by that body in regular order, as required by the Constitution, while the county claimed the failure of the journal to show the final action on the bill could not invalidate the law, especially in view of the direct testimony of President Norris and Senator Mish, who said they remembered the passage of the bill. When the Circuit Court decided in favor of the bond house, the county carried the case to the Appellate Court, where, according to the "Sun," the finding of the lower court was affirmed.

Washington County, Okla.—Suit to Prevent Bond Issue Carried to Supreme Court.—The suit to prevent the county from issuing $700,000 road bonds which was brought early in the year (V. 115, p. 1217), has been carried to the State Supreme Court, according to the Oklahoma City "Oklahoman," which in its issue of Oct. 15 gave the following account of the suit:

The Washington County road bond case, involving a $700,000 bond issue, now rests with the State Supreme Court. Following oral arguments before that body, attorneys for the County Commissioners and for citizens of the county, who are seeking to have the issue of bonds declared illegal, have submitted printed briefs to the court. No indication has been given as to when a decision may be expected.

The bond issue was voted in Washington County Oct. 29 1921. W. F. Maberry, R. H. Hawkins, Ola Wilhite, O. B. Cole, James Truskett and Frank Harris brought suit in District Court for an injunction against the County Commissioners, restraining them from issuing the bonds. The injunction was refused.

It developed, according to briefs filed by both parties, that from 60 to 64% of the citizens of the county voted for the issue. The road was to be built through Ramona, Vera, Ochelata, Dewey and Copan.

The Washington County residents who oppose the issue contend that the election was illegal and that bonds issued under it would be void of value. They contend that registration books were not opened prior to the election and that many persons were allowed to vote on affidavits that they were legally entitled to do so, although, since the books had not been opened, only those previously registered should have been allowed to vote.

They further contend that only two of the County Commissioners were present at the called meeting, at which the bond election was ordered, the two being W. E. Campbell and A. E. Hepner, and that Bert Gaddis, Chairman of the Board, was absent.

Another contention of those opposing the issue is that the election was not advertised in a weekly paper, as required by law. The brief filed by the Commissioners answers that the advertisement was published in a Bartlesville daily paper, which is the official county publication, for several weeks in succession.

Total number of votes cast, 19,498.

Notice that the bonds had carried was given in V. 115, p. 1760.

The Denver "Rocky Mountain News" of Oct. 11 had the following to say regarding the election: "Denver voted the school bonds. Polling 19,498 ballots, the largest vote ever cast in the city in a school bond election, Denver taxpayers announced yesterday with an overwhelming majority that they want better schools for Denver children. The tremendous sentiment in favor of the bonds was particularly shown in the vote from precincts in West Denver, North Denver and South Denver, districts that voted from 3 to 1 to 5 to 1 against a bond issue of $8,000,000 when it was submitted to the voters in 1918. Nearly every one of these precincts voted strongly for the bonds at the election yesterday, while those which previously went 5 to 1 against a bond issue showed an even vote or a small majority against the issue. In many precincts the vote was the same for all three sections of the $6,150,000 bond issue yesterday, while in a majority of them the first section, that for an issue of $2,000,000 for elementary schools, was given a slightly larger majority than the second and third questions, which called for bond issues for senior and junior high schools."

DES MOINES, Iowa.—DECISION OF THE LAW DIVISION OF DISTRICT COURT PERMITS CITY TO ISSUE FUNDING BONDS.—The Des Moines "Register" of Oct. 14 reported that Judge Joseph E. Meyer of the Law Division of the District Court on Oct. 13 awarded L. A. Jester, "a citizen" representing the creditors of the city, a judgment for $250,540 02 against the city in a friendly action preliminary to the issuing of bonds for all outstanding debts and for estimated expenses of the current year. The "Register" also said:

"The law requires that the city confess judgment before bonds to pay bills can be issued. The action of the court, a matter of legal 'red tape,' permits the city to issue the bonds and negotiate for the sale.

"The funding bond issue will care for all outstanding indebtedness incurred previous to April 1 1922 and the new issue will bear interest from Sept. 1 1922. As now planned the term of the issue will range from 5 to 18 years and will be taken up by the city in amounts ranging from $13,000 to $20,000.

In the preparation of the estimates for the current year the Council yesterday made a number of revisions of the department expenses and the actual running expenses will be materially reduced. A large number of outstanding obligations incurred under the previous city administration prevented a reduction in the city tax levy but the mill will be worth close to $43,000, compared with $41,000 last year."

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS AND ABBREVIATIONS USED.

The following is an explanation of the terms and abbreviations used on succeeding pages in the presentation of the statements of the different companies:

"STOCK AND BONDS."—Under these words are shown:

"Stock."—The amount of stock authorized immediately follows the word "stock," and against this is the par value of single shares. For example, "Stock, $500,000 ($100)," means stock, total issue authorized by charter or by Act of Legislature, $500,000, divided into shares of $100 each; "f. p." following the amount given as outstanding means "full paid."

"Pref." means "preferred stock." "Pref. 6% cum." means preferred stock entitled to dividends of 6% per annum, such dividends if not paid accumulating, all dividends due and unpaid to be paid in full for each and every year before the common stock receives anything. "Pref. 6% non-cum." means simply that the stock is entitled to 6% per annum if earned, but that if unearned in any year the dividend for that year will not be paid subsequently. "Div." means dividend. The last dividend paid is shown under the column headed "Maturity."

"Bonds."—"Mort.," "mtge." or "M." means mortgage. "Consol." or "con. M." means consolidated mortgage. "Gen. M." means general mortgage. "Ref. M." means refunding mortgage. "Coll. tr." means collateral trust. The amount next following is the total authorized amount that can be issued under the mortgage. The denominations in which the bonds are issued usually follow in parenthesis. The word "gold" is usually spelled out, but in some instances is contracted to "g.," while "cur." means currency.

"Conv." means convertible into stock. "S. f." means sinking fund. "c." means coupon; "c*" means coupon but may be registered as to principal; "r" means fully registered (no coupons); "r*" means registered, convertible into coupon bonds; "c*&r*" means registerable in either form and convertible from registered to coupon or the reverse; and "c*&r" means that registered certificates without coupons as well as coupon bonds are outstanding. The letters "p.m." mean per mile, thus $15,000 p.m. means that the issue of bonds is restricted to $15,000 for each mile of track. "Guar." means guaranteed, and "guar. p. & i. (end.)" means guaranteed as to principal and interest, the guaranty being endorsed on each bond. "Red." means redeemable. "Trus." or "tr." means trustee of the mortgage.

TAX EXEMPTION.—Where there is a provision in bond or mortgage which would seem to make the interest free from the Federal income tax, we indicate the fact in black-faced letters—tf meaning tax-free. The Revenue Act of 1918 (approved Feb. 24 1919) provides, however, that only one normal 2% income tax shall be deducted at the source and that all further Federal income taxes shall be met by the recipient of the income. See terms of Act in V. 107, p. 518, 619. Where there is no tax covenant we insert the letters ntf, meaning not tax-free. tff means free from normal Federal income tax up to 4%. Where we have no knowledge other than that the company has assumed or is paying the tax, we insert the letters cpt, which means that company pays tax, at least for the present. Only very general differentiations like this are possible. Tax exemption features of mortgages are so varied and diverse that more definite information is out of the question.

"DATE."—The date of issue on the face of the bonds is indicated under the word "Date."

"INTEREST."—Under this heading is given the rate per cent yearly of the interest payable on the bonds or (if guaranteed) of the dividend payable on the stock; also the months when the interest or dividend is payable; thus "6 J-J" means 6% per annum payable January and July; correspondingly, "F-A" is used to mean February and August; "M-S" means March and September, and so on; while "Q-J" means quarterly beginning in January, and "Q-F" quarterly beginning in February. (The day when the interest payment is due can generally be determined by noticing when the loans mature, the day of the month there given being in most cases the same as for one of the interest dates.) "S.-a." means semi-annual.

"ROAD."—The word "track" means in street railway parlance all tracks, whether main line, siding, switch or second track. "Rails are 80-lb. girder" means that each rail weighs 80 pounds to the yard. "k.w." means kilowatts, and "h.p." means horsepower. "k.v.a." means kilo-volt-amperes. "P-A-Y-E cars" means pay-as-you-enter or prepayment cars.

"Exts., add'ns and impts." means extensions, additions and improvements. "Auth." means authority or authorized. "Oth. inc." means other income. "Cal. year." means calendar year.

REFERENCES TO "CHRONICLE."—This supplement is expressly intended for use in connection with the investment news and official reports published from week to week in the "Chronicle." Frequent reference is therefore made to the volume and page of the "Chronicle" as (V. 115, p. 000), where fuller information may be found. Following also each statement is given a reference to the latest news item in the "Chronicle" respecting the company. As every such item contains a reference to the last preceding item, the reader can run back at pleasure. Annual reports are in black-faced figures.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

SECURITIES AND REPORTS

This is one of our six Sections or Supplements. In using the series it is to be remembered that they are inter-dependent publications, complete only as a whole. If utilized together, and with the fresh items of news the "Chronicle" contains from week to week, the investor will have all the information he needs in seeking a safe and remunerative lodgment for his money

A full Index showing where each company will be found is given in the closing pages of the book.

AKRON, OHIO.

NORTHERN OHIO ELECTRIC CORPORATION.—A holding co. Incorp. in New York on Oct. 18 1916 and owns over 99% of the common stock of the Northern Ohio Trac. & Lt. Co. Also controls the Kent Water & Light Co.

CAPITALIZATION.—75,000 shares of common stock (no par value) $6,000,000 6% cum. pref. stock (par $100); pref. as to assets and divs.; callable at 105 and divs.; divs. payable Q.-M. Dividends on pref. stock were begun Mar. 1 1917, and paid regularly to and incl. Dec. 1919. None since—see below.

Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co., Inc., N. Y., and E. W. Clark & Co., Phila., under whose direct supervision and management the properties are operated, brought out the $6,000,000 pref. stock in Oct. 1916 on the basis of 10 shares of pref. and 5 shares common stock for $1,000. The co. in 1916 obtained a loan of $4,000,000 for one year, and pledged as security therefor approximately $9,000,000 com. stock of the Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co. Owing to unfavorable financial conditions attributable to the war, this loan was renewed from year to year. In Feb. 1920 loan was again renewed for one year to Feb. 1 1921, by which time $400,000 had been paid on account, reducing the principal to $3,600,000. In 1921 the maturity was once more extended, this time to Feb. 1 1922. V. 112, p. 933; again extended in Feb. 1922 for one year to Feb. 1 1923. V. 114, p. 1651. The company has agreed to defer the 6% dividend on the pref. stock until such time as financial conditions will permit of the sale of securities to meet payment of the loan. Compare V. 110, p. 1188.

Fares.—In Sept. 1917 filed a new schedule of interurban passenger rates with the Ohio P. U. Commission, raising the rates generally to 2c. a mile. V. 105, p. 998. In Sept. 1918 was auth. by the Ohio P. U. Comm. to increase interurban fares to 2½ cents per mile where no local franchises conflicted and on Mar. 3 1919 to 3 cents where franchises permit. On May 31 1919 an ordinance increasing fares from 5 to 6 cents was submitted to the people of Akron and defeated by a vote of about five to one. V. 108, p. 2241, 2330. The co. in June 1920 submitted a tentative service-at-cost franchise plan to the P. U. Committee of Akron, for details of which see V. 110, p. 2488; V. 111, p. 793. UNION TRACTION CO. OF INDIANA.—A trolley road.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorp. on May 13 1912 as a consolidation of the old Union Traction Co. of Indiana (incorp. May 28 1903) and the Indiana Union Trac. Co. (incorp. June 9 1903), per plan in V. 94, p. 1119, 1185; V 95, p. 819; and as a result of which capital was materially reduced. The legality of the consolidation was upheld in a decision by the Supreme Court of Indiana in the fall of 1915. The Indiana Union Traction Co. had previously acquired the Indiana Northern Traction Co. (V. 81, p 1848), Muncie & Union City Traction Co. (V. 83, p. 96) and Muncie Hartf. & Ft. W. Ry. (V. 82, p. 805, 869, 1041). The latter company was leased to the Indiana Union Trac. at a rental (in addition to operating exp., int. on bonds, &c.), equivalent to 5% on Mun. Hartf. & Ft. W. Ry. $500,000 cum. pref. stock; V. 83, p. 96. The old Union Trac. Co. of Indiana was a consolidation of the Union Trac. Co. of Indiana (incorp. in June 1899) and the Indianapolis Northern Trac. Co. Also owns the $100,000 1st M. 6s outstanding and $49,500 of the $50,000 stock of the Traction Light & Power Co. and a one-fourth interest in the United Tractions Coal Co., which owns and leases valuable coal lands to insure the co. an adequate coal supply. (See Shirley Realty Co. of Ind in V. 104, p. 1805.)

The Indianapolis Northern Traction assumed payment of the prin. and int. of half ($200,000) of the bonds of the Broad Ripple Traction Co. (see under Indianapolis).

Leases Indianapolis Newcastle & East. Trac. Co. for 99 years from Oct. 25 1912. Lease modified on Aug. 21 1914 and com. & pref. stocks of the Ind. New. & E. Trac. Co. formerly held were transferred in satisfaction of obligations incurred in leasing that company and acquiring that stock, and in building the Muncie-Newcastle line, and in consideration of further advances for improving power facilities for that line, a total of about $521,000 (V. 100, p. 975). Lease again modified as of June 30 1916 in connection with the lease of the Muncie & Portland Traction Co. to the Ind. Newc. & Eastern Trac. Co., which see below.

Fares.—In Dec. 1917 the Ind P. S. Comm. permitted the company to increase the rate for mileage books on its lines to 2 cents per mile, commutation tickets to 1½ cents per mile (from 1¼ cents) and school passengers to 1 1-5 cents a mile. Effective June 10 1918, was auth. by the Ind. P. S. Comm. to increase fares from 2 to 2½ cents per mile. V. 106, p. 2346. On Jan. 10 1919 was auth. by the Ind. P. S. Comm. to increase interurban rates from 2½ to 2¾ cents per mile V. 108, p. 172. Effective July 1 1920 the co. was auth. to increase passenger fares to 3 cents per mile. See V. 111, p. 75. Effective Jan. 1 1921, cash fares between Indianapolis and Broad Ripple were raised from 5 to 10 cents. V. 112, p. 63. In Sept. 1922 a reduction in certain interurban fares was put into effect. V. 115, p. 1211. The Ind. P. S. Comm. in Sept. 1922 auth. the co. to charge 3 cents a mile with a minimum of 10 cents for rides within the city of Indianapolis. V. 115, p. 1533.

Rates.—Freight and express rates were advanced in Aug., Oct. and Nov. 1920.

Refinancing.—On June 14 1919 the Ind. P. S. Comm. approved the extension of $4,623,000 1st gen. M 5s due July 1 1919 to July 1 1922 at 6% (compare V. 108, p. 2434) and of $1,200,000 Ind. New Castle & Eastern Trac. Co. 6% bonds due June 1 1919 to June 1 1922 at 6%. Both these issues were re-extended for a period of 10 years. V. 114, p. 2580; V. 115, p. 310. The Comm. also approved the extension of $328,000 Marion City Ry. 6s, due May 1 1919 to May 1 1924 at 6%. V. 108, p. 2630.

The co. also issued $150,000 3-yr. promissory notes dated July 1 1919 to replace a similar issue due on that date. The new notes are secured by $40,000 par value of the co's stock, $18,017 com. stock of Shirley Realty Co. and $25,000 1st Mtge. 6s of 1928 of Traction, Light & Power Co. V. 108, p. 2630.

ATLANTA, GA.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorp. in Georgia on Oct. 16 1911 to take over the following properties (V. 93, p. 1191, 1725):

Atlanta Hydro-Elec. Power Co.	Inter-State Power Co.
Atlanta Water & Elec. Power Co.	Savannah River Power Co.
Georgia Power Co.	South Carolina Power Co.

In June 1916 purchased the Gainesville Ry. & Power Co. (see p. 45 of "El. Ry. Section" for May 1916) for about $180,000. V. 103, p. 144. In Jan. 1917 the company acquired all the interests of the Franklin Light & Pow. Co., Broad Riv. Pow. Co. and the J. B. McCrary Co. at Hartwell, Ga.

Also leases the Georgia Railway & Electric Co. (see below).

In Sept. 1920 was auth. by the RR. Comm. to increase light and power rates, effective Oct. 1 1920. In Sept. 1920 the RR. Comm. auth. a charge of 7 cents for passenger fares except such fares as are fixed by contract between the co. and the cities of Decatur and College Park. V. 111, p. 1369. Fares in Gainesville were raised to 8 cents in Sept. 1920. V. 111, p. 1661. In April 1919 the City Council of Decatur, Ga., denied the company's petition to have the 5-cent cash fare contract suspended and to permit the company to charge a 6-cent fare. V. 108, p. 1721. In Dec. 1920 Judge John B. Hutcheson denied the co.'s motion for a supersedeas permitting an increase in fares from 5 cents to 7 cents in Decatur. V. 111, p. 2520. On Sept. 27 1921 the Georgia Supreme Court handed down a decision upholding the validity of contracts between the co. and the towns of College Park and Decatur under which fares are limited in those places to 5 cents. V. 113, p. 1573. As a result of this decision the co. was compelled to refund 2 cents on each fare collected in College Park since late in 1920 when the company commenced charging 7 cents. On May 1 1922 the Supreme Court again handed down a decision upholding the validity of the contracts between the company and the city of College Park and the town of Decatur. V. 113, p. 2818; V. 114, p. 2115. Compare V. 111, p. 2041, 2324. Gas rates in Sept. 1920 were raised about 25%. V. 111, p. 1369. A further increase in gas rates was authorized March 1 1921. Effective June 1 1921 the Commission authorized the company to reduce the rate for gas 25 cents per 1,000 cu. ft. V. 112, p. 2413. In Feb. 1922, the Federal Court denied the petition of the co. for an order preventing the Ga. RR. Comm. from cutting the gas rate in Atlanta from $1 65 per 1,000 cu. ft. to $1 55, with proportionate cuts for suburban towns. V. 114, p. 626. The co. has appealed from this decision to the U. S. Supreme Court. V. 114, p. 947.

Valuation.—See V. 113, p. 1772; V. 114, p. 1765; V. 115, p. 73.

In Oct 1921 the co. brought out $4,000,000 20-yr. 7% Gen. Mtge. bonds, proceeds being used for the payment of the $2,500 000 7% Coll. Notes due Aug. 1 1922, to reimburse the co. in part for add'ns. & exts. and for general corporate purposes. V. 113, p. 1772.

In May 1922 the company applied to the Georgia Railroad Comm. for authority to issue $3,500,000 1st Mtge. 6% 25-year bonds. V. 114, p. 2468. Compare V. 114, p. 2115, 2240.

In Aug. 1922 the stockholders voted to create an issue of 8% cum. 1st pref. stock, Series 1922, and holders of the $2,000,000 outstanding 6% 1st pref. stock were offered in exchange, share for share, the new 1st pref. 8% stock. $500,000 additional of the new 8% stock was brought out to reimburse the company for acquisitions, extensions, &c. V. 115, p. 73, 988, 1320, 1631.

AUGUSTA, GA.

AUGUSTA-AIKEN RY. & ELEC. CORPORATION.

ORGANIZATION.—Chartered in March 1906 under laws of South Carolina as Augusta & Columbia Ry. Co.; name changed to above in April 1911 and is a consolidation of the following companies:

Augusta-Aiken Ry. & Elec. Co.	Augusta Ry. & Elec. Co.
Augusta & Aiken Ry. Co.	North Augusta Elec. & Impt. Co.

Owns and operates entire railway systems of Augusta, Ga., and North Augusta, S. C., and a line from Augusta to Aiken, S. C. Also furnishes entire electric light and power service in Augusta and its suburbs and owns valuable real estate in central part of Augusta. Railway franchise in Augusta expires 1939; electric-lighting franchise runs until 1939 or longer. Interurban division is on private right of way. V. 92, p. 1177. Also owns the $500,000 com. stock of Georgia-Carolina Pow. Co., incorp. in So. Caro. to construct the hydro-elec. plant on Savannah River, which was placed in operation Feb. 6 1914 with an initial installation of 14,000 h. p., ultimate capacity about 28,000 h. p. Operation of this plant was taken over by the Augusta-Aiken Ry. & El. Corp. on July 1 1914. The company guarantees prin. and int. and sink. fund on the Ga.-Carolina Pow. Co. 1st M. 5s. Early in the fall of 1916 disposed of its holdings in the North Augusta Hotel Co. and North Augusta Land Co.

On June 23 1915 the stockholders authorized an increase in the 6% cum. pref. stock from $1,500,000 to $2,250,000, the new stock being issued in exchange for the $750,000 pref. stock of the Georgia-Carolina Invest. Co. (a holding co. formerly controlling the Ga.-Caro. Power Co.), which has been dissolved. V. 100, p. 1830; V. 101, p. 283.

Fares.—On Mar. 1 1918 increased fares from Augusta to Aiken, S. C., from 25 cents to 40 cents, with the approval of the S. C. RR. Commission, but subsequently reduced to 35 cents. In June 1922 under a ruling of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, fares between these cities were again raised to 40 cents. See V. 114, p. 2715, for details. In Sept. 1918 applied to the Georgia RR. Comm. for auth. to increase fares in Augusta from 5 cents to 10 cents, but was granted authority to raise fares to only 6 cents. Effective May 9 1920, a 7-cent fare was auth. on the co.'s lines. V. 110, p. 2191. In June 1921 the U. S. Dist. Court at Atlanta handed down a decision granting the co. permission to charge a 10-cent fare. The court also granted a temporary injunction restraining the RR. Comm. from interfering with the collection of the 10-cent fare. V. 112, p. 2641. In April 1922 fares were reduced to 8 cents cash and 7 cents for tokens.

Jitney Regulation.—In March 1922 the co. withdrew its cars from service in Augusta as a result of a controversy with the City Council over the regulation of jitneys. Service was resumed April 15 1922, however, under an ordinance forbidding jitneys to parallel lines of street car traffic. V. 114, p. 1889. Compare V. 114, p. 1285.

Holders of Co.'s 1st M. 5s To Forego Interest.—In May 1919 the co. proposed to holders of the 5% Sink. Fd. bonds, due 1935, in order to secure necessary funds for construction, replacements and floating debt, that they defer the interest on this issue for three years by funding their coupons into a 5-year interest-bearing note at 5% and until such notes mature on June 1 1924, to waive the operation of the sinking fund. This plan was declared operative in August 1919. In 1922 holders of these bonds accepted a plan similar to the previous one, providing for the funding of coupons due in 1922 and 1923 into notes maturing June 1 1924. Provision is made in the deposit agreement that until the 5% Coupon Gold notes have been paid off, no dividends shall be declared by the company on either class of stock. V. 109, p. 1079.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Street railways of Baltimore pay a park tax of from 1% to 9% of gross receipts from lines within City Limits, except on turnpikes and private rights of way, and are required to pave between tracks and two feet on each side.

UNITED RAILWAYS & ELECTRIC CO. OF BALTIMORE.—Trolley.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorporated at Annapolis March 4 1899; comprises through consolidations the following passenger railways in Baltimore City and Baltimore, Anne Arundel and Howard counties, Maryland:

Baltimore Catonsville & Ellicotts Mills Passenger RR.	Central Railway Co.
Baltimore City Passenger Ry. Co.	Gwynn's Falls Railway of Baltimore City.
Baltimore Consolidated Ry. Co.	Maryland Traction.
Baltimore & Curtis Bay Ry.	Pimlico & Pikesville RR.
Balt. Gardensville & Belair Elec. Ry.	Shore Line Electric Ry.
Baltimore & Northern Elec Ry. Co.	Walbrook Gwynn-Oak & Powhatan.

Also owns all the stock, and holds a lease of the Baltimore Sparrows Point & Chesapeake Ry. Co.

Allied Company.—In Aug. 1906 the Maryland Elec. Ry., which had agreed to provide funds for needed improvements and acquisitions of the United Ry. & Elec. Co., was consolidated with the Balt. & Annapolis Short Line, thus forming the Maryland Elec. Rys. See statement of that co. below.

Power Contract.—In Feb. 1911 entered into a 15-year contract with Pennsylvania Water & Power Co. for supplying power in conjunction with United Railways Co. for operation of cars. V. 92, p. 467. Also see below.

Sale of Power House—Contract, &c.—On Jan. 12 1921 entered into a perpetual power contract with the Consol. Gas, Elec. Lt. & Power Co. of Balto. The transaction involved the sale of the Railways, Pratt St. power house to the Gas Co. for $4,000,000. (Transferred on May 24 1921.) V. 112, p. 373.

Favorable Tax Decision.—On June 29 1909 the Court of Appeals of Maryland held that the park tax of 9% on gross earnings of lines within city limits was intended to be in lieu of all other taxes, and that no further tax on the intangible property can be levied without express legislative authority. The easements in 14 miles of turnpikes in annexed districts were held to be taxable. V. 89, p. 44.

In April 1913 Judge Bond in the City Court at Baltimore decided that the company must pay cost of repaving streets between tracks and 2 ft. on either side. See V. 96, p. 1090. On Aug. 5 1913, the Court of Appeals of Maryland reversed the ruling and unanimously held that company's obligation with respect to the track area was to repair and not to re-pave. In Feb. 1916 the same court again held that co. is required merely to keep its tracks in repair.

In June 1914 the Maryland Court of Appeals, reversing the lower Court, held that the State Roads Commission cannot recover from the electric railway companies the cost of changing and re-locating tracks in building the system of State highways. V. 98, p. 1995.

Fares.—In Aug. 1918 the co. announced that, effective Oct. 1 1918, fares in Baltimore and suburbs would be increased from 5 cents to 6 cents. V. 107, p. 907, 1386. Compare V. 107, p. 403. In Jan. 1919 the 6-cent fare was approved by the Maryland P. S. Comm. Half-fares for children were increased from 3 cents to 4 cents. V. 108, p. 172. On May 22 1919 the co. applied to the Md. P. S. Comm. for auth. to increase fares to 7 cents cash or 4 tickets for 25 cents. V. 108, p. 2242. On June 5 1919 this petition was denied by the P. S. Comm. V. 108, p. 2434. Effective Oct. 1 1919, however, fares were increased to 6½ cents, 4 tickets being sold for 26 cents. V. 109, p. 1274. On Jan. 1 1920 the co. was auth. by the Md. P. S. Comm. to increase fares to 7 cents. V. 110, p. 79. See also V. 110, p. 360; V. 112, p. 63; V. 113, p. 2615.

In April 1922 brought out $6,000,000 1st cons. mtge. bonds bearing 6% int., proceeds being used to retire $3,000,000 City & Suburban Ry. 1st mtge. 5s due June 1 1922, $1,500,000 United Rys. & Elec. 10-year 7½% sec. notes due Jan. 15 1931, and to pay in part $4,528,000 unsecured notes maturing Aug. 15 1922. V. 114, p. 1653. The remainder of the unsecured notes due Aug. 15 1922 were paid off with part of the proceeds of $2,500,000 5-year 6% notes sold in July 1922. V. 115, p. 437. In May 1922 holders of the 1st & cons. mtge. 4% bonds were offered the privilege of exchanging the 4% coupon sheets on a limited portion of their holdings for 6% coupon sheets, upon the payment of $250 per $1,000 bond. Receiver Appointed.—On Oct. 8 1918 Judge Geo. W. Ray in the U. S. Dist. Court in Albany appointed William G. Phelps receiver for the co. V. 107, p. 1481.

Ray approving a proposed agreement by which the receivership would be relinquished within 6 mos. and the property returned to the owners. V. 110, p. 2191. On April 17 1920 the protective committee named below announced the partial consummation of a formal contract made by the committee with the stockholders and the receiver of the co. under authorization of the U. S. Court. The contract provides in part: (1) That within ten days the stockholders and the receiver shall pay and discharge $20,000 of underlying bonds matured and outstanding. Foreclosure Proceedings.—We understand that while the first two provisions of the above contract have been carried out, the stockholders have failed to furnish sufficient funds to discharge the receivership and have failed to pay any part of the expenses of the bondholders' committee. As a result, the committee has instituted proceedings in the U. S. Court asking leave to foreclose the mortgage. See also V. 113, p. 1469. No further information. In April 1922 it was reported that application would be made for discharge of the receiver and sale of the property. V. 114, p. 1532. No later information.

BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON ELEVATED RAILWAY.

ORGANIZATION.—Charter granted in 1897 provides for an extensive system of free transfers.

On April 29 1903 leased from the Old Colony Street Ry. (now merged in the Bay State St. Ry. [now Eastern Mass. St. Ry.], all that company's tracks in the city of Boston, amounting to 23.753 miles. The lease is for 99 years and provides that besides paying taxes the Elevated Co. will pay 6½% of replacement value (appraised at $353,979, less the rental of certain short pieces of track appraised at $13,866) of the property leased as of date Feb. 16 1903, and 4% on the cost of all additions and betterments.

Consolidation with West End Street Ry.—In July 1911 Massachusetts Legislature passed an Act (signed by the Governor on July 21 1911) superseding that approved May 28 1908 (V. 86, p. 917, 1342), permitting the consolidation of Boston Elev. and West End St. Ry. at the expiration of the lease, on June 10 1922. The consolidation was carried out in accordance with terms of the Act, holders of West End pref. stock ($50 par) receiving in exchange for each 2 shares thereof one share of Boston Elevated 1st pref. 8% stock ($100 par), and holders of West End common receiving for each 2 shares ($50 par) one share Boston Elevated 2d pref. 7% stock ($100 par). As a result the affairs of the West End St. Ry. have been wound up and the co. dissolved. For full particulars of the consolidation Act and history of West End St. Ry. see "Electric Railway" Supplement of Apr. 29 1922.

Subways.—In Dec. 1896 the West End Street Ry. leased the right to use the Tremont St. subway in Boston. See terms under West End Street Ry.

On Dec. 24 1904 the East Boston tunnel (under Boston Harbor) was leased by the Boston Elevated Ry. until June 10 1922 for a rental of ½ of 1% of earnings of all lines owned, leased or operated. The company also collected a toll of 1c. per person, which went to the city, but tolls were abolished Feb. 8 1916 by an Act permitting the city to assume them each year by act of the City Council appropriating sum sufficient to cover int. and skg. fd. requirements for the year. The tunnel was opened Dec. 30 1904. It extends from the main land to East Boston, 1.4 miles, and cost $3,500,000.

On June 28 1902 Washington Street Subway bill became a law. The city constructed a tunnel for elevated trains and leased same to the Boston Elevated Ry. for 25 years at an annual rental of 4½% of total cost of construction, which was $7,901,700 net. V. 88, p. 98. Proposition was ratified by voters at Dec. 1902 election. V. 75, p. 28, 496, 1315; V. 77, p. 2097; V. 82, p. 217. The Washington Street tunnel began operation Nov. 30 1908. V. 87, p. 1477.

In June 1906 the Mass. Legislature passed a law permitting the Boston Elev. to construct two subways in Cambridge, and to issue stock or bonds to meet the cost. At the end of 20 years the city of Cambridge is to have the right to purchase these subways by paying their cost plus 7% int., less dividends. V. 83, p. 93. On Jan. 4 1912 the first through train was run in the new subway; it was opened for public travel Mar. 23 1912. V. 94, p. 1185.

New Construction of Subways and Old Contracts Extended.—In July 1911 Mass. Legislature passed an Act (accepted by the city and Boston Elev. in Sept. 1911) providing for the construction by the city of three additional subways, viz., Dorchester Tunnel, Boylston St. Subway and East Boston Tunnel extensions, and the extension of all existing contracts until July 1 1936, the date to which contracts for new lines are to run. Annual rental after expiration of old contracts to be as follows: Tremont St. Subway (see under West End), 4½% on net cost; East Boston tunnel (now expiring June 10 1922), 4½% on net cost (provision for tolls from passengers using the tunnel eliminated for extension period); Washington St. tunnel (now expiring Nov. 30 1933), 4½% on net cost. Annual rental for new lines: Cambridge connection, for first 20 years, 4½% on net cost; thereafter 4½% on net cost; Dorchester and Boylston tunnels and East Boston tunnel extension, 4½% on net cost. The Act also provides that all contracts are to continue after July 1 1936 until terminated by a two-years' notice by either party. The various new leases and extensions of old leases were signed by the parties thereto on Dec. 7 1911. V. 93, p. 1785.

The new Boylston St. rapid transit subway on which work was begun Mar. 8 1912, was opened for traffic Oct. 3 1914 from the Tremont St. subway, near Charles St., and the Public Gardens, westward toward Brookline, 1¼ miles. The subway cost the city about $4,500,000 (V. 99, p. 1213). The extension of the East Boston Tunnel, on which construction was begun Nov. 29 1912, was opened March 18 1916, permitting an 18-minute schedule from Central Square, Cambridge, to Maverick Square, East Boston. Estimated expenditure on this project, $2,400,000. V. 102, p. 1058. Construction of the Dorchester Tunnel, which is an extension of the Cambridge subway, was begun on May 30 1912. The operation of cars to the Broadway Station in South Boston was begun on Dec. 15 1917, and the completed tunnel to Andrew Square was opened for traffic on July 1 1918. On April 4 1915 trains began operating to Washington Station, just east of the Summer and Winter stations of the Washington Street Tunnel, and on Dec. 3 1916 to South Station Under, at Dewey Sq. and South Terminal RR. station. Cost of this tunnel without equipment is estimated at upwards of $9,800,000.

Everett Elevated Extension.—The Everett elevated extension and bridge in connection therewith were opened on Mar. 15 1919.

Damages by Noise.—In Aug. 1902 Judge Mason, in the Superior Court at Boston, held that the company is liable for damages from noise caused by the operation of trains. V. 75, p. 496. This was affirmed April 1903 by Massachusetts Supreme Court. V. 76, p. 809.

Public Management and Operation—Service at Cost.—On June 3 1918 the shareholders of the company and the West End Street Ry. accepted the Act providing for public operation with service at cost and a fixed rate of return on the company's common stock (compare V. 102, p. 2076; V. 104, p. 2450). A certificate accepting the Act and evidence that $3,000,000 new preferred stock had been subscribed for by the stockholders as provided therein were filed with the State Secretary later in the month. V. 106, p. 2227, 2344, 2755. The Act went into effect July 1 1918 and provides substantially as follows: (1) Road to be managed by five trustees, appointed by the Governor; (2) Period of public operation, 10 years or longer, at option of Commonwealth; (3) Trustees have power to regulate fares and transfer privileges, and determine character and extent of service; (4) Company to raise $3,000,000 by sale of pref. stock at not less than par, $1,000,000 to be used as a reserve fund and $2,000,000 for add'ns & Imprts.; (5) Fares must be sufficient to meet cost of service, pref. divs. at 7% and com. divs. at rate of $5 a share for first 2 years, $5 50 for next 2 years and $6 during balance of period of public operation; the first payment is to be made 6 mos. after commencement of public operation; (6) Trustees shall adopt a schedule of 8 different grades of fares, of which 4 shall be below and 4 above rate of fare first established; schedule shall be increased whenever fare is changed, so that there shall always be not less than 4 grades above and 4 below the existing fare (see "Fares" below). (7) Whenever income is insufficient to meet cost of service, the reserve fund shall be drawn upon; if more than sufficient, excess shall be transferred to the reserve fund; (8) The trustees are permitted on certain dates not more than 12 mos. apart, as from time to time may be fixed by them, to consider a change of the rates of fare in force if the reserve fund exceeds by 30% or more original amount, and income during preceding 3 mos. exceeded cost of service, next lower grade of fare shall be adopted: if reserve fund is less than 70% of original amt., and during preceding 3 mos. inc. was less than cost of service, next high grade of fare shall be adopted. Fare shall continue to be decreased or increased if reserve fund is above or below said limits: (9) If reserve fund is insufficient to meet deficiency in cost of service, State shall make up the deficit and assess same upon cities and towns in which the co. operates; (10) At end of period of public management and operation, road reverts to board of directors, who may continue to operate same on service-at-cost plan, and pay $6 a share com. divs.; (11) State has option of taking over the road by assuming liabilities, and paying in cash an amount equal to that paid in by the stockholders; also State may take over West End St. Ry. if latter has already been merged into Boston Elevated, the West End purchase price to be an amount in cash equal to amount paid in by com. stockholders of West End plus par value of the pref. stock.

Status at End of Public Control —V. 113, p. 1573.

Recommendations of Trustees to Legislature.—V. 113, p. 2503.

"Control Act" Upheld.—On April 3 1919 the Mass. Supreme Court in an opinion submitted to the State Senate held that the Act above described is constitutional. The Senate requested the opinion in order to obtain a decision from the court as to the constitutionality of two bills then pending, both of which provided for a rate of fare less than the cost of furnishing service, the deficit to be made up by direct taxation. The court held that it is within the constitutional power of the Legislature to pass such legislation. V. 108, p. 1390, but see V. 111, p. 2139; V 112, p. 1023. In July 1921 Mayor Peters notified the Boston City Council of his intention to carry to the U. S. Supreme Court the question of the constitutionality of the public control Act as it affects the Boston Elevated Ry. Co. V. 113, p. 291. See also V. 113, p. 2718, 2817; V. 114, p. 737.

Deficit of Co. for 1918-19 Assessed upon Municipalities.—The total deficit of the system for the year ending June 30 1919 amounted to $3,980.152, plus $59,622 int. on the bonds of the Commonwealth, making a total of $4,039,774 to be assessed upon cities and towns. Of this amount the taxpayers of Boston were obliged to pay $2,905.931, or over 71% of the total deficit. V. 109, p. 774. A bill in equity was filed in the Supreme Court, Boston, seeking to have the above assessment upon that city declared illegal but on March 3 1921, the Mass. Supreme Court dismissed the bill. V. 112, p. 1023. Compare V. 109, p. 774.

Investment in Property 1911-1916.—See V. 104, p. 862.

Fare Increases.—In July 1918 a fare increase from 5 cents to 7 cents, effective Aug. 1 1918, was announced. V. 107, p. 180, 290, 400, 500. On Dec. 1 1918 it again became necessary to raise the fares and an 8-cent rate was therefore put into effect. V. 107, p. 2097, 2288, 2374. On July 10, 1919 fares were raised to 10 cents. V. 109, p. 67, 170. On Mar. 26 1921, a new system of fares was established in the cities of Malden and Everett. See V. 112, p. 1282. for details. In May and June 1921 the co. announced several fare reductions, and has since established 5-cent fare districts from time to time. V. 112, p. 2082, 2304, 2535. See also V. 113, p. 530, 847, 1052; V. 114, p. 197.

Operation of Jitneys Proposed.—In April 1921 the co. was auth. to operate jitneys. V. 112, p. 1616. Compare V. 112, p. 1517.

Sale of Cambridge Subway.—On May 1 1920, the State gave to the co. $7,868,000 in payment for the Cambridge subway. We understand that the subway is rented to the company at a rate equivalent to ½ of 1% more than the int. on the bonds issued by the State on account of the purchase of the property. See also V. 110, p. 1414. The extra ½% to be used to retire the bonds serially; the co. is to pay rental at rate of 4½% annually on the amount retired.

Disbursements of Proceeds of Sale.—The co., with the approval of the Mass. Dept. of Public Utilities, expended $1,581.000 of the proceeds of the sale of the Cambridge Subway, for the payment and cancellation of $1,581,000 7% bonds of the West End St. Ry. due Aug. 1 1919 and $375,000 7% bonds of the same co. due Feb. 1 1918 (these obligations had been financed by funds obtained on temporary notes); $1,000,000 for ext. and construction; $1,581,000 for payment of West End St. Ry. bonds maturing Aug. 1 1920; $269,755 to retire floating debt; and $1,561,245 to cancel outstanding debt incurred through impts. to West End St. Ry. property. See V. 110, p. 1748, 2291, 2567; V. 111, p. 72; V. 114, p. 2716.

In Feb. 1920 the trustees were auth. to issue $1,500,000 30-yr. 7% coupon bonds to refund a like amount of 6% bonds due Mar. 1 1920. V. 110, p. 658, 764. This issue was taken up by notes receivable. V. 112, p. 1023.

EASTERN MASSACHUSETTS STREET RAILWAY COMPANY.

ORGANIZATION, &c.—Incorporated early in 1919 in Mass. pursuant to terms of the "Special Act" respecting the Bay State Street Ry. [as described below] and has acquired substantially all the assets of that company, including the leases of the Boston & Chelsea RR. Co., the Boston & Revere Electric St. Ry. Co., the East Middlesex St. Ry. Co., the Winnisimmet RR. Co., which see under separate headings below. The stocks and bonds of these companies are to remain undisturbed. The other issues remaining undisturbed are the 6% equipment notes of the Bay State Street Ry., due serially to 1927, and $64,000 first mortgage bonds of the Peoples Street Ry. due June 1 1923. Various underlying liens were extended at higher interest rates and these appear below.

Sale.—On April 21 1919 the property of the Bay State Street Ry. (except the Rhode Island and New Hampshire lines) was sold at foreclosure to Arthur I. Glidden, in behalf of the reorganization managers for $3,600,000 preparatory to reorganization as the Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Sale was confirmed April 26 1919. V. 108, p. 1721, 1822. On May 31 1919 the property was conveyed to the Eastern Massashusetts Street Railway Co.

Trustees in Control.—On June 1 1919 the five public trustees appointed by the Governor took executive control. V. 108, p. 2122. Since then about 130 miles of non-paying lines had been discontinued.

Jitney Restrictions, &c.—As a result of a notice served by the Public Trustees, that trolley service would be discontinued unless jitneys were abolished, the people of Danvers voted to discontinue jitneys and retain the trolley line. V. 109, p. 1700. See also V. 109, p. 1891, 2171. In Oct. 1919 the town of North Reading expressed its willingness to contribute to the cost of maintaining the line rather than have service discontinued. V. 109, p. 1700. The town of Whitman, Mass., barred jitneys from its streets, but this action was overruled by Judge Geo. W. Kelly, of the District Court, on Dec. 3 1919, who held that the regulation adopted by the Whitman Board of Selectmen forbidding licenses to jitneys to compete against the company could not be sustained because it discriminated against the jitneys. V. 110, p. 261. The Lynn City Council in Feb. 1920 voted to revoke all jitney licenses on April 26 1920. V. 110, p. 871. In April 1921 we were informed that no jitneys were running in competition with operated lines of the co.

In Feb. 1920 was auth. by the Mass. Dept. of P. U. to purchase 200 one-man cars and 12 snow sweepers from the proceeds of the sale of $2,000,000 serial bonds. V. 110, p. 871. See also V. 111, p. 2324.

The purchase of the $2,500,000 (see offering in V. 108, p. 973), serial bonds of this company, issuable under the plan and also $1,000,000 of the cash subscriptions offered to the stockholders was underwritten by Lee, Higginson & Co. See also V. 111, p. 2324.

Special Act.—(1) Provides that the company shall be managed for 10 years by 5 trustees to be appointed by the Governor of Massachusetts The trustees appointed for the first 5 years are:
Homer Loring, Chairman; Arthur G. Wadleigh, Fred. J. Crowley, Isaac Sprague, Earle P. Charlton.

(2) Gives to the trustees absolute power to fix rates and fares (free from the jurisdiction of the P. S. Commission or any other authority) so as to produce income sufficient to pay all costs of operation (including taxes, maintenance and depreciation) and a return on the investment sufficient to cover all interest requirements, the stated dividends on the preferred stocks and 6% per annum on the common stock of the new company. Fares increased by trustees from 7 to 10 cents on July 1 1919. V. 109, p. 72.

On Sept. 15 1920 15-cent fares were put into effect in a few places. V. 111, p. 1182. In connection with a reduction in wages effective May 2 1921, it was announced that a general reduction in fares would also take effect. V. 112, p. 932; see also V. 112, p. 1740, 1977, 2190. Cash fares, we understand, are unchanged at 10 cents, but in some instances the number of rides sold for $1 has been increased.

Based upon the P. S. Commission's appraisal of $40,282,340 as of Aug. 31 1916, plus subsequent additions, the property valuation will be about $46,000,000, 6% on which, or $2,760,000, is approximately the permitted initial annual return on the investment.

(3) Pledges the credit of the State for payment of principal of not exceeding $4,000,000 new Serial Mtge. bonds maturing within 10 years from date; $2,500,000 of these had to be and were sold immediately so as to produce $2,500,000 cash, viz., (a) $2,000,000 reserved for future additions and improvements; (b) $500,000 as a reserve fund.

An additional $1,000,000 cash had to be realized from sale of other new securities for rehabilitation, &c. This made a total of $3,500,000 new cash as a prerequisite

In the March 29 1919 issue of this publication the reader will find history of the Massachusetts Electric Companies and the Bay State Street Railway, the predecessors, and the plan of reorganization in condensed form. An extended outline of the plan appeared in the March 8, March 15 and March 29 1919 numbers of the "Chronicle." Modification in V. 108, p. 1390.

It was found necessary to modify in some respects the original reorganization plan and these modifications were embraced in a readjustment plan announced in Nov. 1921 and consummated Sept. 30 1922. The shares to be redeemed shall be determined by lot in case funds are not available for the payment of any series in its entirety. Of the sink. fd. stock $1,425,000, including all of the first six series and part each of series 7 to 15, were allocated to bank loans and divided among the bank creditors in proportion to their claims. Series 1 to 14 are for $150,000 each. The remaining $1,814,000 of this stock being the remainder of Series 7 to 15, and all of series 16 to 21, were allocated to the coupon notes in the order of the maturity of the notes, beginning with $57,000 of the 7th series for the 1918 maturity, and increasing gradually to $202,000, being the whole of the 21st series, for the 1932 maturity. As a matter of convenience these figures were prepared on the assumption that the option to take 1st pref. stock in lieu of sinking fund stock would not be exercised. Pref. B stock ranks ahead of the Adjustment stock and the com. stock. Dividends on this Pref. B are payable in cash or in com. stock. Call. all or in part (when drawn by lot) on any div. day at 110 and int. The rate of the dividends on this stock which in any year are paid in com. stock (1) shall not exceed the rate of the divs. on the Adjust. stk. which in such year are paid in com. stock, unless all the divs. on the Adjust. stock in such year, if any, are paid in com. stock, and (2) shall be less by at least 2% than the rate of the divs. on the com. stock which in such year are paid in com. stock, unless all the divs. on the com. stock in such year, if any, are paid in com. stock. The 5% Adjust. stock is preferred over the com. stock. Call. all or in part at par and int. on any div. date. The rate of the divs. which in any year are paid in com. stock shall be less by at least 2% than the rate of the divs. on the com. stock which in such year are paid in com. stock, unless all divs. on the com. stock in such year, if any, are paid in com. stock. Stock of this issue, in addition to the amount shown above as outstanding, could be issued in exchange, par for par, for claims against Massachusetts Electric Companies participating in the plan other than claims in respect of securities expressly provided for.

This net earnings provision may, by the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. as now or hereafter constituted, Harris, Forbes & Co., Inc., or its successor, and the firm of William A. Read & Co., as now or hereafter constituted, be waived in respect of any issue made before Jan. 1 1929. In the discretion of the Reorg. Mgrs. the ref. mtge. may provide that it shall not be foreclosed for a period of 10 years, and in such event a General Mtge. shall be created subject to the ref. mtge. and covering the same properties and securing prin. and int. of all ref. mtge. bonds other than ref. mtge. Serial bonds, and in the discretion of the Reorg. Mgrs. the int. or prin. or both of the ref. mtge. Serial bonds. Interest on the ref. mtge. Serial bonds so far as secured by this General Mtge. may be accorded priority thereunder over any other obligation secured thereby, but subject to this exception all obligations secured by said General Mtge. shall be equally secured thereby. The said General Mtge. shall be subject to foreclosure at any time in case of default.

BROOKLYN CITY RR. CO.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorporated in N. Y. in 1853. Was leased on Feb. 14 1893 to the Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. for 999 years, the lease guaranteeing all fixed charges, organization expenses, taxes and 10% dividend [Oct. 1919 and subsequent dividends not paid—see B. R. T. below] on $12,000,000 of stock (par $10). The lease was nominally to the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Co., but the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. owned the entire capital stock of the Brooklyn Heights Co. The Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. was placed in the hands of a receiver July 14 1919, and in accordance with the decree of U. S. Dist. Court, dated Oct. 16 1919, disaffirmed the lease and returned the property to the Brooklyn City RR. Co. Oct. 19 1919.

Guaranty Fund.—Under the terms of the lease it was provided that a fund of $4,000,000 should be deposited with certain trustees by the Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. as a guarantee of the performance of the terms of the lease. It was further provided that in the event of the termination of the lease by reason of any breach, default or omission, the "said guaranty fund of $4,000,000. . . . shall at once become the sole and absolute property of the lessor." This guaranty fund consists of the following: $2,000,000 Brooklyn Queens County & Suburban First Mtge. 5% bonds; $1,627,000 Brooklyn City RR. First 5s; $125,000 Brooklyn City RR. Refunding 4s; $25,000 B. R. T. First 5s; $250,000 B. R. T. First Refund. 5s. We understand that the forfeiture of this fund is being contested by the B. R. T. See also V. 113, p. 843.

The company has no power houses of its own but has a contract with the Receiver for the B. R. T. by which it is supplied with power. The company makes weekly payments of the amounts which is estimated will be found due for power. The amounts are not fixed and vary from time to time.

The company has a claim against the B. R. T. for the demolition of the Brooklyn City power house.

Suit.—The receiver for the B. R. T. has brought suit against the co. to recover $10,000,000, alleged to have been advanced to it prior to the designation of the receivership. V. 113, p. 2612.

Fares.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn on Jan. 14 1921 dismissed the application of the city authorities for a stay to prevent the company from charging two fares on the Flatbush Ave. line pending an appeal to the Court of Appeals. Following this decision the company on Jan. 17 put into effect the extra 5-cent fare on the line, V. 112, p. 371. On Feb. 4 1921 the Court of Appeals held that the company has the right to collect two fares on this line. V. 112, p. 561.

Operation Over Williamsburg Bridge.—On Nov. 26 1921 the Appellate Division reversed a decision of Supreme Court Justice Kelby (V. 112, p. 2189) which upheld the city's right to operate trolley cars, across the Williamsburg Bridge (V. 113, p. 2404). The Court of Appeals at Albany, N. Y., on Feb. 3 1922, however, reversed the ruling of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court thus upholding the city's right to operate trolleys over the bridge. V. 114, p. 625.

Objections to Valuation of Transit Commission.—V. 114, p. 1285.

BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT.

Receivership.—On Dec. 31 1918 [illegible] Judge Julius M. Mayer in the U. S. District Court appointed Lindley M. Garrison (former Secretary of War) temporary receiver (on Jan. 15 1919 made permanent receiver. V. 108, p. 267) of the New York Municipal RR. Corp. and the New York Consol. RR. Corp., subsidiaries of the co.—see below—upon application of the Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co., holders of claims aggregating $46,462 for materials and supplies furnished the company. The receivership became necessary because of the company's inability to meet interest due Jan. 1 1919 on $57,735,000 of 7% and 5% notes and also obtain fresh capital for necessary new construction and improvements. V. 108, p. 76. On Jan. 6 1919 Judge Edwin Louis Garvin in the U. S. District Court denied the application of a stockholder to have an ancillary receiver appointed. V. 108, p. 170. On Jan. 15 1919 Judge Julius M. Mayer in the U. S. District Court denied the application of the city for the appointment of a co-receiver. V. 108, p. 267. On July 14 1919 the receivership was extended to the Brooklyn Heights RR., Brooklyn, Queens County & Suburban RR., Nassau Electric RR. and Coney Island & Bklyn RR., which companies embrace the surface lines in Brooklyn, thus bringing the whole system under the jurisdiction of Receiver Garrison. On Aug. 26 1919 the receivership of the surface lines was made permanent. The extension of the receivership was made on the petition of the Central Union Trust Co., N. Y., in its suit brought to foreclose the B. R. T. 1st & Ref. M. 4s of 1902, the Jan. and July 1 1919 interest on which has been defaulted. For further particulars see V. 109, p. 269.

Receiver's Certificates.—On May 29 1919 Judge Mayer in the U. S. Dist. Court auth. the receiver to issue $20,000,000 of receiver's certificates. V. 108, p. 2240. Compare V. 108, p. 2020, 2122. The Central Union Trust Co. filed an appeal from this order (V. 108, p. 2329) but on July 3 1919 it was affirmed by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The Court, however, modified the order which made the certificates a lien superior to that of the 1st Ref. M. by maintaining that mortgage unimpaired. V. 109, p. 72, 476. On Aug. 12 1919 Judge Mayer auth. the receiver to sell at 95 and int. $18,000,000 of B. R. T. receiver's certificates. The decree impounded 70% of the earnings of the B. R. T., N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. and N. Y. Consol. RR. to provide for payment of prin. and int. of these certificates. At least $13,000,000 of the proceeds were for the purchase that amount of the certifs. of indebtedness of the receivers of the two last named companies, which certifs. are pledged as part security for the B. R. T. issue of receiver's certifs. The B. R. T. certifs. are known as Series A and are red. at par and int. on any int. date on and after Feb. 1 1920 upon 30 days' notice. The total auth. amount of this series having the same security is $20,000,000. Beyond this amount any further issues of B. R. T. receiver's certifs. must either be subordinate in lien to the $20,000,000 issue or must be secured on different property. The B. R. T. receiver's certifs. are superior in lien to (a) B. R. T. mtge. of Oct. 1 1895 as to any property in receiver's hands; and to (b) B. R. T. Consol. & Ref. M. of June 1 1918 (securing $29,000,000 bonds pledged to secure B. R. T. notes) and are inferior in lien to (a) B. R. T. 1st Ref. M. of 1902 ($10,000,000 of bonds secured by which are pledged for B. R. T. notes) as to any property in receiver's hands; (b) Transit Development Co. certifs. of indebtedness of 1907 and indenture of July 24 1918.

The certificates of the Municipal and Consolidated Cos. are superior in lien to (a) the $57,735,000 Municipal Ry. Corp. 1st 5s (pledged under B. R. T. notes); (b) the mortgage given by the N. Y. Consol. RR. Co. to secure its guaranty of said bonds; (c) $14,344,975 N. Y. Consol. RR. Cert. of indebtedness No. 1, but is inferior in lien to the First Mtges. of Kings County Elevated RR. of 1899 and Brooklyn Union Elevated RR. of 1899.

The proceeds of the B. R. T. certifs. were used (1) to enable the receiver of N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. to carry out the obligations under the subway contracts with the City of New York, to which purpose the proceeds of not less than $13,000,000 and not more than $15,000,000 of certifs. were allocated, and (2) to enable the receiver of B. R. T. to complete the power house and other impts. to be used in connection with the operation of the new rapid transit lines. The proceeds of the certifs. allocated to the purposes of N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. were invested in the joint certifs. of the receiver of that co. and of N. Y. Consol. RR. Co., which in turn were pledged to secure the certifs. of the receiver of B. R. T. For the security behind these receiver's certifs. we refer the reader to V. 109, p. 675, 774, where a description of these certifs. in detail will also be found. See also V. 112, p. 2304, 2535.

Modification of Decree for Receiver's Certifs.—Additional Security, &c.—In May 1921 the decree auth. receiver's certifs. was modified in several respects. For particulars see V. 113, p. 2535.

Extension of Receiver's Certificates.—On May 24 1921 Judge Mayer filed a decree in the Federal Court auth. the receiver to extend the payment of the $18,000,000 6% B. R. T. receiver's certifs., maturing Aug. 1 1921 to Feb. 1 1922, at 6% and to pay to the holders consenting to the extension a sum equal to 2% of face amount of certificates. See V. 112, p. 2304, 253. In Jan. 1922 the receiver was auth. to pay off $4,000,000 B. R. T. receivers certifs. and to extend the remaining $14,000,000 for 1-year to Feb. 1 1923 at 6% and to pay the holders thereof a sum equal to 2% of the face amount of the certifs. extended. V. 114, p. 408. Of the B. R. T. certifs. paid off $2,000,000 were cancelled and the remaining $2,000,000 are held alive. See orders of Court in V. 114, p. 408.

Surface Lines Returned, &c.—The rental due by the Brooklyn Heights R. R. Co. to the Brooklyn City R. R. Co. on Oct. 1 1919 was not paid and as a result the 26 surface lines owned by the latter and leased to the former were turned back to the Brooklyn City R. R. for separate operation at midnight, Oct. 18 1919—see separate statement for that company on a previous page.

The Brooklyn Heights RR. also defaulted in payment of the third installment of the Federal income tax (for 1918) of the Brooklyn City RR. Co., amounting to $46,034. The Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. under the terms of the lease should have paid this tax as part of the agreed rentals. The Brooklyn City RR. paid this installment in order to avoid the penalties prescribed by law. V 109, p. 1272. See statement of Bklyn City RR. on a previous page.

Discontinuance of Unprofitable Lines.—On Oct. 16 1920 Judge Mayer in the U. S. Dist. Court auth. the receiver to discontinue the following lines, all of which failed to earn their operating expenses (exclusive of taxes) for the 9 mos. ending July 1920: Church Ave., Rogers Ave., Ocean Ave., (operation resumed June 25 1921—see below), Park Ave., Seventh Ave., 39th St.-Coney Island, owned by the Nassau Electric RR., and the Metropolitan Ave., Wyckoff Ave. and Ralph Ave. shuttle lines, owned by the Brooklyn Queens County & Suburban RR. For further particulars, see V. 111, p. 1660. Compare V. 111, p. 1948. In Nov. 1920 operations were resumed on the Metropolitan Ave. line and the 39th St. & Coney Island line. Service on the Ocean Ave. line from Flatbush Ave. to Ave. I was also resumed. Judge Mayer consented to the resumption of service on the Church Ave. line, provided transfers were eliminated. (V. 111, p. 1851), but the P. S. Commission in Feb. 1921 refused to permit this. V. 112, p. 651. On Jan. 13 1921 the company ceased operating the Park Slope surface line. V. 112, p 371. On June 25 1921 operation of the Ocean Ave. line between Bergen St. and Sheepshead Bay was resumed. No transfers are exchanged. See V. 112, p. 2747. The city has established bus lines over the routes on which surface car service has been discontinued. V. 111, p. 1851.

Re-Routing Plan.—On March 1 1922 D. L. Turner, consulting engineer for the Transit Commission, presented to the Commission a plan proposing the abandonment of 26 of the surface car lines, &c. For details see V. 114, p. 1061.

Foreclosure Proceedings.—Proceedings have been instituted to foreclose the B. R. T. consol & Ref. Mtge. and also the mortgage securing the $60,000,000 bonds of the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp., all the $29,000,000 of the former and $57,735,000 of the latter being deposited as collateral for the B. R. T. secured notes. V. 108, p. 877. On July 30 1919 the Equitable Trust Co. instituted foreclosure proceedings in the N. Y. Federal Court because of the co's. failure to pay the int. due April 1 1919 on its $7,000,000 50-yr. 5% bonds dated Oct. 1 1895. V. 109, p. 476. On Aug. 26 1919 Judge Mayer ordered the consolidation of the foreclosure and general creditors' suits against the B. R. T. and its subsidiaries. V. 109, p. 887.

Status Defined.—Judge Mayer in the U. S. District Court on Oct 5 1921 handed down an opinion defining the status of the lien of the gold 5s of 1945, as a first lien in equity upon the property acquired with the proceeds of $2,125,000 of the bonds, and upon property acquired with later proceeds amounting to $889,705, and such property acquired by the B. R. T. as is subject to the lien of the First & Ref. Mtge. dated July 1 1902. The opinion was confined solely to the question of the priority liens as between the trustees of the two mortgages. V. 113, p. 1573.

On Feb. 15 1919 Judge Mayer in the U. S. District Court at New York auth. the receiver to accept the award of the Board of Appraisers of the War Department of $1,428,063 for certain dock property owned by the N. Y. Consol. RR. $659,000 of this sum was applied to the payment of prin. and int. (in March 1919) of the 1st Mtge. bonds of the Sea Beach Ry. Co., all of which were owned by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. Compare V. 108, p. 783.

ORGANIZATION.—Organized Jan. 17 1896, per plan in "Chronicle," V. 60, p. 1145, to succeed to the property of the old Long Island Traction Company, foreclosed, a syndicate headed by the late ex-Governor Flower having then bought control. Is not a railroad corporation, but was organized under the Business Corporation law of New York to hold the stocks and bonds of railroad companies and to aid in the construction and equipment of railroads. On June 7 1917 Gov. Whitman signed the Thompson bill, making possible the consolidation of the holding company and its various subsidiaries into a single public utility corporation. V. 104, p. 2342.

The disposition of this fund is being contested in the courts.

New Subways and Extensions.—An agreement was reached in May 1912 as to how the routes of the new dual subway system in lower Manhattan should be apportioned between the Interborough and Bklyn. Rapid Transit, and the Court of Appeals at Albany having on June 29 1912 affirmed the decision of Justice Blackmar (V. 94, p. 1057) holding to be constitutional the terms of the proposed contracts with the Interborough and B. R. T., formal contracts were drawn up by the P. S. Comm. and were signed on Mar. 19 1913. V. 96, p. 862. See caption "Rapid Transit in New York City" in V. 94, p. 1384, 1449, 1566; V. 95, p. 48, 111, 237, 1040; V. 96, p. 63, 136, 488, 716, 864. The new subway lines, built and to be built jointly by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the city, are as follows:

(a) Subway line traversing the Borough of Manhattan from the Battery to 59th St., mostly on Broadway and connecting by tunnel under the East River with subway lines in Brooklyn, with rights over the Brooklyn, Manhattan, Williamsburg and Queensboro bridges. The Board of Estimate in July 1915 decided to make the connection with the Queens lines by tunnel under the river instead of over the Queensboro Bridge, Com. V. 101, p. 1554. Contract for tunnel awarded in Sept. 1916 (V. 103, p. 1033) was completed on Aug. 1 1920. V. 111, p. 588. Operation of the new Broadway Subway from Union Square, Manhattan, to Coney Island via the Canal Street subway and Fourth Avenue subway, Brooklyn, was begun on Sept. 4 1917. V. 105, p. 998, 1616. Operation of the Broadway Subway in Manhattan from Times Square to Rector Street was begun Jan. 5 1918 (V. 106, p. 188) was extended from Times Square to 57th Street and 7th Avenue on July 9 1919 (V. 109, p. 174) and to Lexington Avenue and 60th Street on Sept. 1 1919 (V. 109, p. 982). On Aug. 1 1920 the tunnel connecting this line with Montague St., Brooklyn, was completed and put into operation. V. 111, p. 588.

(b) Centre St. loop, connecting the different bridges and extended through Nassau and Broad Sts., Manhattan, to a connection with the lower East River tunnel and the 4th Ave. subway in Brooklyn, with extensions to 86th St. and Coney Island. Two tracks in the Centre St. loop were placed in operation Aug. 4 1913 (V. 97, p. 297) and the other two were placed in operation from time to time during the year 1914-15. The reconstructed Sea Beach line was placed in operation May 1 1915 from Sixty-first Street and Third Avenue to Coney Island. The Fourth Avenue Subway was formally opened June 22 1915 to Sixty-fifth Street. The extension to 86th St. was placed in operation Jan. 15 1916. On June 24 1916 the New Utrecht Ave elevated branch of the Fourth Ave. subway was placed in operation as far as 62d St.; on July 29 1916 line was extended to 25th Ave. and to Coney Island connection on July 21 1917. Since early in 1918 trains over both the West End and the Sea Beach lines are run from Times Square at 42d St. (on Sept. 1 1919 this service was extended to Lexington Ave. and 60th St.) all the way to Coney Island.

(c) Subway line extending from 6th Ave. and 14th St., Manhattan, across Manhattan, under the East River, to North 7th St., Brooklyn, and thence part subway and part elevated through the Eastern District by Metropolitan, Bushwick, Johnson and Wyckoff Aves. to join the Cypress Hills line. Contract for tunnel under East River was signed Feb. 29 1916. Construction is expected to be completed late in 1921. V. 109, p. 2439.

(d) Subway line in Brooklyn connecting Manhattan Bridge with the Brighton Beach RR. Completed and put in operation on Aug. 1 1920.

In addition to the above, the co. agreed to build several extensions as well as third track and make additions and improvements to its then existing lines, most of which work has already been completed. See V. 105, p. 399; V. 107, p. 703; also under "Rapid Transit in New York," in V. 104, p. 257; V. 106, p. 87, 296, 1462; V. 107, p. 2477. The cost of construction to the city of lines in the Dual Rapid Transit System under contracts Nos. 3 and 4 (including both the Interboro and B. R. T. sections), now under construction, was originally estimated at $164,294,079 (not incl. allowances for the expenses of the P. S. Comm.), and the total cost of construction and equipment to the B. R. T. at $65,000,000, but because of additions to the work and increased costs due largely to war conditions these amounts are being exceeded. The total cost of the whole undertaking was estimated at $330,000,000 but is now expected to run up to about $400,000,000. On the B. R. T. system about 117 miles of new track had been added up to Jan. 1920 to the 119 miles in operation in 1913. See under "Rapid Transit in N. Y." in V. 166, p. 296, 1345, 1795. See also V. 114, p. 2117, under same caption. As of June 30 1919, the New York Municipal Railway Corporation had expended in contribution to city-owned lines $11,162,363 on account of equipment of city-owned lines, $12,791,309, and for add'ns, extens. & impts. of existing lines, $38,841,399, a total of $62,795,071. The third track on the Fulton St. line between Manhattan Jct. and Nostrand Ave. was placed in operation Dec. 27 1915. On Dec. 23 1916 the entire third-tracking of the Broadway Elevated was placed in operation between Marcy Ave. and Manhattan Jct. Operation of the Liberty Ave. elevated extension was begun Sept. 25 1915. On May 27 1917 the elevated extension to Jamaica was placed in operation between Cypress Hills and Richmond Hill. Operation of the Metropolitan Ave. trolley line extending from Dry Harbor Road, Queens, to Jamaica Ave., was begun Sept. 25 1917. On July 2 1918 operation of the Jamaica Ave. elevated line from Greenwood Ave. to the terminus in Jamaica was begun. The new Culver rapid transit line was put into operation as far as Kings Highway on March 16 1919, and to Ave. X on May 10 1919. The connection between this line and the Coney Island Terminal was completed in 1920. In Dec. 1918 the Commission directed the preparation of a final order fixing the status of this line as a branch of the Fourth Avenue Subway. See "Rapid Transit in New York," V. 107, p. 2477

See N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp.—organized to carry out company's agreement with city—on a subsequent page.

The Brooklyn City RR. Co. was held under a 999-year lease dated Feb. 14 1893. Lease was abrogated Oct. 18 1919 for non-payment of rental. See separate statement of Brooklyn City RR. on a previous page. In 1898 the Heights Co. leased the Brooklyn Queens County & Suburban RR. The lease was renewed year by year, rental being fixed charges, taxes and organization expenses. On July 1 1901 the B. Q. C. & S. began operating separately again. On April 1 1899 the Heights Co. temporarily leased the Nassau Elec. RR. Later permanent leases were made, but on June 30 1904, presumably in consequence of a decision (V. 79, p. 102) compelling the issuance of transfers, the lease of the Nassau Electric RR. was canceled.

Suit Against Bklyn. City RR.—The receiver has brought suit against the Bklyn. City RR. to recover $10,000,000 advanced to that company prior to the designation of the receivership. V. 113, p. 2612.

The Brooklyn Heights RR. in April 1899 leased for the period of 999 years the Prospect Park & Coney Island RR., the New York & Coney Island RR and the Prospect Park & South Brooklyn RR., but the leases of these companies were assigned in March 1907 to South Brooklyn Ry., which had been acquired by purchase in Feb. 1902. V. 74, p. 479. In July 1912, however, the South Brooklyn Ry. acquired 495 out of 500 shares of P. P. & So Bklyn. stock and 820 out of 1,000 shares of N. Y. & C. I. (V. 95, p. 47), and in Oct. 1915 was auth. to purchase the P. P. & C. I. RR. (V. 101, p. 1464). In Oct. 1920, however, this transaction was still pending. The South Brooklyn Railway owns the double-track road extending from New York Bay, near 38th St., Brooklyn, to 38th St. near 9th Ave., Brooklyn, and in June 1907 increased its stock from $150,000 to $500,000.

Purchase of Coney Island & Brooklyn RR.—In Dec. 1913 the subsidiary Coney Island & Gravesend Ry. received permission from the P. S. Comm to purchase $2,637,000 of the $2,983,900 outstanding stock of the Coney Island & Brooklyn RR. V. 96, p. 1020, 1088; V. 97, p. 1897.

On May 21 1904 the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Co. signed an agreement with the city for operation of trolley cars over the new Williamsburg Bridge. See V. 78, p. 2013, 2386. Surface cars began to cross this Bridge in Nov. 1904. V. 79, p. 2084. Later the Bridge Operating Co. was formed, with $100,000 capital (of which one-half is owned by the New York Rys. Company) to operate local service on the bridge. See V. 79, p. 626; also V. 112, p. 2189; V. 113, p. 530. Through elevated train service over the Williamsburgh Bridge was inaugurated Sept. 16 1908. On Aug. 31 1915 the contracts between the companies operating over the Williamsburgh Bridge and the city, namely the Brooklyn Heights RR., the Bridge Operating Co., the Coney Island & Brooklyn RR. and the New York Railways, as assignee of the New York City Railways, were terminated by Bridge Commissioner Kracke, but operations are being continued at the request of the city under temporary permits pending negotiations for a new contract. On Nov. 15 1912 the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Dept., affirmed the order of the P. S. Commission reducing the fare charged over the Williamsburgh Bridge from 3 to 2 cents, or three tickets for 5 cents. V. 95, p. 1402, 1471.

The Transit Development Co. was organized in April 1903 under the Business Corporation Law, with $25,000 capital, and is owned exclusively in the interest of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. On July 31 1918 was merged with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. It is authorized to manufacture and sell power and to do general contracting work. On March 1 1907 special arrangement was made by which the company furnishes power and takes charge of the maintenance and repair of all the railway properties in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, including their equipment. V. 84, p. 569. In June 1907 capital stock was increased to $500,000. The Transit Development Co. in Dec. 1913 acquired a tract of about 90 acres in the Gravesend section of Coney Island. V. 98, p. 72. The requirement to supply a power-generating plant for the operation of rapid transit lines having been suspended by the city, arrangements have been made with the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. and with the Transit Development Co. for purchasing power in Manhattan and Brooklyn, respectively. The Transit Development Co. is accordingly largely increasing its generating capacity.

Strike—Wages, &c.—For information regarding strikes in 1919 see this section for Apr. 24 1920. On Aug. 29 1920 the co.'s employees went on strike, presenting demands (included in 59 articles) among which were several designed to produce "closed shop." An increase in the minimum wage from 52 cents to 84 cents per hour was also asked. Service was paralyzed for several days but the co. refusing to accede to the men's demands slowly began building up its service and the strike was officially declared off on Nov. 9 1920. For further details see V. 111, p. 989, 1082, 1182, 1277, 1948. See also V. 111, p. 2139, 2227. A general cut in wages approximating 10% was announced, effective Aug. 5 1921. Changes were also made in working conditions. See details in V. 112, p. 2641; V. 113, p. 530.

Mortgages of Constituent Companies to Secure Advances by Brooklyn Rapid Transit.*—In May 1907 the New York State RR. Comm. consented to the Sea Beach Ry., the Canarsie RR. and the South Brooklyn Ry. making mortgages of $2,000,000, $2,000,000 and $4,000,000, respectively, to secure certificates of indebtedness issued by those companies to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit for moneys advanced for additions, betterments, &c. In June 1907 Brooklyn Union Elevated authorized a mtge. for $20,000,000 and the Nassau Electric for $5,000,000 for same purpose; but in July 1908 Public Service Commission denied application for the approval of these latter two mortgages. See particulars V. 87, p. 224. No bonds will be issued under any of these mtges., which are created simply to secure the certificates of indebtedness as issued from time to time. The certificates cannot be issued at less than par and are deposited under the Brooklyn Rapid Transit first refunding mtge. V. 84, p. 1181, 1246, 1550.

Fares—Transfer Charges, &c.—On July 18 1919 P. S. Commissioner Lewis Nixon auth. the company to charge 2 cents for transfers on practically all its surface car lines, effective Aug. 1 1919. The company had applied for authority to charge 3 cents for transfers (V. 109, p. 370, 477). Compare "Electric Railway" Section of March 29 1919, page 17, under caption "Fares." See also V. 109, p. 1179. On Oct. 16 1919 transfers between the elevated and subway lines were discontinued. V. 109, p. 1527.

On July 8 1920 the Court of Appeals handed down a decision to the effect that the Public Service Commission has authority under certain franchise agreements to hear rate increase petitions separately as to lines of the B. R. T. system, but has not jurisdiction to hear petitions for increased fares relating to the system as a whole. The Court held that the following classes of franchises fall outside of the scope of the decision in the Niagara Falls case (V. 111, p. 188) and the famed Quimby-Rochester Street Railway case (V. 109, p. 271, 370): (1) All franchises granted by the Legislature; (2) all franchises granted by municipal authorities prior to Jan. 1 1875; (3) all franchises granted by municipal authorities subsequent to the passage of P. S. Commission law, July 1 1907. The receiver has applied for increases in those cases which are within the jurisdiction of the P. S. Comm. under the above decision. For further details see V. 111, p. 188. Compare V. 111, p. 1751; V. 112, p. 651. No later information.

Five-Cent Coney Island Fare.—Effective May 1 1920 the co. reduced fares to Coney Island to 5-cents. Compare V. 110, p. 1526.

Bus Operation Held Illegal.—On April 1 1920 Supreme Court Justice Cropsey decided that the operation of buses in Brooklyn by the city in competition with the co.'s lines was illegal. V. 110, p. 1414. See also V. 110, p. 2658, under caption "Rapid Transit in New York." V. 115, p. 542, under "B. R. T."

Wreck and Damage.—A wreck occurred on Nov. 1 1918 on the Brighton Beach line, resulting in the loss of nearly 100 lives and injury to more than 100 persons. V. 107, p. 1836; compare V. 112, p. 371.

Stock Increase.*—On Jan. 3 1913 increased its auth. stock from $45,000,000 to $90,000,000. The new stock was issued from time to time up to July 1 1914, exclusively for the conversion of 4% bonds of 1902. V. 96, p. 61.

In Feb. 1917 applied to P. S. Comm. for auth. to issue $299,543 additional Brooklyn Queens County & Suburban RR. bonds. Up to March 27 1920 authority had not been granted. No later information.

Suit Against City.—In Dec. 1918 the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. and the N. Y. Consolidated Ry. Co. brought suit against the city of New York and the P. S. Comm. to compel completion of the city transit system in accordance with the contract of March 19 1913. The plaintiffs alleged that, notwithstanding the elapse of 6 years since the execution of the dual contracts there remained unfinished and still to be constructed or completed 47 miles of track out of a total of 115, and 19 miles of road out of a total of 41 of the lines which the city assumed to construct by Jan. 1 1917 and which the company agreed to equip and operate. For further details see V. 107, p. 2288. In Apr. 1922 the receiver for the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. and the N. Y. Cons. Ry. Co. filed a bill of complaint in the U. S. Dist. Court to compel the carrying out of these contracts and to recover alleged damages incurred as a result of the city's alleged failure to perform its contract obligation. V. 114, p. 1764. The city has filed an answer asking the dismissal of the suit. For details see V. 114, p. 2358.

Plan of Transit Commission for Merger of New York City Street Railways.—The N. Y. Transit Commission on Sept. 29 1921 made public a plan for the readjustment and merger of street railways and rapid transit lines of Greater New York with eventual city ownership. For extended outline of plan see V. 113, p. 1431.

Mayor Hylan's Transit Plan.—For summary of Mayor Hylan's plan, made public Aug. 27 1922, providing for a municipally owned and operated subway system see V. 115, p. 1100, under caption "Rapid Transit in New York City."

Report of Transit Commission.—For year end. Dec. 31 1921 will be found in V. 114, p. 301.

Objections to Valuation of Transit Commission.—V. 114, p. 1285.

Validity of Transit Law Upheld.—See V. 114, p. 304.

New Mortgage.*—At a special meeting held May 23 1918, stockholders ratified the creation of a new mortgage for $150,000,000 to take the place of the present 1st & ref. mtge. of 1902, to which it is generally similar in amount, character and scope. It was proposed to use the new bonds as follows: (a) $7,000,000 for retirement of bonds issued under B. R. T. mortgage of Oct. 1 1895; (b) $53,033,000 for taking up, exchanging or retiring bonds of constituent cos.; (c) $27,621,000 to replace B. R. T. refunding 4s (d) $29,619,000 as collateral for loans; (e) $1,350,000 to reimburse the co. for the cost of $625,000 Coney Island & Bklyn. RR. Co. cons. Mtge. bonds, $650,000 Sea Beach Ry. Co. Note Extension.—Because of adverse conditions existing at the time, the co. found itself unable to take up the $57,735,000 secured notes which matured July 1 1918. The co. arranged for an advance from the War Finance Corp. of $17,320,500, or 30% of the face value of the maturing notes, for a period of 3 years at 7% on the condition that holders of the notes exchange at least 70% of their holdings for new 3-year 7% notes. The co. accordingly offered the noteholders for each $1,000 note (a) $300 cash and $700 face amount of new 3-year 7% Secured Gold notes, or (b) $1,000 face amount of new notes. Holders of over 94% of the notes having accepted this offer, the plan was declared operative July 16 1918. Up to March 1 1920 holders of $55,146,000 of notes had chosen option (a) and holders of $2,084,000 option (b). V. 106, p. 2648, 2755; V. 107, p. 290, 694

Mortgage for* $150,000,000.—Stockholders authorized March 20 1902 first refunding 4% gold convertible bonds for $150,000,000. $59,179,000 were reserved to retire bonds issued, or to be issued, under mortgages of constituent companies and the $7,000,000 Brooklyn Rapid Transit 5s and the rest for improvements, additions and acquisitions, as needed from time to time. The mortgage provides that a fund of $5,000,000 in bonds or their proceeds be at all times at the disposal of the company for the purposes mentioned. See V. 74, p. 377. As this fund is reduced for any of the purposes authorized, more bonds may be authenticated by trustee and delivered to the company on its order. These bonds were convertible into stock, par for par, before July 1 1914, and $29,619,000 were so converted. They are subject to call on any interest day until the year 2000 at 110 and interest; after that at par and interest. See listing applications in V. 81, p. 1856, 1857, for list of securities pledged for the bonds; also listing applications in V. 82, p. 517; V. 83, p. 1122; V. 85, p. 1523; V. 86 p. 923; V. 90, p. 786.

Bonds.—Of the $7,000,000 50-year gold 5s of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit $3,000,000 went to stockholders for assessment. For description of property covered by the mortgage, see V. 62, p. 1138. See also V. 67, p. 904.

The total authorized issue of first consolidated mortgage gold 5s of the Brooklyn Queens County & Suburban RR is $4,500,000, of which $1,616,000 are reserved for extensions, on which they will be a first lien. Of the $2,884,000 outstanding, $2,255,000 in 1898 were endorsed with the guaranty of the Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. as to prin. and interest, and in Jan 1899 provision was made for guaranteeing the remainder upon the payment of $10 per bond. Both B. Q. C. & S. loans are subject to call from 1916.

The $650,000 Sea Beach Ry. 4% bonds due Sept. 1 1916 were taken up at maturity by the B. R. T. (retired in March 1919). V. 103, p. 843. The B. B. & W. E. 1st 5s, due April 1 1917, were also taken up by the B. R. T. at maturity.

The Nassau El. 1st cons. M. bonds are guar. (by end. on each bond) by the Brooklyn Heights RR. Besides covering the mileage directly owned they are a lien by a supplemental agreement upon the stock of the Coney Island & Gravesend Ry. and will become a direct lien on this line should it become merged in the Nassau Electric. Of the total of $15,000,000 bonds authorized, the unissued remainder ($3,242,000) is for prior liens. See listing application in V. 72, p. 342.

In Dec. 1918 it was announced that the Brooklyn Union Elev. 4-5% bonds and the Kings County Elev. 4% bonds would be guaranteed upon presentation on certain dates during the year of 1919 by the Brooklyn Heights RR. Co. V. 107, p. 2475.

 Coney Island & Brooklyn Bonds.—Of the $10,000,000 bonds auth. by mtge., $4,000,000 are reserved for prior liens and $3,768,000 are reserved for ext. and imps. No sinking fund, and bonds cannot be called.

COMPANIES CONTROLLED BY BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT CO.

(1) New York Consolidated RR.

Receiver Appointed.—See Brooklyn Rapid Transit above.
Receiver's Certificates.—See B. R. T. above.
Financial Status.—See under "B. R. T." in 647, 740, 1613.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorp. at Albany on Nov. 30 1912 as a consolidation of the Brooklyn Union Elevated RR., Sea Beach Ry. and Canarsie RR. V. 95, p. 1608. Brooklyn Rapid Transit owns or controls $13,430,831 out of the $13,900,000 common stock and $4,785,985 out of the $5,000,000 preferred stock.

Owns all the outstanding stock of the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. (which holds the contracts made with the City of New York in 1913 for the operation of subways, &c.) and guar. its bonds, p. & i., jointly with B. R. T.

Lease.—All rights, &c., of the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. under its contract with the city have been leased and assigned to the New York Consolidated RR. For terms, see statement of N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. below.

The New York Consolidated in 1915 leased for 999 years the Nassau Electric RR.'s terminal at Coney Island, the consideration being $226,000 upon delivery of lease and $100 per annum from Aug. 1915 which the New York Municipal Ry. Corp. was authorized to charge against the cost of construction under the dual system contracts. See V. 101, p. 447. Contract for construction of new terminal was let in March 1916. Two tracks are in operation from Sheepshead Bay to Culver Terminal. The entire terminal was to be ready for use before the close of 1919, with the exception of the connection with the city-built Culver line. The latter was put in operation as far as Kings Highway on March 16 1919, and to Avenue X on May 10 1919. The connection with the Coney Island Terminal was completed in 1920. This line will finally operate as a branch of the Fourth Avenue Subway. V. 107, p. 2477.

Favorable Decision.—In April 1918 the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court upheld the decision of Supreme Court Justice Erlanger in April 1916, holding that under the contract with the city, dated March 19 1913, the company was relieved from the obligation of paying tolls for the operation of cars over the Williamsburgh Bridge. V. 106, p. 1576.

Division of Earnings with City.—As the New York Consolidated holds, under assignment and lease, all the rights acquired by the New York Municipal Ry. Corp. in the latter's contracts with the city, all the earnings accrue to it. The division of earnings is on the following basis:

1. To the company, $3,500,000, as representing the net earnings of the previously existing railroads which went to form part of the new rapid transit system. Out of this reservation the company pays interest charges on capital investments prior to Mar. 19 1913 in the then existing railroads.

2. To the company, 6% on its new investment in construction and equipment prior to the beginning of permanent operation and thereafter interest and 1% sinking fund.

3. To the city, interest and 1% sinking fund on its investment in cost of construction.

4. Any surplus remaining, after making provision for a moderate contingent reserve fund, is to be divided equally between the company and the city. The company's preferential payments are to be cumulative.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorp. in N. Y. on Sept. 27 1912 to operate the enlarged transit system (elevated roads and subways) covered by the agreement between the company and the city, and to construct and own such parts of the system as are scheduled for private rather than public ownership. V. 95, p. 818. The lines to be constructed by the city are leased to the company for a period of 49 years from Jan. 1 1917 and are operated by the company in connection with the previously existing railroads of the New York Consolidated RR. Co. (as enlarged and extended) as one system, and for a single fare. The city-constructed lines may be recaptured by the city after 10 years upon payment to the company of a fixed percentage of the latter's investment in construction and equipment (115% at the end of 10 years and a gradually diminishing amount in succeeding years), so that the company will receive an amount which, with the accumulations of its sinking fund, will at least make good its investment.

In March 1913 the P. S. Commission approved a contract with the Brooklyn Heights RR. for the use of the Lutheran Cemetery line. This line was elevated and was placed in operation Feb. 22 1915. V. 100, p. 732.

LEASE TO N. Y. CONSOL. RR.—On Mar. 26 1913 the P. S. Comm. sanctioned the lease and assignment to the N. Y. Consol. RR. of all rights under the contract with the city respecting new rapid transit lines. (See V. 96, p. 360, 947). The company also transferred to the N. Y. Consol. RR. the certificates for extensions and additional tracks, as well as certain real estate in Brooklyn and the above-mentioned contract with the Brooklyn Heights RR. regarding the Lutheran Cemetery line. The lease calls for 6% dividends on the N. Y. Municipal Ry. Corp. stock.

The Municipal Ry. Corp. agrees to furnish all the money necessary to carry out the terms of the dual system contracts and has the option of doing all the construction work and acquiring all the equipment, or of requiring the Consolidated Co. to do so on reasonable notice.

In August 1913 the P. S. Commission granted authority to issue $400,000 additional stock, of which $100,000 was issued in April 1915. Up to June 30 1919 only $200,000 stock out, all owned by New York Consolidated RR.

In March 1916 the co. applied to P. S. Comm. for auth. to issue $697,500 additional stock to reimburse the B. R. T. for commissions and fees for counsel paid out in connection with the dual subway system financing. Still pending.

Wins Suit.—Justice Lazansky in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, in May 1921 upheld the verdict of $495,671 obtained by the co. against the International Construction Co. V. 112, p. 2084.

BUFFALO & LAKE ERIE TRACTION CO.—A trolley road.

Receivership.—On application of the New York Trust Co., mortgage trustee, Justice Brown in the Supreme Court at Buffalo on July 7 1915, appointed Geo. Bullock receiver. V. 101, p. 129.

Sale, &c.—On July 1 1920 Justice Wheeler in Supreme Court at Buffalo handed down a decision allowing the company to discontinue its lines within the State of New York, effective Sept. 15 1920. The Court, however, has authorized the receiver to continue operation until further instructions are issued. The request of the company that it be allowed to dismantle the road was denied. The Court directed the receiver to advertise for bids for the property in full or in part. In Oct. 1920 all bids received were rejected. V. 111, p. 1660. The line between Fredonia and Dunkirk is excepted from the order. The Court believes this section can be operated successfully. V. 111, p. 293; see also V. 111, p. 791; V. 112, p. 743; V. 115, p. 1836. No further developments.

Default.—The company having defaulted on the int. due Nov. 1 1912 on the first and ref. M. 5% bonds (subsequent coupons also defaulted), a protective committee requested the bondholders to deposit their bonds with Equitable Trust Co., 37 Wall St., N. Y., as depositary, or the Girard Trust Co. of Phila. as sub-depositary.

The aforesaid committee also drew up a plan of reorganization (see V. 97, p. 297 but in Dec. 1913 the plan was abandoned.

Sub Co.—Receivership.—Int. due May 1 1920 on the Hamburg Ry. 1st 5s, having been defaulted, John F. Burke was appointed receiver for that co. in Sept. 1920. Compare V. 111, p. 1082.

ORGANIZATION.—Incorporated in New York and Pennsylvania in Dec. 1906 and is a consolidation of the Hamburg Ry., the Dunkirk & Fredonia RR., the Buffalo Dunkirk & Western RR., the Lake Erie Electric Traction Co. and the Erie Rapid Transit Co. Leases the Erie Electric Motor Co. for 999 years, which company leases the Erie City Passenger Ry. for 999 years from Oct. 1 1888 and the Erie Reed Park & Lakeside Street Ry. for 999 years from March 1 1901. In 1909 leased the Buffalo & Lack. Trac. Co. for 999 years (V. 88, p. 1001), but this lease was canceled in 1919. However, a new operating agreement with this co. has been made providing for operation of interurban and freight cars into Buffalo. Also owns all the outstanding stock of this co., and guarantees the bonds. Also owns all stock ($750,000, all out) of the Dunkirk Street Ry., which company has a franchise in Dunkirk and has built about 5 miles of track.

On July 17 1919 applied to N. Y. P. S. Comm. for auth. to sell to the Niagara Lockport & Ontario Power Co. 480 shares of the Niagara & Erie Power Co.'s stock and to transfer to the Niagara & Erie Power Co. a right of way for an electric transmission line from Athol Springs to Dunkirk, a distance of 34 miles, &c. V. 109, p. 887 Transfer was completed April 1 1920. See also V. 112, p. 2419, under caption "Niagara & Erie Power Co."

The receiver has been authorized by the County Court at Erie, Pa., and Supreme Court at Buffalo, N. Y., to issue $1,544,200 receiver's certificates to provide funds for improvements and extensions, of which $920,000 were issued and outstanding Aug. 1 1921.

Fare Decision.—In July 1918 the Penn. P. S. Comm. dismissed the complaints against a fare increase holding that an electric railway may increase its fare beyond the 5-cent limit specified in a franchise ordinance when it is necessary to do so to obtain enough revenue for operation and maintenance purposes. V. 107, p. 500.

Rates.—Effective Dec. 26 1920, interurban fares were increased to 3.6 cents per mile. Effective Sept. 1 1920, freight rates were raised 40%. In Oct. 1920 was auth. to increase cash fares to 8 cents. V. 111, p. 1660.

Valuation.—On Oct. 12 1920 the Penna. P. S. Comm. fixed the valuation of the "Erie Division" at $4,100,000 for rate-making purposes. V. 111, p. 1660. For further details see V. 112, p. 468. Valuation of properties outside of Erie placed at $775,000. See V. 114, p. 1532.

V. 74, p. 427.

Buffalo & Niagara Falls Electric Railway.
Buffalo & Lockport Railway (after Elmwood Ave. and Tonawanda Electric Railway had been merged).
Buffalo Tonawanda & Niagara Falls Electric RR. Co.
Lockport & Olcott Railway.
Niagara Falls & Suspension Bridge Railway (after the Niagara Falls Whirlpool & Northern Ry. had been merged in it).
Niagara Falls Suspension Bridge Co.

On July 1 1902 the International Ry. Co. acquired by purchase the Niagara Falls Park & River Ry., the Clifton Suspension Bridge Co., the Lewiston Connect. Bridge Co. and Queenston Heights Bridge Co. and in Dec. 1912 merged the Electric City Ry. In April 1913 the Crosstown St. Ry. was also merged.

For history of International Traction Co. which formerly held all the co.'s stock, see "Electric Railway" Supplement of Apr. 30 1921.

New Line.—The P. S. Comm. has auth. the sale of $3,870,000 International Ry. ref. and impt. 5% bonds, of which $3,642,000 have been issued to provide for the construction and equip. of the high-speed interurban line from Buffalo through Tonawanda and North Tonawanda to Niagara Falls, 16 miles, over private right of way. V. 103, p. 1032; see also V. 107, p. 696. V. 113, p. 1772.

Abandonment of Portion of Line Authorized.—For details see V. 114, p. 1063.

Franchises.—Nearly four-fifths of the mileage in Buffalo, including all the most important lines, is maintained, it is stated, under franchises in perpetuity or upon property directly owned, only 47 miles of minor trackage being operated under franchises having less than 25 years (from 1916) to run. The franchises of the lines outside of Buffalo are either for various long-term periods or are without time limit.

Fares.—On April 18 1920 the company put into effect, with the P. S. Commission's approval, a 7-cent fare tickets being sold at 6¼ cents. V. 109, p. 1986; see also V. 109, 2172; V. 111, p. 188, 493, 895.edCompare "Electric Railway" Section of Nov. 15 1919, page 17, under capratea'noees and Wages." Effective May 1 1921, the co. under a joint tarisvringif. 'F passenger traffic with the Niagara Gorge Ry. put into effect increasctofa r See V. 112, p. 2537.

Strike.—On July 1 1922 the company's employees went on strike, following a reduction in wages. For details see V. 115, p. 73, 183, 759, 868.

Damage Claim Against City Filed.—The co. in Oct. 1922 filed a claim of $3,805,250 for damages alleged to have been incurred through the failure of the city to furnish adequate protection during the strike which started July 1 1922. V. 115, p. 1837.

Important Rate Decision.—See V. 109, p. 370.

Judgment against Company.—In April 1922 it was reported that a jury before Supreme Court Justice McAvoy had given a verdict for the Bankers Trust Co. for $455,178, for balance due on a loan made to the International Traction Co. in 1917 in connection with a bond issue of $2,667,000. The case has been appealed.

Interest Payments—Default, &c.—Because of a 24 days' strike (V. 107, p. 1837) and a subsequent increase in wages the Nov. 1 1918 interest on the International Ry. Ref. & Impt. Mtge. bonds was not paid until Jan. 1919 (V. 108, p. 480). Compare V. 107, p. 1837. The May 1 1919 interest on these bonds was paid, with interest thereon up to July 29 1919. V. 109, p. 477. The May 1 1920 int. was paid on July 12 1920 together with int. on the deferred payment up to that date. V. 111, p. 188

The following committee was formed, but in June 1921 bonds deposited were returned to their owners at a cost of $1 for each $1,000 of deposited bonds. V. 112, p. 2747.

Committee for Ref. & Impt. Mtge. 5s.—Chairman, Chas. W. Beall, Francis E. Frothingham, Arthur Perry, Richard B. Young; Sec., Raymond Spellman, 61 Bway, N. Y. City. Depositary, Bankers Trust Co., N. Y. V. 107, p. 2188, 2476.

Refunding Plan.—Owing to existing financial conditions the co. was unable to take up at maturity the $800,000 Lockport & Olcott Ry. 1st mtge. 5s due July 1 1920. The company offered, therefore, to exchange these bonds, par for par, for an issue of $800,000 5-year 7% coll. trust bonds of the International Ry., to be secured by $1,200,000 of that company's ref. & impt. 5s. The 5-year 7s are convertible into International Ry. ref. & impt. 5s at the rate of $3,000 ref. & impt. bonds for each $2,000 of 7% coll. trust bonds. For further details see V. 110, p. 1972. Holders of $605,000 Lockport & Olcott bonds accepted this exchange, the remaining $195,000 being paid in cash.

Readjustment Plan.—The readjustment plan as outlined in V. 111, p. 2228, 2324; V. 112, p. 161, has been carried out. As a result depositors under the plan received for each $1,000 Traction Co. coll. trust bond upon payment of $100 (a) $400 Railway Co. stock distributed free; (b) $500 Railway stock and $100 Railway 5% bond for $100 cash. The stock is represented by voting trust certificates. The voting trustees selected for a term of 5 years, are: Walter P. Cooke, Thomas Penny and Nelson Robinson. $1,944,000 ref. & impt. 5% bonds of the Ry. Co. and $640,500 underlying 6% bonds, secured by mortgages upon portions of the property of the Ry. Co., have been turned over to the voting trustees to be held in trust, but with full power in the voting trustees to sell or otherwise use the said bonds for the benefit of the Ry. Co. or the holders of the voting trust certificates for stock of the Ry. Co. For further details see V. 111, p. 2228, 2324; V. 112, p. 161. Compare V. 111, p. 1752, 895.

For steps leading up to adoption of readjustment plan, see "Electric Railway" Supplement of Oct. 30 1920.

CHICAGO SURFACE LINES.

Under the title of Chicago Surface Lines the properties of the Chicago Railways Co. and the Chicago City Railway Co. are now being operated as a single system under the control of a joint board of operation in accordance with an agreement between the two companies and the unification ordinance which became effective Feb. 1 1914. While under the terms of this ordinance and the agreement the ownership of the properties remains entirely separate and distinct, the combined earnings are divided upon an agreed basis. For the two years ending Jan. 31 1916 the Chicago Railways Co. received as its share 59% of the income remaining after the payment of all operating expenses, including taxes and maintenance, the other 41% of the income going to the Chicago City Ry. Co., including the Calumet & South Chicago Ry. and the Southern Street Ry., and, beginning with Feb. 1 1916 and until the expiration of its franchise in 1927, the Chicago Railways Co. will receive 60% of the so-called "residue receipts." and the Chicago City Ry. (including the Calumet & South Chicago and the Southern Street Ry.), 40%. The plan provided for a 5-cent fare throughout the city on surface lines, also through routing of cars from one division of the city to another. See details of the ordinance and the agreement for unified operations under date of Dec. 1 1913 in V. 98, p. 1693. An order permitting the State Attorney to file quo warranto proceedings to question the legality of unification ordinance was denied in March 1915. V. 100, p. 1078.

Statement Showing Shrinkage in Market Value of Securities.—See V. 108, p. 1822.

Ordinance to Unite Surface and Elevated Lines.—See remarks under Chicago Elevated Railways.

Proposed Subway System.—See V. 112, p. 61; V. 114, p. 304, 1406, 1532; V. 115, p. 1631.

Application to Carry Freight.—See under "Chicago Elevated Rys."

Decision.—On April 19 1917 the Ill. Supreme Court upheld the right of the State Public Utilities Comm. to regulate street car service in Chicago regardless of the provisions of the contract ordinances of 1907 between the Chicago City Council and the surface lines. Pursuant to this opinion a decree was entered by the Circuit Court of Cook County in favor of the Comm., which was affirmed by the Ill. Supreme Court. An appeal was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court which held that the decision of the Illinois Supreme Court was conclusive. See also V. 113, p. 2311.

Fares.—Effective Dec. 27 1919 the Illinois P.U. Comm. ordered the companies put on a straight 6-cent cash fare basis. Effective July 1 1920 the companies were auth. by the Comm. to charge an 8-cent fare. V. 111, p. 73. On Nov. 8 1920 the P. U. Comm., made this order permanent and fixed the valuation of the lines as of April 30 1920 at $159,113,114. The Commission also found that the companies were entitled to earn a return of approximately 7.5% on the value of the properties; for details see V. 111, p. 1949, 2040. See also V. 113, p. 291, 2311. On Jan. 9 1922 the U. S. Dist. Court at Chicago entered an interlocutory injunction restraining the Ill. Commerce Comm. from enforcing a 5-cent fare. V. 114, p. 197, 304, 625, 1285. The Ill. Commerce Comm., however, ordered a reduction in fares to 6 cts. effective May 1 1922. V. 114, p. 1650, 1764. A temporary injunction against the 6-cent rate was issued by Federal Judges Evans, Geiger and Page. V. 114, p. 2011. The injunction was conditioned upon the company reducing its fares, not later than June 15 1922, from 8 to 7 cents cash or 3 tickets for 20 cents. V. 114, p. 2468.

City Operation Approved.—On Nov. 11 1919 the City Council unanimously approved the Mayor's plan for condemnation of the surface lines and their operation on a 5-cent basis by or on behalf of the city. For further details see V. 109, p. 1891; V. 112, p. 2304; but compare V. 112, p. 1739; V. 113, p. 70.

Refusal of City to Accept Share of Profits. See V. 112, p. 1739; compare V. 113, p. 70.

Suit by City.—In July 1921 the city filed suit in the Municipal Court for $3,500,000, against the company, which the city claims is due for the use and occupation of the streets. (V. 113, p. 70), but compare V. 112, p. 1739

(1) Chicago City Railway.—An electric road.

Unified Operation of Surface Lines.—See "Chicago Surface Lines" for details of unification ordinance under which the lines of this company are operated jointly with those of the Chicago Railways Co. as a single system under the control of a joint Board of Operation. For plan to unite the surface and elevated lines see "Chicago Elevated Rys."

ORGANIZATION.—Incorporated in Feb. 1859, and has extensive surface road privileges in the south division of Chicago. Has a contract expiring Jan. 31 1927 with the Commonwealth-Edison Co., for the supply of its entire power requirements. The railway has abandoned its producing plants but retains its distributing plants.

New Ordinances and Franchises.—On Feb. 4 1907 the City Council passed ordinances providing for a settlement of the franchise question. These ordinances were approved at the city election on April 2 1907 and formally accepted by the company's board of directors on April 15 1907. Suit to set aside franchise was dismissed in April 1912. V. 94, p. 1118. An extended outline of these ordinances, one to the Chicago City Railway Co., and covering the lines operated by that company, and the other to the Chicago Rys. Co., and covering the lines of the former Chicago Union Traction Co. (now the Chicago Railways Co.), was given in V. 84, p. 1123. The value of the tangible and intangible property of the Chicago City Ry. at date of the ordinances was fixed at $21,000,000. The city or any company authorized by it is given the right on Feb. 1 or Aug. 1 of any year, on six months' notice, to purchase the entire property of the two systems, or either of them, at their value at date of ordinance, plus "the cost of rehabilitation and extensions, including fair allowances for construction, profit and brokerage". But if the properties are acquired for operation by a private corporation, for its own profit, the purchase price is to be increased 20%—barring the case of a private company which might be willing to turn over to the city all profits above 5% on the cost of the investment. The companies are limited during their operation to an interest return of 5% upon the agreed value plus the cost of rehabilitation and extensions. All net profits above this are to be divided on the basis of 55% to the city and 45% to the companies, but a deficit in any year is to be made good out of the profits of subsequent years. After April 15 1910 the companies are required to set aside 6% of the gross receipts for maintenance and repairs and an additional 8% of the gross receipts to cover renewals and depreciation. Whatever portion of the two funds is not used remains in the funds and passes to the city or its licensee upon purchase. But if the two funds are not sufficient for the purposes named, the companies are obligated to supply additional funds. The franchises granted by the ordinances run until Feb. 1 1927. On Feb. 4 1921 the City Council voted to cancel these franchises. See V. 112, p. 743. Purchase price of the property Jan. 31 1922, $54,949,651.

On Jan. 29 1912 City Council passed an ordinance providing for the acquisition by Chicago City Ry. of city lines of the Chicago & Southern Trac Co. V. 94, p. 349, 629. The latter was sold at foreclosure in Feb. 1912. The lines outside the city were taken over by the Chic. & Interurban Ry.

Decision as to Regulation.—See "Chicago Surface Lines."

In Jan. 1920 the company applied to the Ill. P. U. Comm. for auth. to issue $1,928,000 5% 1st mtge. bonds to cover expenditures for improvements V. 110, p. 359. In Jan. 1921 was auth. by the Ill. P. U. Comm. to issue $1,758,000 bonds. V. 112, p. 372.
